Laotian Calls For U.S. War Reparations

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — An influential student leader declared Monday that the United States must pay war reparations to Laos and accept the takeover of U.S. Embassy facilities or the Communist-dominated Laotian coalition government will break diplomatic relations.

The threat, made at a news conference, was the first public mention by a student activist of a full diplomatic break with the United States. Past denunciations have focused on auxiliary activities like the U.S. Agency for International Development — AID — the U.S. Information Service and the Central Intelligence Agency.

"The United States must agree to war reparations and to contributions to FEOF (the international fund that supports the Laotian currency in foreign exchange)," said Khamsay Sourithone, head of the Lao Student Federation. "If this is refused the government would agree with our desire to cut off diplomatic relations."

Khamsay said he spoke for "almost all the Lao people." It was not known how many he actually represented in this nation of three million, but student activists, the prime movers against the Americans in the last two months, have not yet been reproached or opposed by the increasingly Pathet Lao-dominated coalition government.

U.S. Embassy officials met Monday with Foreign Ministry representatives in an effort to regain a general services compound, a housing area and the U.S. Information Service library that were taken over during the weekend. An embassy spokesman said no decision was reached.

Meanwhile, a report from the Laos-Thailand border said two more high ranking right-wing officials, including a former justice minister, had crossed over seeking asylum during the weekend. A Thai official in a border province near Vientiane said one Thai boatman was wounded Sunday when Pathet Lao border guards fired on a boat that was carrying goods across the Mekong River to Thailand.

At the news conference, Khamsay and former U.S. AID employe Vixay Smaksan, both leaders of the week-long occupation of the AID compound which led to the AID mission's dissolution last week, alleged that the United States was plotting to assassinate new leaders replacing right-wingers who have fled.

Khamsay said, "We will continue to attack all private organizations including those religious organizations which have been connnected with AID activities." He mentioned the Christian service organization World Vision — which has pulled out of Laos — and the Dooley Foundation, a medical organization set up by the late American Dr. Thomas Dooley, which still has a staff in Vientiane.

Khamsay alleged that AID was really a "military headquarters," and he made clear that despite organizational formalities the activists considered all American activities they didn't like as part of it.

There are currently 22 U.S. government officials and 57 private American citizens left in Laos.

Meanwhile, Saigon's Liberation radio indicated the new South Vietnamese regime was still troubled by what it termed "hidden stubborn elements," a reference to soldiers and police who refused to surrender themselves or their arms when the former government gave up April 30.

The radio said villagers siding with the new regime continued to find and seek out renegades and had encouraged more than 1,000 recalcitrant military men and civil servants to register with the new authorities.

State's Wheat Harvest Starts

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Nebraska's wheat harvest is well underway in a number of spots along the Kansas line with the first reported harvest on the Kenny Whittwer farm near Salem.

Whittwer delivered some Gage wheat to the Salem elevator Tuesday last week that had a test weight of 61 pounds and a moisture content of 14.5%. Whittwer estimated the yield at just over 40 bushels to the acre.

"We have quite a number of farmers who got started today (Monday). It came earlier than I expected it to with some late planted fields being harvested earliest," reported Richardson County Agent Thomas Aitken.

Aitken said some farmers would be planting soybeans behind their wheat in an effort to double-crop their land. "We see quite a bit of this when there is enough moisture to start the beans in this area," he said.

A spokesman at the Lincoln Grain Inc. elevator at Barnston reported that a number of farmers were starting to harvest in that area "We don't have a yield estimate yet and have received only about 1,000 bushels so far. The test weight is running between 58 and 59 pounds in most samples with the moisture running around 13% today. Hail probably hurt the yield in most areas around here," she said

Harvesting in the McCook area, traditionally one of the early spots, is not expected to begin until July 4 or 5

The Reynolds Co-Op Elevator manager reported that some farmers in the area had been trying to cut wheat but it was still too wet.

Farmers in the Jansen area had not yet begun harvesting but will as soon as it gets drier.

Weather has plagued the combine crees ever since the harvest began in late May in Texas with combines scattered from Texas to the Nebraska border trying to harvest wheat in muddy fields.

The next indication of what the nation's wheat crop should yield will come on July 10 when the next crop report is due from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

City, County Officials Quarrel Over Budgets

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

As budgets go, the Civil Defense's and the City-County Implementation Commission's were peanuts. Yet city and county officials found those peanuts tough to swallow Monday as they haggled over next year's appropriations for the two agencies

The City Council, County Board and mayor batted a proposal to hire a director for the CCIC back and forth and earlier Monday squabbled over paying for new warning sirens for the county.

The CCIC, composed of four elected officials and one lay citizen, thinks it's time to kick city-county merger efforts into high gear and have recommend the hiring of a director, for $24,000 or less. The total CCIC budget package totals $34,000.

Is He Needed?

Forget that, said Councilmen Steve Cook and Bob Sikyta, who figured the citizens don't need a $24,000 guy to come in and do the elected officials' job

Sikyta argued that many of the departments of city and county government could merge services and duties now, if only directed to do so by the council and county commissioners.

"There are a million things out there that can be done," said Sikyta

Cook figured the officials would have to make the final decision "sooner or later anyway." He suggested they meet first with County Engineer Marv Nuernberger to meld his operations and the city public works department's.

'Golden Next'

Then, Cook said, "we can take on Frank Golden next "

At the gasp he received from county commissioners, who have had disagreements with County Treasurer Golden in the past, Cook quickly explained he didn't exactly mean what he said

While Sikyta and Cook believed a full-time director just would be adding onto the bureaucracy, Mayor Helen Boosalis and the majority of officials felt just the opposite.

Mrs Boosalis argued that volunteer committees and elected officials don't have the time to gain the public support, do the legwork and get departments to work together.

Easiest Behind

"The easier parts of merger have already been accomplished," she said.

County Commissioner Bruce Hamilton said the officials get bogged down on just the routine business matters now and probably wouldn't have the time to devote to working on merging city and county services.

Councilman Bob Jeambey voiced some reluctance at hiring the director. He said he couldn't envision the person having enough clout to get things done. Jeambey said the officials still would have to do a major part of the work even if staff were hired.

But the group decided to hire the staff. Except Councilman Dick Baker succeeded in persuading his colleagues to lower the salary range to $16,000-$18,000 and to change the name of the job from "director" to "coordinator." Cook and Sikyta voted against that budget.

Then, there was the case of the Civil Defense warning sirens, a $16,000 item budgeted by Director George Drake.

Cut, Then Added

At one point the officials cut out the appropriation, only to add it back in later with a few more dollars when Drake presented a detailed plan for the siren placement.

Drake received approval for $21,950 worth of sirens to be placed in rural areas, such as Bennet, Firth, Hallam, Hickman, Malcolm, Panama, Raymond and Waverly.

For the second year in a row the council and commissioners eliminated a deputy director position from the $80,000 budget.

Deputy Scrutinized

The officials, less than pleased with the budget, said they can't see a need to hire a deputy in the office.

At one point in the budget discussions, Jeambey said, "This is one of the smallest budgets and we are spending the most time on it. The staff should have done their homework."

The two governments also hacked more than $3,000 out of the advertising budget, thus eliminating maps of civil defense shelter locations from the telephone book, but added $2,500 for educational material.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey also said local officials have no idea what their roles should be in the event of a disaster

Since no one has explained emergency procedures, Mrs Bailey said, "I don't know if they want me to make a decision or just stay home and out of the way."

Yellowstone Park Earthquake Strong

WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP) — A strong earthquake shook the western portion of Yellowstone National Park on Monday and rattled buildings up to 200 miles east and north.

A park spokesman said no one was injured and no major damage was caused by the three tremors, the most severe of which was measured at 6.0 to 6.25 on the Richter scale.

Yellowstone was the scene in 1959 of one of North America's strongest recorded quakes, 7.1 on the Richter scale, when portions of mountains toppled to form a new lake on the Madison River. Nineteen persons were killed.

Aftershocks continued to roll through the park, located on the Montana-Wyoming border, during Monday afternoon. A spokesman for the University of Montana earthquake center said the tremors would have caused major damage to buildings if they had occurred in a populated area.

Park spokesman Joe Carder said there had been several minor slides and that one road was closed. He said the intrapark highway between Norris and Madison Junction was blocked by a rockslide.

Crews were at work trying to clear the highway, and traffic was being rerouted through Old Faithful and Canyon junctions.

"From what we can tell, there have been small rockslides throughout the park in several areas," Carder said.

A service station attendant at Canyon Village in the park said he felt a few minor earth movements at around 11:30 a.m. The National Earthquake Center set the time of the primary shock at 12:54 p.m.

The National Earthquake Information Center said the earthquake began in about the same location as the 1959 tremor.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 registered 8.25.

Butz To Propose Federal-State Inspection

(The New York Times)

Washington — Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz will propose to Congress a cooperative federal-state system to tighten inspection procedures in an attempt to eliminate alleged corruption in the grain-export trade of the United States, government sources said Monday.

Such a decision would come in the face of general opinion in the Agriculture Department's Grain Division, which is known to favor federalizing the inspection system.

But the secretary is said to have chosen the federal-state arrangement from six possible choices offered to him by staff experts because of the need he sees to continue good relations with the states in a wide variety of other federal-state programs.

Butz Leaned That Way

Even before receiving the staff proposals, Butz had told reporters he was "leaning" toward a federal-state system.

A general acknowledgment of a need for a change in the grain inspection system has grown out of an investigation of alleged corruption in the handling, grading and weighing of grain that began in New Orleans and spread to Houston and other major grain ports.

Under the present system, grain is inspected and graded by inspectors licensed by the Department of Agriculture but employed by private or state agencies or agencies created by boards of trade or chambers of commerce on which grain-company and shipping interests are heavily represented.

Small staffs of federal supervisors attempt to spot-check the work of the private and state inspectors.

The system has lent itself to questions of conflicts of interest, and allegations of bribery and improper influences on inspectors have grown out of the current investigation.

Export Effects Feared

In addition, foreign buyers have complained that they have received improperly graded or adulterated grain and, as a result, received less value than they paid for. American farmers and others fear serious adverse effects on the U.S. grain-export trade.

Government sources say staff experts presented Butz with the following choices for legislative proposals.

—An all-federal inspection system.

—A system with some federal inspection but continuing state-agency inspection in states where such agencies already exist, with the option for other states to create such agencies.

—A similar federal-state system but one that would limit state agencies to inland points and require federal inspection at all export ports.

—A system that would include state, federal and private inspections but with the right of federal supervisors to move in and perform original inspections when situations called for the action. Under the present system federal agents can perform only secondary inspection, either as a supervisory function or on appeal from original certification of grades

—A continuation of the present private and state system but with tightened requirements on performance and supervision.

Still another option was offered, said to combine various features of other choices, but details of that sixth plan could not be learned.

Officials Favor All-Federal Plan

It is understood, however, that none but the all-federal and the federal-state choices were even given serious consideration. Grain Division officials are said to favor generally the all-federal plan because of problems that have been turned up in some of the existing state agencies.

Russian Track Squad Gets Warm Welcome

They came in suede miniskirts and long-sleeve sport shirts rolled up above the elbows. Some sweltered in highneck, wool sweaters, while others looked suave in ties and jackets.

All looked glad to have landed in Lincoln — the end of the line which began in Moscow Sunday morning.

One didn't need an interpreter to tell that the young athletes of the USSR track team were tired after their long trip. Although the sun shone high in the Lincoln sky, it was approaching midnight in Moscow when the travelers checked into their accommodations at Harper Hall on the University of Nebraska city campus.

Mayor Helen Boosalis, after some coaching by interpreter Valentina Ziverts of Lincoln, offered a greeting in Russian:

"Dobroy Pazhalovaht!" The spelling is phonetic. The meaning is: "Weclome."

Then, in English, the mayor said:

"Pitting our best athletes against your best athletes on the playing fields will further solidify and cement relations between your great country and the United States," Mayor Boosalis told the group through interpreter Ziverts.

Peter Stepanenko, director of the Russian team, speaking with the aid of an interpreter traveling with the athletes, accepted the Mayor's greeting with an added kiss on the hand.

Pat Landis, midwestern association AAU president who took a U.S. girls basketball team to the Soviet Union in 1961, expressed her hopes that the Russians have as good a time in our country as she had in theirs.

As they stepped from the air-conditioned terminal to the steamy outside, several of the competitors were concerned about the heat. But Lincoln interpreter Boris Bode couldn't translate our fahrenheit reading, which was 95, to the centigrade degrees the Russians would understand. In centigrade terms, this afternoon's Lincoln temperature was 35.

Competition at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir outdoor track, 13th and Vine, begins at 3 p.m. Friday afternoon, with the last event of the day scheduled for 8:25 p.m. Saturday's events start at 3 p.m., with closing ceremonies at 8:10 p.m. that evening.

Crackdown Grows In India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Indian government escalated its political crackdown on two fronts Monday, authorizing police to make arrests without saying why and ordering the expulsion of an American newsman He was the first foreign journalist ordered to leave since Prime Minister Indira Gandhi decreed a state of emergency

Mrs Gandhi issued her emergency rules last Thursday, jailing key opposition leaders, authorizing police to make arrests without trial and barring prisoners from appealing to the courts

Authorities said well over 900 persons have been pulled in by the dragnet, but did not say exactly how many In addition, they said 653 "bad characters" have been arrested in New Delhi in the last few days, and as a result the capital's crime rate has plummeted to virtually zero

On another front, Health Minister Karan Singh declared that India is free from smallpox for the first time in its history as a result of a campaign launched last year by Indian and World Health Organization officials

Under the latest emergency ordinance, issued less than 24 hours after stave-swinging security forces crushed the first anti-Gandhi demonstration in the capital and seized about 25 youths, arresting authorities need only say that arrests are necessary for dealing with the state of emergency

Those seized can be held up to a year The original decree provided that prisoners must be told the reason for their arrest within a few days

The new ordinance allows authorities at all levels to make arrests under the emergency powers Arrests made by local authorities must be reviewed by state officers within 15 days and confirmed as necessary and reconfirmed at four-month intervals

The new regulation indicated how much Mrs. Gandhi is concerned with opposition to her refusal to resign as a result of her conviction of corrupt electioneering in gaining her 1971 Parliament seat The Supreme Court is take up Mrs. Gandhi's appeal when it returns from vacation in two weeks.

The foreign correspondent ordered expelled was Lewis M. Simons, 35, of the Washington Post He was given 24 hours to leave the country, primarily because of a story in which he said that Indian army officers "are known to be annoyed" over Mrs Gandhi's refusal to resign

The dispatch was sent June 20, six days before censorship was imposed with the penalty of possible expulsion for violators. Simons said he also was told the action was being taken against him because he had refused to abide by the censorship regulations

Moscow — A ranking member of the Soviet Communist Party and government warned a delegation of American senators Monday that detente between the two nations is threatened and American action in a number of areas is needed to correct the situation.

The warning came from Mikhail A Suslov, a member of the Communist Party's ruling Politburo and head of the Foreign Affairs Commission of one of the houses of the Soviet parliament.

Suslov spoke in reply to speeches given at the Kremlin Monday by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and Senate minority leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Humphrey had opened with thanks to the Soviet Union for inviting the group and praise for progress made to date by the two nations in arms reduction negotiations, the forthcoming joint Soviet-American space docking mission and gradual normalization of relations. Scott spoke in much the same vein.

Suslov's speech quickly moved into the issues separating the two nations, however.

"I cannot but remark," he said, "That the impression is growing here in the Soviet Union that of late, the enemies of detente have stepped up activities in the United States. They are maintaining that relaxation is to the benefit of the Soviet Union alone, that the United States and other Western countries have no use for it."

Suslov implied that his government still basically has faith in the Ford administration.

"We set great store by the understanding reached by General Secretary of the Communist Party Leonid I Brezhnev and President Ford during their Vladivostok meeting, concerning a new, long-range agreement on the limitation of strategic offensive arms.

"But the Soviet Union is not satisfied with a number of American actions, among them the failure of the United States to ratify a treaty already signed with the Soviet Union limiting underground nuclear tests," he said. His government objects to Washington's "tying up this question with a solution of the problem of underground nuclear explosions for peaceful purposes."

The Soviet official said it was imperative that the great powers quickly agree to ban the development of new types of weapons of mass destruction.

Ford Spokesman Says Nuclear Policy Unchanged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States maintains its long-held policy of not using nuclear weapons in a first strike capability, presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday.

Nessen told a news briefing that the United States policy, as stated in a defense posture statement several years ago, is to disavow the first-strike use of nuclear weapons

Nessen has been asked for several days about U S nuclear policy, ever since President Ford said in a news conference last Wednesday that the United States will maintain maximum flexibility in the use of strategic and tactical nuclear weapons in the event of war

Newsmen have pressed Nessen to determine if that was a change in American policy, but the press secretary declined to go beyond the President's words

After a lengthy questioning period Monday, he was asked again to reaffirm the posture statement. Nessen replied:

"There is no change. On Friday I said the President did not intend to, and did not, change American policy "

The questions on nuclear strategy at Ford's press conference were directed at policy toward Korea, and observers believed Ford's answers were clearly designed to keep North Korea guessing.

When a reporter asked Ford to be specific on how he would use nuclear weapons, he declined to do so, emphasizing that maximum flexibility is needed "to give us the greatest opportunity for our own national security "

The questions arose because of earlier reports that Air Force bomber crews have started training for fighting a limited nuclear war in case the United States should want to exercise that option. Asked if nuclear weapons would be used if North Korea attacked South Korea, the President said he would neither rule in or rule out use of nuclear weapons. Those forces would be "in a flexible way in our own national interest," he said.

Ford said there had been a change in some degree in U S nuclear policy about 18 months ago, a reference to the emphasis Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger has placed on the need for flexibility.

You Can Defend Yourself In Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that a person charged with a crime has a constitutional right to refuse a court-appointed attorney and represent himself in court.

The justices also ruled that the Constitution guarantees a criminal defendant the right to have a summation of the evidence on his behalf presented at the end of his trial.

Both decisions, decided by identical votes of 6 to 3, were handed down as the court concluded its term and adjourned until Oct. 6.

In a pair of unanimous decisions, the court curbed the power of the Border Patrol to stop and search automobiles near the Mexican border in its quest of illegal aliens.

One ruling held that roving patrol officers may not stop cars without a reasonable suspicion that there are illegal aliens inside.

The other will make it harder for them to search cars, as opposed to just stopping them, at fixed checkpoints located near but not on the border.

At the same time the court announced it will hear arguments next term on two cases raising similar questions under the Constitution's prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures.

One involves Nebraska's appeal of a federal court decision overturning the conviction of David L. Rice, an officer in a Black Panther organization, in the dynamite death of an Omaha policeman.

A lower court said police searched Rice's home for evidence without sufficient reason. (See story on Page 7.)

In the other case, the U.S. circuit court in San Francisco struck down the second-degree murder conviction of Lloyd Charles Powell in connection with a shooting during a San Bernardino County, Calif., liquor store robbery.

The circuit court ruled that Powell's pistol should not have been allowed as evidence against him because it was seized by Henderson, Nev., police who arrested him under a vagrancy ordinance which the circuit court said was unconstitutionally vague.

The Supreme Court agreed to hear arguments on the legality of the ordinance and on whether it was permissible to introduce the pistol as evidence.

Although they provoked lively debate among the justices, the two decisions involving the right to legal counsel in trials are unlikely to have widespread practical consequences.

Federal law and the Constitutions of 36 states already guarantee defendants the right to represent themselves. And New York is believed to be the only state which allows the judge, when hearing a criminal case without a jury, to dispense with closing arguments.

Justice Potter Stewart spoke for the court in both decisions.

He conceded that a defendant would generally be better off with a lawyer but said that in rare instances he "might in fact present his case more effectively by conducting his own defense."

At any rate, he said, the Constitution contemplates that the right to counsel "shall be an aid to a willing defendant — not an organ of the state interposed between an unwilling defendant and his right to defend himself personally."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said in a dissent that "that system of criminal justice should not be available as an instrument of self-destruction." And Justice Harry A. Blackmun said the decision "bestows a constitutional right on one to make a fool of himself." Justice William H. Rehnquist also dissented.

Stewart called closing arguments for the defense "a basic element of the adversary fact-finding process in a criminal trial," and said they should not be done away with merely to expedite court business.

He said the trial judge, although not empowered to prohibit closing argument, has broad authority to limit its length or scope.

Rehnquist, speaking for the three dissenters, said the judge should have authority to dispense with it altogether in simple cases in which he believes he has an adequate grasp of the evidence.

Topless Dancing Ban May Be Unconstitutional

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court suggested Monday that local laws banning topless dancing in all public places are unconstitutional, leaving the issue to be argued in lower courts.

The unanimous ruling sustained a preliminary injunction obtained by two Hempstead, N.Y., tavern owners, which forbids the town to enforce a topless ban until lower courts rule on the validity of the local ordinance.

The opinion written by Justice William H. Rehnquist said a district court had ruled correctly that the North Hempstead law banning topless females from "all public places" probably is unconstitutional.

The decision means the two tavern owners may proceed in their efforts to have the ordinance declared unconstitutional and North Hempstead may try to persuade the lower courts to sustain the ban.

The high court decision, however, indicated it might strike down such laws permanently should the issue reach it again on appeal.

Rehnquist did say state and localities might have the power to ban nude dancing in bars under their 21st Amendment obligation to regulate liquor sales. But the North Hempstead law appeared too sweeping in the court's view, since it forbids nudity "in all public places."

Rehnquist said such an ordinance probably infringes on First Amendment rights to free expression.

The main legal point of the decision was that the two tavern owners have the right to seek federal court relief from the law so long as criminal charges are not pending against them.

A third tavern owner also sought such relief, but he is being prosecuted under the local ordinance and rehnquist said the lower federal courts had no right to issue a preliminary injunction barring his prosecution by the state.

Not The Alps

Paris (UPI) — Police arrested two men Monday for extending Alpine sports to Paris by climbing the city's tallest skyscraper with mountain picks and ropes.

Polices said occupants of the 656-foot-high Montparnasse tower complained the Alpinists were ruining the facade of the American-designed building by sticking their sharp-pointed alpine picks into the window frames.

According to the police report, the men decided to climb the building "because it's there."

FBI Denies Being Heavyhanded

Oglala, S.D. (UPI) — The FBI Monday denied Indian charges that officers were using heavyhanded tactics in their search for the killers of two agents slain on the Pine Ridge Oglala Sioux Reservation.

An estimated 200 agents were still concentrating their search for the ambush slayers on the rolling, gully-slashed 3,000-square-mile expanse of the reservation.

The dead agents, Jack R. Coler and Ronald A. Williams, both 28, were shot down in what authoritites described as execution fashion Thursday when they tried to serve a warrant at a house in Ogalala. An Indian was also killed in a subsequent shootout.

Since then, heavily-armed agents have roamed the reservation. One man, Herman Thunder Hawk, was arrested over the weekend and authorities said they were still looking for 16 believed to be involved in the shooting.

No formal charges were made, but Indians told reporters that agents had entered their homes without warrants and had otherwise acted in highhanded fashion.

FBI spokesman Tom Coll, when questioned, denied it.

"There may be people out there armed but we're not getting heavyhanded," he told a press briefing.

Coll said the search was still concentrated on the reservation and no negotiations were planned with leaders of the American Indian Movement, which has been at the center of dissension on the reservation over the last two years.

You Can Defend Yourself In Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that a person charged with a crime has a constitutional right to refuse a court-appointed attorney and represent himself in court.

The justices also ruled that the Constitution guarantees a criminal defendant the right to have a summation of the evidence on his behalf presented at the end of his trial.

Both decisions, decided by identical votes of 6 to 3, were handed down as the court concluded its term and adjourned until Oct. 6.

In a pair of unanimous decisions, the court curbed the power of the Border Patrol to stop and search automobiles near the Mexican border in its quest of illegal aliens.

One ruling held that roving patrol officers may not stop cars without a reasonable suspicion that there are illegal aliens inside.

The other will make it harder for them to search cars, as opposed to just stopping them, at fixed checkpoints located near but not on the border.

At the same time the court announced it will hear arguments next term on two cases raising similar questions under the Constitution's prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures.

One involves Nebraska's appeal of a federal court decision overturning the conviction of David L. Rice, an officer in a Black Panther organization, in the dynamite death of an Omaha policeman.

A lower court said police searched Rice's home for evidence without sufficient reason. (See story on Page 7.)

In the other case, the U.S. circuit court in San Francisco struck down the second-degree murder conviction of Lloyd Charles Powell in connection with a shooting during a San Bernardino County, Calif., liquor store robbery.

The circuit court ruled that Powell's pistol should not have been allowed as evidence against him because it was seized by Henderson, Nev., police who arrested him under a vagrancy ordinance which the circuit court said was unconstitutionally vague.

The Supreme Court agreed to hear arguments on the legality of the ordinance and on whether it was permissible to introduce the pistol as evidence.

Although they provoked lively debate among the justices, the two decisions involving the right to legal counsel in trials are unlikely to have widespread practical consequences.

Federal law and the Constitutions of 36 states already guarantee defendants the right to represent themselves. And New York is believed to be the only state which allows the judge, when hearing a criminal case without a jury, to dispense with closing arguments.

Justice Potter Stewart spoke for the court in both decisions.

He conceded that a defendant would generally be better off with a lawyer but said that in rare instances he "might in fact present his case more effectively by conducting his own defense."

At any rate, he said, the Constitution contemplates that the right to counsel "shall be an aid to a willing defendant — not an organ of the state interposed between an unwilling defendant and his right to defend himself personally."

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said in a dissent that "that system of criminal justice should not be available as an instrument of self-destruction." And Justice Harry A. Blackmun said the decision "bestows a constitutional right on one to make a fool of himself." Justice William H. Rehnquist also dissented.

Stewart called closing arguments for the defense "a basic element of the adversary fact-finding process in a criminal trial," and said they should not be done away with merely to expedite court business.

He said the trial judge, although not empowered to prohibit closing argument, has broad authority to limit its length or scope.

Rehnquist, speaking for the three dissenters, said the judge should have authority to dispense with it altogether in simple cases in which he believes he has an adequate grasp of the evidence.

FBI Denies Being Heavyhanded

Oglala, S.D. (UPI) — The FBI Monday denied Indian charges that officers were using heavyhanded tactics in their search for the killers of two agents slain on the Pine Ridge Oglala Sioux Reservation.

An estimated 200 agents were still concentrating their search for the ambush slayers on the rolling, gully-slashed 3,000-square-mile expanse of the reservation.

The dead agents, Jack R. Coler and Ronald A. Williams, both 28, were shot down in what authoritites described as execution fashion Thursday when they tried to serve a warrant at a house in Ogalala. An Indian was also killed in a subsequent shootout.

Since then, heavily-armed agents have roamed the reservation. One man, Herman Thunder Hawk, was arrested over the weekend and authorities said they were still looking for 16 believed to be involved in the shooting.

No formal charges were made, but Indians told reporters that agents had entered their homes without warrants and had otherwise acted in highhanded fashion.

FBI spokesman Tom Coll, when questioned, denied it.

"There may be people out there armed but we're not getting heavyhanded," he told a press briefing.

Coll said the search was still concentrated on the reservation and no negotiations were planned with leaders of the American Indian Movement, which has been at the center of dissension on the reservation over the last two years.

Topless Dancing Ban May Be Unconstitutional

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court suggested Monday that local laws banning topless dancing in all public places are unconstitutional, leaving the issue to be argued in lower courts.

The unanimous ruling sustained a preliminary injunction obtained by two Hempstead, N.Y., tavern owners, which forbids the town to enforce a topless ban until lower courts rule on the validity of the local ordinance.

The opinion written by Justice William H. Rehnquist said a district court had ruled correctly that the North Hempstead law banning topless females from "all public places" probably is unconstitutional.

The decision means the two tavern owners may proceed in their efforts to have the ordinance declared unconstitutional and North Hempstead may try to persuade the lower courts to sustain the ban.

The high court decision, however, indicated it might strike down such laws permanently should the issue reach it again on appeal.

Rehnquist did say state and localities might have the power to ban nude dancing in bars under their 21st Amendment obligation to regulate liquor sales. But the North Hempstead law appeared too sweeping in the court's view, since it forbids nudity "in all public places."

Rehnquist said such an ordinance probably infringes on First Amendment rights to free expression.

The main legal point of the decision was that the two tavern owners have the right to seek federal court relief from the law so long as criminal charges are not pending against them.

A third tavern owner also sought such relief, but he is being prosecuted under the local ordinance and rehnquist said the lower federal courts had no right to issue a preliminary injunction barring his prosecution by the state.

Not The Alps

Paris (UPI) — Police arrested two men Monday for extending Alpine sports to Paris by climbing the city's tallest skyscraper with mountain picks and ropes.

Polices said occupants of the 656-foot-high Montparnasse tower complained the Alpinists were ruining the facade of the American-designed building by sticking their sharp-pointed alpine picks into the window frames.

According to the police report, the men decided to climb the building "because it's there."

Hearings On Street Projects

Tonight at 7:30 the Lincoln City Council will hold a public hearing on three proposed major street improvements south of O St. and Wednesday night another hearing will be held on three proposed projects north of O. The hearings are part of a new government procedure under which citizens are invited to get involved early in the street planning process.

It's a lead pipe cinch that the council will get an earfull at these hearings. Lincoln citizens are actively interested in what government does or proposes to do as never before. Lincolnites have the idea that they can fight City Hall and win or at least they can bargain with City Hall. A generally responsive municipal government in recent years has nourished that idea. And never has it been more responsive than it seems to be today, with a new mayor and a council alert to citizen attitudes.

What happens to the proposed street improvement projects — the most controversial of which are the 48th St. and Holdrege St. widening projects — will of course test the responsiveness theory and will be an indicator of how Lincoln will prepare for the future.

According to the city public works department these six projects are still "very early" in the planning stage. Although the basic scope of the projects have been laid out, there has been no detailed design work yet and no environmental impact study.

At this stage of the game the council basically has three options: It can reject the projects, one or all; send them back for more study or send them along one more step of the planning process by okaying funding for design work.

Although the public works department will outline the steps in the planning process and briefly comment on the scope of the projects, the meetings tonight and tomorrow night are foremost the public's chance to be heard.

We imagine that opposition to the projects, especially the 48th St. and Holdrege units, will be stated emphatically.

The council will be obliged to seriously consider all alternatives to four-laning every arterial in sight. People are interested in preserving the residential neighborhoods and the trees which make this a lovely city in which to live and they are interested, we think, in as broad a distribution of traffic as possible rather than heavy concentrations of traffic which such projects as 48th St. or Holdrege St. would bring. It may well be that motorist convenience has become a secondary goal.

No one is seriously suggesting that the motor vehicle be eliminated as one of those factors which determine future development. Traffic has to be dealt with as a reality. The city can, of course, still deal with it as a reality and not create the means for additional reliance on the vehicle.

The question is, at what price will Lincoln purchase motorist convenience? That question will be among the most important local government will have to answer in the years ahead.

Trust Pays Off

We get the feeling sometimes that local law enforcement authorities are opposed to people gathering in groups of two or more.

The Belmont rally at Arrow Airport last Saturday can serve as a case in point. Prior to the Lancaster County Board's issuing Belmont Enterprises, Inc. an amusement license to hold the outdoor concert, the sheriff's department objected on grounds that it would invite rape, blatant narcotics peddling and so forth.

The board gave the go-ahead, however, after telling the promoters in effect that they were on trial and the chances for future outdoor concerts rested on their performance. The Belmont Rally came off in good shape, pleasing the promoters and officialdom alike. People were for the most part orderly. There were a few people who got drunk and passed out, but that happens even at the country clubs and in the fraternal lodges and the football stadium.

People, especially young, funloving people, are not, thankfully, a highly disciplined lot. There is always the risk that a few among any group of thousands will run afoul of the law. But in the end we think that trust in human nature pays off. Most folks, including, young, funloving folks, will behave responsibly. All should not be punished for the sins of a few.

It's good that the Belmont Rally went well, since the event was held up by the county board as an example. Now it will be more difficult for the authorities to logically oppose people gathering for social purposes.

There undoubtedly would be less law enforcement problems if people were kept isolated from one another, as has been suggested. But people are social animals, not particularly suited for that kind of sterile environment which would preclude enforcement problems. We're glad that there are elected officials who are disposed to let people live a little.

By JOHN JACOBSON
State Budget Administrator
Lincoln, Nebr.

The University of Nebraska has had two years of the biggest budget increases in its history, but you wouldn't know it from reading Max D. Larsen's article which appeared in The Lincoln Star.

In his article, the author, a dean at the university, apparently tries to build a public case for more and more state tax appropriations to the university's Lincoln campus. The author alleges, more from a basis of emotion than from fact, that the funds budgeted by the state for equipment purchases are inadequate. Governor Exon's veto actions, which I considered reasonable and appropriate, are characterized in the article by the harshest of terms, while ever greater university spending is made to appear the answer to every state problem.

While everyone has a right to his opinion, I object to the misstatements of fact that appear in the article. I do not know if the author is merely misinformed or is deliberately misleading the public. Whichever, the case, it is most disheartening that a dean is either so out of touch with the state budget process, or has such disregard for the facts, that he would write such an article.

The pertinent facts are these: (a) The University of Nebraska's tax funded budget will increase from approximately $50.8 million in 1973-74 to a comparable $74.5 million for 1975-76, a 46.6% increase over two years; (b) This increase compares Nebraska favorably to any state in the nation; (c) Some states are actually reducing tax fund support for higher education, while others are giving much smaller increases than is Nebraska; (d) The University of Nebraska-Lincoln, about which the author is most concerned, will receive an approximate 16.6% tax fund increase during the coming fiscal year.

While the author conveniently ignores these facts, he makes certain allegations which must be refuted. For example, the author writes:

"The 'equipment' budget for the university contains all monies for replacement of worn-out equipment as well as purchase of new equipment for the entire university. It is controlled centrally and allocated to colleges and departments by the chancellor. No other funds for equipment exist within the university."

The author also notes:

"The appropriation in 1974-75 (sic) for equipment for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln was reduced by line item veto by Governor Exon from $990,761 to $178,110."

The reader is thus led to believe that the only money available for UNL equipment purchases is $178,110, even though the total UNL budget is in the tens of millions of dollars. This, of course, is nonsense. The UNL budget programs generally have no restrictions which prohibit the expenditure of other funds for equipment. The allegation that UNL has only $178,110 for equipment really has no basis in fact. However, if UNL wishes to spend only that amount on equipment and spend its other funds on travel or salaries or whatever, that, of course, is its own decision. Needless to say, we shall be watching the expenditures with some interest.

The governor's line item vetoes were not made, as the article suggests, with a view toward specifically cutting the university equipment budget. (For those at the university who haven't noticed, the state has been on a program budget system, not a line item system, for about ten years.) Instead, Governor Exon sought to give university officials maximum flexibility in expenditure.

The vetoes were also guided by two other considerations. First, although he originally considered vetoing more funds from the university budget, the governor realizes the need for a sound university and is not deaf to requests for legitimate needs. Secondly, he sincerely wanted the vetoes to be sustained by the legislature in order to reduce total state spending, and thus vetoed an amount to which reasonable persons could not take serious exception. The governor was pleased that his line item reductions were sustained.

The appearance of this unfortunate article in print, to which I have felt obliged to reply in order to set the record straight, prompts me to ask if it would not be appropriate, just once, for the university to express its thanks to the taxpayers of the state for the sacrifices they make for the support of the institution, instead of always demanding more and more. This would be a welcome change.

Could It Have Happened Here?

NEW YORK — The most remarkable thing about Mrs. Indira Gandhi's swift seizure of power and effective suspension of democracy in India is how easily it was accomplished. It also seems to have been widely accepted, if first reports are borne out, although it had generally been assumed that Indian democratic traditions were strong and deep.

Already, some Indians are saying that Mrs. Gandhi really had no choice — that the opposition, now mostly jailed, was truly responsible for the crisis and had forced her to take strong counter-measures. There does seem to have been much provocative rhetoric and no doubt some opposition leaders were more anxious to get Mrs. Gandhi out of office than either her policies or her unsettled — at the time of her coup — legal difficulties warranted.

But that argument is beside the point. Democracy is about nothing if not the settlement of struggles for power in the political arena, and by the voters. Arresting and jailing the opposition, imposing censorship on the press, suspending the liberties of the people, all belong to dictatorial government and the defenders of Mrs. Gandhi's action delude themselves if they assert that she took it to save Indian democracy. Instead, she took advantage of its weakness and may well have destroyed it.

Americans, having just emerged from the Watergate crisis, which resulted in the resignation of Richard Nixon as president, are bound to be struck by the haunting question why Nixon did not try something like Mrs. Gandhi has done. After all, the similarities are deep. He was in legal trouble; whether he should remain in office was being debated; given his and his aides' attitudes about the press and the opposition, as well as the long history of political unrest through the 1960s and into the 1970s, Nixon might well have believed there was a conspiracy afoot to remove him — and surely could have adduced more of what he would have called "evidence" of that conspiracy than Mrs. Gandhi has or probably can adduce to support her charges of "a deep and widespread conspiracy" in India.

To his credit, however, Nixon never really tried to cling to power by the ruthless means adopted by Mrs. Gandhi. The reasons are not hard to find. For one thing, the American Constitution has no clause explicitly permitting the executive to suspend the liberties of citizens whenever that executive perceives or thinks it perceives, or says it perceives some infernal threat. American governing institutions also are effectively divided, and the divisions still have great meaning. Could Nixon have arrested everybody in Congress, or all ranking Democrats, or all the Supreme Court justices and justices of the federal bench, or all 50 state governors? Even had he or some other president taken over Washington with tanks and machine-guns, opposition might swiftly have been rallied around powerful state governors.

But there are deeper reasons. When Nixon — then still powerful and feared — forced the resignation of Attorney General Elliot Richardson, fired his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, and fired the special Watergate investigator, Archibald Cox, the moment might have been at hand for a coup. That moment, however, was greeted by a "firestorm" of public protest, by the massed and fierce resentment of millions of aroused Americans. Nixon could have seized certain forms of power, but he could not have rested easy with them, or governed by anything but continuing force.

When the Supreme Court ruled that he had to give up his White House tapes to the second special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, Nixon's attorneys speculated publicly and even suggested in his court brief that a president of the United States could decide for himself what the Constitution required — thus raising the possibility that Nixon would not obey the court order. But he did obey it, making his departure from office inevitable.

As that became clearer to all, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger — a man who owed his many government posts to Richard Nixon's appointments — quietly took steps to assure that military units could not be ordered or persuaded by the White House to keep Nixon in office by force of arms. By then, too, Nixon's closest White House aides, some of them men who not only owed their positions to Nixon but who had been loyally at his side throughout the Watergate ordeal, were telling him he had no further choice but to resign the presidency or face certain conviction of the impeachment charges voted by the House.

Nixon lacked, that is, a quiescent public either unconcerned for democracy or easily gulled into swallowing fake conspiracy charges. In key positions, he lacked unquestioning and blindly obedient officials who would do whatever he ordered. He lacked either the tradition or the legal power that would have enabled him plausibly to set the Constitution aside.

But merely to cite those lacks is to recall how nearly in the years of the imperial presidency preceding Watergate, a quiescent public, pliable public officials and a flouted Constitution did combine to erode and destroy democracy in America. That near miss, as well as Mrs. Gandhi's coup, teach their own lessons.

Peace Decision Asked In Six Months

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt — President Anwar Sadat believes the situation in the Middle East is so explosive that war could erupt in the near future, he told this reporter in an interview at Borg el-Arab, his country retreat.

The Egyptian president spoke as he weighed proposals brought from Washington. But there can be no decisive action until President Ford publicly announces the results of the Middle East reassessment.

"The three-month agreement for a peace-keeping U.N. force on the Egyptian-Israeli frontier expires next month," Sadat noted. "I shall not consent to another renewal unless there is a real movement toward peace. That will greatly increase the danger."

Sadat was warm in his enthusiasm about his meeting with Ford at Salzburg. With the greatest frankness, they discussed Egypt's problems and the precarious balance between the present dubious peace and open warfare. At the same time, however, he said he understood the gravity and the difficulty of the decision the U.S. President must make.

"I told President Ford, 'keep your special relationship with Israel and give them everything they ask for to defend their borders.' But these must be the borders that marked Israel before the 1967 war.

"The United States, President Ford, holds not 90% of the cards, as I have said before, but 99%. The position of the United States must be stated clearly. There must be a global solution that goes beyond this region."

The demand that Israel give up the territory conquered in the '67 war meets iron resistance in Jerusalem. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in a recent interview spelled out the areas that his country would insist on retaining including the Golan Heights taken from Syria, the Gaza Strip and perhaps strategic points in the Sinai.

Sadat talked with my wife, Jane, and me on the terrace of Borg el-Arab swept by a breeze from the nearby Mediterranean which tempered the desert heat. He spoke with the straightforward bluntness that is said to have impressed Ford at Salzburg. Serious yet not solemn, he spoke of "my good friend Henry" Kissinger.

"He is always welcome to come back. But I must ask what he could accomplish at this time."

This suggests a principal difference in tactics between the two sides. Rabin believes there is time for quiet diplomacy. Sadat is convinced time is running out and there must be tangible moves in the direction of peace if war is to be averted.

"Israel does not want peace. They are not capable of working out a peaceful solution. A state of war serves their purpose. It brings money from the United States.

"What was proved in the October War is that nothing is ever solved by military action. Their government is weak and divided and yet they dream of imposing their wishes on the region. Peace cannot be imposed by the United States or any other power."

PRESIDENT SADAT
. . . says U.S. government 'paralyzed' in an election year . . .

During the past year, Sadat and the half-dozen men close to him have developed friendly and forthright relations with the United States. It was at Sadat's invitation delivered a month beforehand that the U.S. Cruiser Little Rock, flagship of the Sixth Fleet, was second in the flotilla led by President Sadat at the opening of the Suez Canal.

Soviet diplomats were stunned when they saw the Little Rock move into line. With the courage he showed in ordering 20,000 Soviet technicians out of Egypt in 1972, the president has continued to curtail the Soviet presence. One result is that Moscow is pressing for repayment of Egypt's $6 billion indebtedness incurred for the purchase in the past of sophisticated weaponry.

Sadat observed that a peace settlement, whether step-by-step or overall, must be achieved in the remaining half of this year. No decision will be possible in 1976, he said. "In an election year, your government is paralyzed."

Suspecting that Israel wants to postpone any decision until well into next year, he says this simply cannot be since it courts another war.

In the present phase of no war, no peace, the U.S. ambassador here is conveying to the Egyptians the Israeli proposals for a settlement. The proposal was duly leaked in Jerusalem complete with a map showing territorial concessions. Sadat will then respond with Egypt's proposals. How far this bargaining at remote control will bridge what has appeared to be an unbridgeable gap, Sadat will not even guess.

But that these are crucial days in the fate of this temptestuous region, no one can doubt. As a wise and knowledgeable observer of this part of the world puts it, things here are never as bad as they look. Nor, he adds, are they ever as good as they happen to look.

Assassination Plots Linked To CIA

WASHINGTON — More than four years ago, we reported that the Central Intelligence Agency had become involved in the dirty business of assassinating foreign leaders. We described six attempts to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, complete with the names of the CIA agents and the Mafia figures they recruited to handle the job.

Our story was denied and denounced by CIA spokesmen. But the Rockefeller Commission has now uncovered evidence which completely confirms our story.

We have also reported that the CIA was in contact with the plotters who gunned down Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo and attempted to murder Haitian President Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier.

Now an investigative study by one of the best reporters in the business, Larry Stern, links the CIA with an assassination attempt upon Archbishop Makarios, the president of Cyprus. Stern's report will be published soon in the prestigious Foreign Policy magazine.

As Stern recounts it, Cypriot House Speaker Glafkos Clerides confronted the U.S. embassy with the charge that Eric Neff, the former CIA chief in Cyprus, had held a secret meeting in Athens with Cypriot Nikos Sampson, whose strongarm activities have been documented.

Both Neff and Sampson were known to be opposed to Makarios. Indeed, "Makarios privately complained to the U.S. embassy at Neff's open hostility to Makarios", Stern reports.

Subsequently, Sampson overthrew Makarios and put out a premature radio bulletin that the archbishop had been killed. Sampson's strongarm men, it is believed, tried to murder Makarios, who had a narrow escape.

Neff could not be reached for comment.

The destroyer escort Holt steamed to the rescue of the merchant ship Mayaguez with a jerryrigged five-inch gun. The gun had failed, a Navy spokesman acknowledged to us, because of a missing part. But he insisted it had been rigged to an alternate power source and would have fired adequately . . . Actually, the Mayaguez was the eighth U.S. commercial vessel seized on the high seas this year, according to a State Department count. The other seven were tuna fishing boats, which Ecuadorian gunboats took into custody . . .

The University of Nebraska has had two years of the biggest budget increases in its history, but you wouldn't know it from reading Max D. Larsen's article which appeared in The Lincoln Star.

In his article, the author, a dean at the university, apparently tries to build a public case for more and more state tax appropriations to the university's Lincoln campus. The author alleges, more from a basis of emotion than from fact, that the funds budgeted by the state for equipment purchases are inadequate. Governor Exon's veto actions, which I considered reasonable and appropriate, are characterized in the article by the harshest of terms, while ever greater university spending is made to appear the answer to every state problem.

While everyone has a right to his opinion, I object to the misstatements of fact that appear in the article. I do not know if the author is merely misinformed or is deliberately misleading the public. Whichever, the case, it is most disheartening that a dean is either so out of touch with the state budget process, or has such disregard for the facts, that he would write such an article.

The pertinent facts are these: (a) The University of Nebraska's tax funded budget will increase from approximately $50.8 million in 1973-74 to a comparable $74.5 million for 1975-76, a 46.6% increase over two years; (b) This increase compares Nebraska favorably to any state in the nation; (c) Some states are actually reducing tax fund support for higher education, while others are giving much smaller increases than is Nebraska; (d) The University of Nebraska-Lincoln, about which the author is most concerned, will receive an approximate 16.6% tax fund increase during the coming fiscal year.

While the author conveniently ignores these facts, he makes certain allegations which must be refuted. For example, the author writes:

"The 'equipment' budget for the university contains all monies for replacement of worn-out equipment as well as purchase of new equipment for the entire university. It is controlled centrally and allocated to colleges and departments by the chancellor. No other funds for equipment exist within the university."

The author also notes:

"The appropriation in 1974-75 (sic) for equipment for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln was reduced by line item veto by Governor Exon from $990,761 to $178,110."

The reader is thus led to believe that the only money available for UNL equipment purchases is $178,110, even though the total UNL budget is in the tens of millions of dollars. This, of course, is nonsense. The UNL budget programs generally have no restrictions which prohibit the expenditure of other funds for equipment. The allegation that UNL has only $178,110 for equipment really has no basis in fact. However, if UNL wishes to spend only that amount on equipment and spend its other funds on travel or salaries or whatever, that, of course, is its own decision. Needless to say, we shall be watching the expenditures with some interest.

The governor's line item vetoes were not made, as the article suggests, with a view toward specifically cutting the university equipment budget. (For those at the university who haven't noticed, the state has been on a program budget system, not a line item system, for about ten years.) Instead, Governor Exon sought to give university officials maximum flexibility in expenditure.

The vetoes were also guided by two other considerations. First, although he originally considered vetoing more funds from the university budget, the governor realizes the need for a sound university and is not deaf to requests for legitimate needs. Secondly, he sincerely wanted the vetoes to be sustained by the legislature in order to reduce total state spending, and thus vetoed an amount to which reasonable persons could not take serious exception. The governor was pleased that his line item reductions were sustained.

The appearance of this unfortunate article in print, to which I have felt obliged to reply in order to set the record straight, prompts me to ask if it would not be appropriate, just once, for the university to express its thanks to the taxpayers of the state for the sacrifices they make for the support of the institution, instead of always demanding more and more. This would be a welcome change.

When Nixon — then still powerful and feared — forced the resignation of Attorney General Elliot Richardson, fired his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, and fired the special Watergate investigator, Archibald Cox, the moment might have been at hand for a coup. That moment, however, was greeted by a "firestorm" of public protest, by the massed and fierce resentment of millions of aroused Americans. Nixon could have seized certain forms of power, but he could not have rested easy with them, or governed by anything but continuing force.

When the Supreme Court ruled that he had to give up his White House tapes to the second special prosecutor, Leon Jaworski, Nixon's attorneys speculated publicly and even suggested in his court brief that a president of the United States could decide for himself what the Constitution required — thus raising the possibility that Nixon would not obey the court order. But he did obey it, making his departure from office inevitable.

As that became clearer to all, Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger — a man who owed his many government posts to Richard Nixon's appointments — quietly took steps to assure that military units could not be ordered or persuaded by the White House to keep Nixon in office by force of arms. By then, too, Nixon's closest White House aides, some of them men who not only owed their positions to Nixon but who had been loyally at his side throughout the Watergate ordeal, were telling him he had no further choice but to resign the presidency or face certain conviction of the impeachment charges voted by the House.

Nixon lacked, that is, a quiescent public either unconcerned for democracy or easily gulled into swallowing fake conspiracy charges. In key positions, he lacked unquestioning and blindly obedient officials who would do whatever he ordered. He lacked either the tradition or the legal power that would have enabled him plausibly to set the Constitution aside.

But merely to cite those lacks is to recall how nearly in the years of the imperial presidency preceding Watergate, a quiescent public, pliable public officials and a flouted Constitution did combine to erode and destroy democracy in America. That near miss, as well as Mrs. Gandhi's coup, teach their own lessons.

Peace Decision Asked In Six Months

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt — President Anwar Sadat believes the situation in the Middle East is so explosive that war could erupt in the near future, he told this reporter in an interview at Borg el-Arab, his country retreat.

The Egyptian president spoke as he weighed proposals brought from Washington. But there can be no decisive action until President Ford publicly announces the results of the Middle East reassessment.

"The three-month agreement for a peace-keeping U.N. force on the Egyptian-Israeli frontier expires next month," Sadat noted. "I shall not consent to another renewal unless there is a real movement toward peace. That will greatly increase the danger."

Sadat was warm in his enthusiasm about his meeting with Ford at Salzburg. With the greatest frankness, they discussed Egypt's problems and the precarious balance between the present dubious peace and open warfare. At the same time, however, he said he understood the gravity and the difficulty of the decision the U.S. President must make.

"I told President Ford, 'keep your special relationship with Israel and give them everything they ask for to defend their borders.' But these must be the borders that marked Israel before the 1967 war.

"The United States, President Ford, holds not 90% of the cards, as I have said before, but 99%. The position of the United States must be stated clearly. There must be a global solution that goes beyond this region."

The demand that Israel give up the territory conquered in the '67 war meets iron resistance in Jerusalem. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in a recent interview spelled out the areas that his country would insist on retaining including the Golan Heights taken from Syria, the Gaza Strip and perhaps strategic points in the Sinai.

Sadat talked with my wife, Jane, and me on the terrace of Borg el-Arab swept by a breeze from the nearby Mediterranean which tempered the desert heat. He spoke with the straightforward bluntness that is said to have impressed Ford at Salzburg. Serious yet not solemn, he spoke of "my good friend Henry" Kissinger.

"He is always welcome to come back. But I must ask what he could accomplish at this time."

This suggests a principal difference in tactics between the two sides. Rabin believes there is time for quiet diplomacy. Sadat is convinced time is running out and there must be tangible moves in the direction of peace if war is to be averted.

"Israel does not want peace. They are not capable of working out a peaceful solution. A state of war serves their purpose. It brings money from the United States.

"What was proved in the October War is that nothing is ever solved by military action. Their government is weak and divided and yet they dream of imposing their wishes on the region. Peace cannot be imposed by the United States or any other power."

PRESIDENT SADAT
. . . says U.S. government 'paralyzed' in an election year . . .

During the past year, Sadat and the half-dozen men close to him have developed friendly and forthright relations with the United States. It was at Sadat's invitation delivered a month beforehand that the U.S. Cruiser Little Rock, flagship of the Sixth Fleet, was second in the flotilla led by President Sadat at the opening of the Suez Canal.

Soviet diplomats were stunned when they saw the Little Rock move into line. With the courage he showed in ordering 20,000 Soviet technicians out of Egypt in 1972, the president has continued to curtail the Soviet presence. One result is that Moscow is pressing for repayment of Egypt's $6 billion indebtedness incurred for the purchase in the past of sophisticated weaponry.

Sadat observed that a peace settlement, whether step-by-step or overall, must be achieved in the remaining half of this year. No decision will be possible in 1976, he said. "In an election year, your government is paralyzed."

Suspecting that Israel wants to postpone any decision until well into next year, he says this simply cannot be since it courts another war.

In the present phase of no war, no peace, the U.S. ambassador here is conveying to the Egyptians the Israeli proposals for a settlement. The proposal was duly leaked in Jerusalem complete with a map showing territorial concessions. Sadat will then respond with Egypt's proposals. How far this bargaining at remote control will bridge what has appeared to be an unbridgeable gap, Sadat will not even guess.

But that these are crucial days in the fate of this temptestuous region, no one can doubt. As a wise and knowledgeable observer of this part of the world puts it, things here are never as bad as they look. Nor, he adds, are they ever as good as they happen to look.

Assassination Plots Linked To CIA

WASHINGTON — More than four years ago, we reported that the Central Intelligence Agency had become involved in the dirty business of assassinating foreign leaders. We described six attempts to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro, complete with the names of the CIA agents and the Mafia figures they recruited to handle the job.

Our story was denied and denounced by CIA spokesmen. But the Rockefeller Commission has now uncovered evidence which completely confirms our story.

We have also reported that the CIA was in contact with the plotters who gunned down Dominican dictator Rafael Trujillo and attempted to murder Haitian President Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier.

Now an investigative study by one of the best reporters in the business, Larry Stern, links the CIA with an assassination attempt upon Archbishop Makarios, the president of Cyprus. Stern's report will be published soon in the prestigious Foreign Policy magazine.

As Stern recounts it, Cypriot House Speaker Glafkos Clerides confronted the U.S. embassy with the charge that Eric Neff, the former CIA chief in Cyprus, had held a secret meeting in Athens with Cypriot Nikos Sampson, whose strongarm activities have been documented.

Both Neff and Sampson were known to be opposed to Makarios. Indeed, "Makarios privately complained to the U.S. embassy at Neff's open hostility to Makarios", Stern reports.

Subsequently, Sampson overthrew Makarios and put out a premature radio bulletin that the archbishop had been killed. Sampson's strongarm men, it is believed, tried to murder Makarios, who had a narrow escape.

Neff could not be reached for comment.

Actually, the Mayaguez was the eighth U.S. commercial vessel seized on the high seas this year, according to a State Department count. The other seven were tuna fishing boats, which Ecuadorian gunboats took into custody . . .

Firing Of Boys Town Teachers Legal But 'Unethical'

Omaha (AP) — The dismissals of 19 Boys Town teachers and one administrator earlier this year were "unethical," but not illegal, according to a report from the Nebraska State Education Association.

NSEA President Philip Kaldahl, holding a news conference Monday, said the educators at Boys Town were given "no opportunity for due process and had not been informed as individuals that their performance was in any way unsatisfactory prior to receipt of the termination notices."

However, the report concedes that Boys Town is a "private educational institution, does not fall under the jurisdiction of those Nebraska statutes which guarantee 'just cause' termination of teacher employes."

The report is the result of work by a special NSEA study committee.

Kaldahl said Boys Town officials refused to participate in a May 14 hearing by the investigating committee.

Kaldahl said Boys Town officials said they are not required to provide due process because Boys Town is a private institution. But, Kaldahl added, "Now the officials are stating that they will not discuss the issues surrounding the dismissals because some of those dismissed have filed with the Nebraska Equal Opportunities Commission, which investigates discrimination in employment."

The committee also released a Boys Town memo about the dismissals. The memo, reportedly written by William Hawver, director of educational services at Boys Town, was dated last Jan. 17, and said staff adjustments were to be made to increase the student-to-staff ratios in an effort to reduce costs.

"Therefore, some staff members will be released."

"The primary rationale for such decisions is to consider each staff member's potential and ability to reach goals and objectives of the school system," the memo said.

About one month later, the 20 educators got their termination notices.

Declining enrollment and program modifications were given by Boys Town officials as the reasons for the staff reduction.

The committee concluded that the pattern of the dismissals generally followed the reasons given. However, the committee noted, "In a document entitled 'Proposed 1975 Staffing and Expenditures,' these assumptions cannot be sustained."

The committee found that from the document, proposed budget requests actually call for a net gain of two teachers for the 1975-76 school year.

The committee also found that Boys Town "advertised for teachers to fill vacancies which most of the teachers terminated were qualified to fill."

The committee concluded that Boys Town's status as a private institution "should not shelter it from responsibilities to its employes," and recommended that the terminated educators "be considered for reinstatement without prejudice, loss of seniority or appropriate benefits."

Boys Town officials were not immediately available for comment on the report.

Profs, Students Resort To Guns

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A man and a woman were killed in a shootout at the entrance of the National University of Mexico, the Red Cross reported.

"It was apparently the result of a brief clash between students and professors holding different views on university policy," a Red Cross spokesman said.

For the past two months university authorities have consistently rejected demands by student and professor groups that professors be allowed to form a union.

Reform Coalition To Seize Legislature's Attention

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Sponsors of a governmental reform initiative petition drive hope to have the Legislature's rapt attention by next January.

If the Coalition for Open Government can obtain by Christmas the signatures required to place the issue on the ballot, the Legislature would be "on notice" before it begins its 1976 deliberations, Peter Hoagland said Monday.

Hoagland is coordinator of the initiative drive sponsored by Common 'Cause-Nebraska and the Nebraska chapter of the Sierra Club.

Tighter Laws

The proposal would toughen state laws on lobbying activities, campaign financing, conflict of interest and open meetings.

"We fully intend to deal with the Legislature as much as it wants next year," Hoagland noted.

And while the coalition would be pleased if the Legislature chose to adopt most of the initiative's proposals on its own, he said, there are "some provisions on which we would be unwilling to compromise."

Petitioners need to acquire at least 31,590 valid signatures by July 1976 to place the question on the general election ballot that November. They are aiming for at least 50,000 names to be safe.

Hoagland said he is "not at all optimistic" about legislative action on the plan.

In 1975, he said, the Legislature failed to enact either of two lobbying reform bills or either of two campaign finance measures placed before it.

"Politicians are not inclined to pass legislation which regulates the activities of politicians and lobbyists," he said.

Subject To Change

Coalition spokesmen met with newsmen in Omaha and Lincoln Monday to distribute draft copies of the initiative proposal. The lengthy draft is subject to change after sponsors gauge reaction to the 700 copies which will be distributed statewide.

The draft does not include any limit on campaign spending, although it does limit the size of campaign contributions.

The limit includes $250 for statewide candidates, and $100 for legislative candidates.

The lobbying proposals include a requirement that lobbyists disclose their income from lobbying and a prohibition against executive or legislative officeholders acting as lobbyists for at least one year after they leave office.

An independent fair political practices commission would be created to help enforce the new laws.

"It's all designed to promote the accountability of public officials," Hoagland said.

"We want to see to it that public business is done publicly," First Congressional District coordinator Larry Doerr of Common Cause noted.

The initiative proposals might help assure that public bodies would be "responsive to all points of view," Marge Schlitt of the Sierra Club said.

Common Cause has helped spearhead similar drives in six other state . Once on the ballot, such statutes have never failed to get at least 65% of the vote.

Support Hoped

The coalition hopes to gain support from both the Republican and Democratic Parties and the League of Women Voters of Nebraska.

Collection of signatures will begin in September, largely in downtown areas and shopping centers.

A $5,000 budget has been outlined for the next six months.

Common Cause counts more than 1,000 members in Nebraska. The Sierra Club has about 500.

Supreme Court To Review Rice Reversal

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to review a federal court order overturning the conviction of David L. Rice in the dynamite death of an Omaha, Neb., policeman.

The court will hear arguments on the ruling of the U.S. Circuit Court in St. Louis that evidence used in the trial of Rice was illegally obtained.

Rice and Edward Poindexter were convicted of first degree murder in the death of Officer Larry D. Minard. Several other policemen were injured in the explosion which took Minard's life.

Minard was killed on Aug. 17, 1970, when a suitcase exploded as he stepped over it to enter a house in response to an anonymous telephone call saying a woman had been heard screaming there. Rice was minister of information and Poindexter was chairman of the National Committee to Combat Fascism, an offshoot of the Black Panthers.

Rice was arrested after officers found 14 sticks of dynamite, blasting caps, wiring, a battery and a pair of longnosed pliers in his home.

Police had entered the home with a search warrant and an arrest warrant for Duane Peak, a 15-year-old member of the national committee who had been identified as the anonymous caller.

The circuit court held that police did not have the right to enter the home because they did not have sufficient cause to believe that Peak was there.

In seeking review of the circuit court decision, Nebraska Atty. Gen. Paul L. Douglas asked the Supreme Court to modify the exclusionary rule under which improperly used evidence may not be used in trials.

"The time to end the era of our history when . . . heinous criminals go free because of the operation of the exclusionary rule has come," said Douglas. "It has had sufficient time to prove itself, and has failed."

'News' Says Trade Helped By Oil Cost

Dallas (UPI) — "Energy World News," published by Energy Communications Inc., says high petroleum prices have helped world trade more than hurt it.

In a recent edition, the newsletter said world trade exports in 1975 will top $1 trillion, compared to $750 billion in 1974.

The newsletter said some of the increase could be traced to inflation, but most resulted from expanded world purchasing by oil nations.

Two Omaha Abductors Captured In Kansas

Russell, Kan. (AP) — Police say a four-state crime spree ended Monday with the capture of two Omaha men near Russell following a high-speed chase by the state highway patrol and county officers.

Leonard L. Coleman, 21, and Mackie Smothers Jr., 19, both of Omaha, were held by Russell County officials on charges of exerting unauthorized control over property over $50. Warrants were issued in Iowa for their arrest and further charges were expected to be filed in Kansas.

Authorities said the crime spree included the abduction of six persons, wounding of two Council Bluffs, Iowa, men, robbery and auto theft.

When stopped, their car contained a middle-age couple and their 6-year-old grandaughter from Colorado and two Omaha women taken hostage in Council Bluffs at the time of the robbery and shooting.

Authorities said the Colorado family asked their names not be released, and the two Omaha women, identified as Kay David, 19, and Sheryl Minz, 20, were waiting in Russell for their parents to return them to Omaha.

The odyssey of crime began in Council Bluffs early Sunday when two men held up and wounded Pat Moore, 22, and Dennis Croghan, 21, at Fairmount Park, and abducted the two women. They took Miss David's car and headed west.

There were indications they crossed Nebraska and entered Colorado before doubling back into western Kansas.

At Quinter, Kan., two men drove into a service station on Interstate 70. With guns drawn, they forced 12 customers and the night attendant into a restroom and took their billfolds and keys.

They forced one of the customers, identified as Scott Tuttle, 20, of Hays, Kan., into the trunk of his car and drove on to WaKeeney, where they abducted the Colorado family and drove off in their car.

"I was standing outside the station when the men and two girls drove up," Tuttle said. "The men pulled guns and ordered about 12 persons, including myself, into the restroom and took our billfolds."

"They asked who owned the white Chevy outside, and when I said it was mine, they put a gun to my back and forced me into the trunk of the car." Tuttle added, "They also threatened to blow up the car if I tried to break out."

Tuttle said he was able to escape from the trunk at the WaKeeney park about 10 minutes after the men took the Colorado family hostage and drove away in the Colorado car.

Police in Council Bluffs said warrants had been filed there against Coleman and Smothers charging each with aggravated robbery, assault with intent to commit murder, kidnaping and larceny of a motor vehicle.

Tot Run Over By Father Dies

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha infant died in a hospital Sunday, about five hours after she was run over by a car in a parking lot at the rear of a house.

Police said Jennifer Darrough, 20 months, was run over by a car driven by her father, Jerry Darrough, 29.

Officers said Darrough drove his family to his mother's home and his wife and children got out of the car. Thinking they were clear of the car, he backed up. The girl was run over by a wheel.

The accident occurred on private property and does not count against the state's traffic fatality toll.

Investigators said Hayslett's auto slammed nearly headon into a car begin driven by Lary D. Lechtenberger, 24, of Geneva, Neb.

The accident happened on U.S. 77, about six miles north of here.

Two passengers in the Lechtenberger auto, Vaneeta J. Bauer, 23, of Lincoln, and Rebecca Keller, about 13, of Columbus, were killed in the mishap.

A third passenger, Richard Landis, 24, of Omaha, was taken to a hospital here for treatment of facial injuries, cuts and bruises. He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Lechtenberger was also taken to a hospital here, and was listed in critical condition at last report.

Hayslett and his passenger, Harvey D. Werkman, 24, also of Ft. Riley, sustained minor injuries. They were treated at a local hospital and released.

Exon Thinks Army Corps Backpedaling

Washington (AP) — Gov. J. James Exon says he is confident the Army Corps of Engineers will not declare the Platte River navigable.

After a meeting with corps officials here Monday, Exon said he believes "the corps has backed down" considerably from its previous stance.

If the corps declares the river navigable, it would have control of the Platte and smaller streams and ponds connected with the river.

Exon said it is vital to life and agriculture in Nebraska to maintain control of those tributaries and livestock ponds.

He described the legal precedent the corps has been using as "ridiculous."

The precedent has the corps claiming that fur trappers once channeled down the Platte to Iowa, and therefore the river is navigable because it was used in interstate commerce.

The governor said, "All at this conference seem to agree that that is a ridiculous interpretation."

After meeting with corps officials, Exon spent some time with Environmental Protection Agency officials.

Exon said it is clear the EPA believes the corps overreacted on the Platte River issue.

Housing Board In Omaha Gets $5.54 Million

Washington (UPI) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., Monday announced a $5.54 million grant to the Omaha Housing Authority.

McCollister said the Housing and Urban Development Department funds will be used for low-rent public housing modernization at the south side Terrace Homes project.

The project, McCollister said, includes physical improvements of grounds and exterior of the buildings, the redesigning and combining of apartments to create more living space and privacy, and the construction of a combination day care and recreation center.

McCollister said James Hanry, head of the Omaha Housing Authority, is project director.

Two Omaha Abductors Captured In Kansas

Russell, Kan (AP) — Police say a four-state crime spree ended Monday with the capture of two Omaha men near Russell following a high-speed chase by the state highway patrol and county officers

Leonard L Coleman, 21, and Mackie Smothers Jr , 19, both of Omaha, were held by Russell County officials on charges of exerting unauthorized control over property over $50 Warrants were issued in Iowa for their arrest and further charges were expected to be filed in Kansas

Authorities said the crime spree included the abduction of six persons, wounding of two Council Bluffs, Iowa, men, robbery and auto theft

When stopped, their car contained a middle-age couple and their 6-year-old grandaughter from Colorado and two Omaha women taken hostage in Council Bluffs at the time of the robbery and shooting

Authorities said the Colorado family asked their names not be released, and the two Omaha women, identified as Kay David, 19, and Sheryl Minz, 20, were waiting in Russell for their parents to return them to Omaha

The odyssey of crime began in Council Bluffs early Sunday when two men held up and wounded Pat Moore, 22, and Dennis Croghan, 21, at Fairmount Park, and abducted the two women. They took Miss David's car and headed west

There were indications they crossed Nebraska and entered Colorado before doubling back into western Kansas

At Quinter, Kan., two men drove into a service station on Interstate 70 With guns drawn, they forced 12 customers and the night attendant into a restroom and took their billfolds and keys

They forced one of the customers, identified as Scott Tuttle, 20, of Hays, Kan., into the trunk of his car and drove on to WaKeeney, where they abducted the Colorado family and drove off in their car.

"I was standing outside the station when the men and two girls drove up," Tuttle said. "The men pulled guns and ordered about 12 persons, including myself, into the restroom and took our billfolds."

"They asked who owned the white Chevy outside, and when I said it was mine, they put a gun to my back and forced me into the trunk of the car " Tuttle added, "They also threatened to blow up the car if I tried to break out."

Tuttle said he was able to escape from the trunk at the WaKeeney park about 10 minutes after the men took the Colorado family hostage and drove away in the Colorado car

Police in Council Bluffs said warrants had been filed there against Coleman and Smothers charging each with aggravated robbery, assault with intent to commit murder, kidnaping and larceny of a motor vehicle.

Tot Run Over By Father Dies

Omaha (AP) — An Omaha infant died in a hospital Sunday, about five hours after she was run over by a car in a parking lot at the rear of a house.

Police said Jennifer Darrough, 20 months, was run over by a car driven by her father, Jerry Darrough, 29.

Record Harvest Possible If Weather OK

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The effort to cut back on the number of crop-planted acres in Nebraska apparently did not greatly reduce the size of the crop that farmers intend to harvest this fall.

The June acreage report issued Monday by the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics indicates that farmers will harvest 2,980,000 acres of winter wheat, which is 1% higher than forecast on June 1, and 3% above last year.

Corn acreage is 6,480,000 acres, up 3% from March projections, but 5% below the acreage planted to corn last year. Farmers are expected to harvest more acres than they did last year, however, because the drought forced much of the corn to be abandoned or harvested for silage last year.

Grain sorghum acreage and soybeans did drop from the March 1 estimate of what farmers would plant.

Sorghum acres planted total 2,100,000, down 3% from the March report with acres intended for harvest as grain down 4%. Soybean acres planted at 1,250,000 acres are down 4% from March intentions but still 3% more than was planted of the oilseed crop last year.

Other crops included in the report are: oats, 690,000 acres; barley, 38,000 acres; rye, 130,000 acres; dry beans, 124,000 acres; sugar beets, 98,000 acres; popcorn, 50,000 acres; and, potatoes, 2,700 acres.

The nationwide figures show a predicted harvest of 66,953 million acres which could pave the way for a record harvest if the weather cooperates.

The new corn acreage indicates the largest crop since 1960.

The report shows farmers will harvest 53,590 million acres of soybeans, up 1.1 million acres from 1974 but still 1.6 million acres below the March projection of planting intentions.

The first projections of the national yield will be made on July 10.

Grain sorghum acreage for harvest was estimated to be 14,857 million acres, up 7% from last year. Oat acreage at 13,882 million acres is up 4%, and barley at 8.814 million acres is up 4% from last year.

Nebraska's two other major crops, sugar beets and dry beans, show sharp increases from last year at both the state and national level with the sugar beets up 19% and dry beans up 5% statewide. Even popcorn is up 25% in the state.

National data shows sugar beet acreage up with a planted acreage of 1,541,800 compared to 1,212,600 acres last year.

The national dry bean crop of 1,477,900 acres was down slightly from last year's crop of 1,569,700 acres.

Slayer Of 2 Now Eligible For Parole

James H. Hunter, who pleaded guilty in 1965 to the slaying here of his mother-in-law and his pregnant wife, Monday became eligible for parole.

The Nebraska Pardon Board commuted Hunter's sentence and made two consecutive life sentences run concurrently. The action means that instead of serving two life sentences for his second degree murder convictions, Hunter now has to serve only one.

John Greenholtz, Parole Board chairman, testified in favor of the board's action. He said the Pardon Board decision would not automatically mean Hunter would be paroled immediately, although he is now eligible to be freed.

There was no opposition voiced at the meeting.

Recent Rains Are Helping Nebraska Crops

Rainfall in Nebraska during the past week continued to improve crop and pasture conditions, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics reported Monday.

Winter wheat is in mostly good condition over the state, the bureau said in its weekly crop-weather report, although some wheat leaf rust and Hessian fly infestations are showing up in several areas. Over 60% of the wheat has turned to date, behind the normal rate of 85%, it was pointed out.

Corn is in mostly good to excellent condition statewide, the bureau said. Cultivation and hilling for irrigation are being done when possible between showers.

Sorghum, soybeans, alfalfa and wild hay are all reported in mostly good condition statewide. Over 95% of the first cutting of alfalfa has now been harvested.

Topsoil moisture supplies improved this past week to 76% adequate, 21% surplus and 3% short. Subsoil moisture supplies also improved from the previous week to 66% adequate, 6% surplus and 28% short.

Recent rains have also improved pasture and range-feed supplies, now said adequate in 81% of the counties reporting.

However, the July weather outlook may bring a change in Nebraska's crop picture.

The National Weather Service said Monday the upper weather patterns and the location of the jetstream had shown a gradual change toward warmer and somewhat drier weather patterns for Nebraska.

The July weather outlook for the state indicates temperature will average above normal. Normal highs in the early days of July are in the mid-80s to around 90 at the end of the month.

Moisture for July will range from below normal in the southeast half to slightly above normal in the northwest half, the NWS said.

Rainfall received during the past week, as reported by the National Weather Service, included:

Burwell	.90	Norfolk	.14
Chadron	.70	North Platte	.34
Grand Island	.61	Omaha	.68
Imperial	.23	Scottsbluff	.52

NOTICE

To all persons and all legal guardians of such persons who have since September 28, 1972, been residents of the Beatrice State Home or other State of Nebraska facilities for treatment of the mentally retarded:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Sarah A. Horacek, by her mother Margie Horacek, James J. Bonar, by his father Ronald Bonar, Georgia Mae Newton, by her mother Mabel Newton, Joseph Bauman by his mother Neva Bauman, Plaintiffs herein, filed suit on September 28, 1972, against James J. Exon, Michael D. LaMontia, Jack Anderson, M.D., William Falls, and M. E. Wyant, defendants herein to seek declaratory and injunctive relief from defendants's alleged deprivation of plaintiffs' rights secured by the first, fifth, eighth, ninth, thirteenth and fourteenth amendments to the United States Constitution.

Plaintiffs filed this action on their behalf, and as a class action on behalf of all others similarly situated. Generally, the complaint alleges that defendants have violated and continue to violate plaintiffs' aforementioned constitutional rights due to the deficient facilities and programs of the Beatrice State Home, while there existed and continue to exist superior community-based facilities and programs for the plaintiffs.

On October 24, 1972 Defendants filed a motion to Dismiss based on the allegation that Plaintiffs failed to state a cause of action and that the Court lacked jurisdiction. On March 23, 1973 the Court denied said motion.

On October 4, 1973 Defendants filed a Motion for Summary Judgment. On June 4, 1974, the Court denied said motion and certified the action as a class action.

On September 24, 1974 the Court defined the class and appointed J. Patrick Green, 707 City National Bank Bldg., Omaha, Nebraska as Guardian Ad Litem.

On March 10, 1975 the United States of America filed a motion to intervene as party plaintiff. On March 28, 1975 the Court approved said intervention.

Trial of this matter will commence at 9:00 A.M., July 21, 1975, in the Courtroom of the Honorable Albert G. Schatz located on the 9th floor of the Federal Bldg., 215 N. 17th St., Omaha, Nebraska.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, pursuant to the provisions of Rule 23 (c) (2), that:

1. The Court will exclude you from the class if you request exclusion in writing on or before the 18th day of July, 1975. Persons who request exclusion will not be entitled to share in the benefits of the judgment if it is favorable to Plaintiffs, and will not be bound by the judgment rendered in this case if it is adverse to the Plaintiffs. Requests for exclusion should be sent to the Clerk of the United States District Court, 215 N. 17th St., Omaha, Nebraska.

2. The final judgment entered in this case will include, and will be binding upon, all members of the class who do not request exclusion, whether or not the judgment is favorable to Plaintiffs. It will apply to all whom the Court ultimately finds to be members of the class.

3. If you do not request exclusion, you may, if you desire, enter an appearance through counsel of your own choosing. The Plainstiffs are represented by Bruce Mason, 1304 City National Bank Bldg., Thomas L. Moser, 1615 Howard, Omaha, Nebraska, and James D. Moser, 3202 Harney, No. 4, Omaha, Nebraska. The defendant is represented by Mel Kammerlohr, Assistant attorney General State of Nebraska, Dept. of Justice, 2119 State Capitol Bldg. If you do not request exclusion, and you do not enter an appearance through counsel of your own choosing, the above named counsel for Plaintiffs will represent your interests in this case.

Federal Hospital Inspections Said Case Of Over-Regulation

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., is criticizing an experimental federal hospital inspection program, calling it "a prime example of the unholy mess that is the federal bureaucracy and of its bent for over-regulation."

Thone said "many observers" believe the "bureaucrats" at the Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) Dept. are attempting to assume the task of inspecting and accrediting hospitals from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, an international private organization supported by physicians, other health personnel and hospital administrators.

"The new, additional program for inspecting hospitals is still in an experimental, testing stage," Thone said. "In Nebraska so far, five hospitals have been inspected. Only one of them passed the inspection."

Thone said one of the Nebraska hospitals has been forced to close and another is being "badgered to install new equipment in a wing that won't be used for patients when new construction is completed within a few months."

"Of the first 144 hospitals inspected under this program nationwide, 105 didn't pass," Thone said. "In 16 states, every hospital inspected was deemed a failure."

Thone didn't disclose particular hospital names in his weekly letter to voters, but the First District lawmaker added, the federal inspectors "are unwilling to take local situations into account."

"They are applying the same rules and regulations for a small clinic in rural Nebraska that they apply to a giant hospital in New York City," Thone said. He added Nebraska hospitals are now inspected each year by various state and federal agencies.

Nebraskan Dies In Iowa Accident

Moville, Iowa (AP) — Vincent Shenat, 18, Pender, Neb., died Monday of injuries suffered when the car he was driving collided with a truck on U.S. 20 six miles east of here.

The driver of the truck, Anthony Reichart, 33, New Berlin, Ill., was hospitalized in Sioux City.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Power Surge Damage Toll Still Growing

Valentine (AP) — Estimates of damage from a power surge that hit the Valentine area last Saturday were still being totaled up Monday, and the figure was becoming sizeable.

Cherry County authorities estimated damage to the county's communications equipment at between $4,000 and $5,000.

Several large motors owned by the City of Valentine were extensively damaged, but an estimate was not available.

The surge caused radio station KVSH, Valentine to leave the air for about two hours.

Station personnel said damage to the equipment at the KVSH transmitter totaled about $300.

The outage and resultant surge apparently began in South Dakota, and affected four or five states, a spokesman for the Northwestern Public Service Co. said Saturday.

The spokesman said equipment malfunction or a severe overload because of the weather may have caused the outage. He speculated that one service line became inoperative, forcing the power surge on other lines, producing a cascade effect.

Third City Firm To Let Land Go For Golf Course

Grand Island (UPI) — A Grand Island firm has agreed to give up 183 acres of land near the airport here for the city's proposed $471,000 municipal golf course.

Orv Qualsett, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce golf course committee, said Monday the city had reached agreement with Consolidated Blenders, Inc., with the firm agreeing to break its three-year lease agreement with the Hall County Airport Authority.

Qualsett said the land would be ready for development in October or November, with play to begin in 1977.

"This is something that has been talked about since 1955," he said, "so 1977 doesn't seem so far away."

In negotiating the release of the land, Qualsett said, Consolidated Blenders "said they understood the situation and the need to the committee and would try to find land to supplement what we are taking from them for the golf course."

He said the agreement called for the firm to receive an equal amount of land with a payment for the different between the lease agreement and the land selected.

County Wants To Know If Old Checks Are Good

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Are six-year-old checks still collectable?

That is the question being asked by Lancaster County after discovering six checks totaling $115 written to the county in 1969 plus $20 in cash which apparently had been lost in the files in the commissioners' office.

In cleaning out old files, the checks were found clipped together with the cash.

According to Lancaster County Board Chairman Jan Gauger, when the secretary discovered the misplaced funds she asked what it was and what she should do with it.

Mrs. Gauger said that available information indicated the money was for items purchased out of the old Courthouse before it was razed.

She said she contacted the county attorney who directed the board to deposit the $135 to the general fund and if the checks didn't clear to contact the individuals.

A check with the treasuer's office reveals that only one check — the largest one for $50 — has been returned.

The check was on an account which is now closed, according to the bank returning the check.

Mrs. Gauger said the commissioners would probably wait until they have official word from the treasurer's office on the checks before trying to contact the people to collect on the checks.

Lancaster County Court Clerk Don Nichols, who had written one of the checks for $5 for a folding door, said he "wrote that off a long time ago."

He said he carried it on his checkbook record for about six months and when the check was never returned, "I assumed I made a mistake in the checkbook and had given them the $5 in cash."

Included in the six uncovered checks were the $50 check, a $30 check, one $10 and one $15 check, and two $5 checks.

Greece Getting First Of Consairs

Dallas (UPI) — The Greek military began receiving aircraft this year from the Texas-based LTV Aerospace Corp.

The U.S. firm is supplying half of the 60 A-7H Consair II aircraft for the Hellenic air force. The last aircraft in the $260 million package is scheduled to arrive in Greece in 1977.

Pirate Movie Planned

Hollywood (UPI) — Universal Pictures will produce "Swashbuckler" this summer, a pirate adventure drama to be filmed in the Caribbean.

Festival To Be 14th

Schwenksville, Pa. (UPI) — The 14th annual Philadelphia Folk Festival will be held at Pool Farm here Aug. 22-24. The festival is one of the outstanding folk events in the East, predating the current vogue for folk music.

Centralized Road Maintenance Goes Ahead Despite Protests

The first step in a plan to centralize Lancaster County road maintenance operations into four districts has been taken, despite protests from county residents.

A $13,250 claim for six acres of land in Waverly was signed last week by two commissioners — Jan Gauger and Bob Colin — and will be routinely accepted along with about 100 other weekly claims by the County Board Tuesday afternoon.

The Waverly site will be the first of four locations used to test out the plan to consolidate road maintenance operations into four rather than the current 18 districts.

More than 900 county residents had signed petitions opposing the consolidation and the use of the Waverly site, and attorney Steve Burns, speaking for opposing individuals, presented the arguments against the Waverly location at two past County Board meetings.

Burns contended that the Waverly location was not a good test site for the proposed four-district system, because that section of the county does not contain a number of smaller towns, as do other quadrants.

Maintenance equipment is currently housed in 18 separate locations and residents are concerned that if equipment is moved from their towns then snow removal will be slower, Burns told the board.

But the board refused to delay the land purchase negotiations or rescind their earlier vote to purchase the Waverly land.

The claim will be handled as a routine matter and will not be voted on separately, Mrs. Gauger said.

Nuernberger plans to build a larger maintenance building on the land, where equipment for that quarter of the county will be housed.

The Engineering Department will also temporarily store all fuel now housed at the West O St. facility in Waverly. The O St. tanks are unsafe, Nuernberger said.

Fuel storage will be moved this week, Nuernberger said Monday, and bids on the maintenance facility will probably be let in August.

The land, on the north side of Waverly, was formerly a grain storage operation. It will be purchased with revenue sharing funds already allocated to update the maintenance buildings throughout the county.

County Wants To Know If Old Checks Are Good

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Are six-year-old checks still collectable?

That is the question being asked by Lancaster County after discovering six checks totaling $115 written to the county in 1969 plus $20 in cash which apparently had been lost in the files in the commissioners' office.

In cleaning out old files, the checks were found clipped together with the cash.

According to Lancaster County Board Chairman Jan Gauger, when the secretary discovered the misplaced funds she asked what it was and what she should do with it.

Mrs. Gauger said that available information indicated the money was for items purchased out of the old Courthouse before it was razed.

She said she contacted the county attorney who directed the board to deposit the $135 to the general fund and if the checks didn't clear to contact the individuals.

A check with the treasuer's office reveals that only one check — the largest one for $50 — has been returned.

The check was on an account which is now closed, according to the bank returning the check.

Mrs. Gauger said the commissioners would probably wait until they have official word from the treasurer's office on the checks before trying to contact the people to collect on the checks.

Lancaster County Court Clerk Don Nichols, who had written one of the checks for $5 for a folding door, said he "wrote that off a long time ago."

He said he carried it on his checkbook record for about six months and when the check was never returned, "I assumed I made a mistake in the checkbook and had given them the $5 in cash."

Included in the six uncovered checks were the $50 check, a $30 check, one $10 and one $15 check, and two $5 checks.

Greece Getting First Of Consairs

Dallas (UPI) — The Greek military began receiving aircraft this year from the Texas-based LTV Aerospace Corp.

The U.S. firm is supplying half of the 60 A-7H Consair II aircraft for the Hellenic air force. The last aircraft in the $260 million package is scheduled to arrive in Greece in 1977.

Pirate Movie Planned

Hollywood (UPI) — Universal Pictures will produce "Swashbuckler" this summer, a pirate adventure drama to be filmed in the Caribbean.

Festival To Be 14th

Schwenksville, Pa. (UPI) — The 14th annual Philadelphia Folk Festival will be held at Pool Farm here Aug. 22-24. The festival is one of the outstanding folk events in the East, predating the current vogue for folk music.

Centralized Road Maintenance Goes Ahead Despite Protests

The first step in a plan to centralize Lancaster County road maintenance operations into four districts has been taken, despite protests from county residents.

A $13,250 claim for six acres of land in Waverly was signed last week by two commissioners — Jan Gauger and Bob Colin — and will be routinely accepted along with about 100 other weekly claims by the County Board Tuesday afternoon.

The Waverly site will be the first of four locations used to test out the plan to consolidate road maintenance operations into four rather than the current 18 districts.

More than 900 county residents had signed petitions opposing the consolidation and the use of the Waverly site, and attorney Steve Burns, speaking for opposing individuals, presented the arguments against the Waverly location at two past County Board meetings.

Burns contended that the Waverly location was not a good test site for the proposed four-district system, because that section of the county does not contain a number of smaller towns, as do other quadrants.

Maintenance equipment is currently housed in 18 separate locations and residents are concerned that if equipment is moved from their towns then snow removal will be slower, Burns told the board.

But the board refused to delay the land purchase negotiations or rescind their earlier vote to purchase the Waverly land.

The claim will be handled as a routine matter and will not be voted on separately, Mrs. Gauger said.

Nuernberger plans to build a larger maintenance building on the land, where equipment for that quarter of the county will be housed.

The Engineering Department will also temporarily store all fuel now housed at the West O St. facility in Waverly. The O St. tanks are unsafe, Nuernberger said.

Fuel storage will be moved this week, Nuernberger said Monday, and bids on the maintenance facility will probably be let in August.

The land, on the north side of Waverly, was formerly a grain storage operation. It will be purchased with revenue sharing funds already allocated to update the maintenance buildings throughout the county.

Sun Emphasized In Energy Report

Washington (UPI) — Federal energy officials rejected the controversial nuclear breeder reactor Monday as a key power source for this century and elevated solar energy research to unprecedented prominence.

In a marked retreat from earlier emphasis on the atom, billed for years as the future's most promising energy source, they said the United States should never again place all its energy eggs in a single basket as it had done with coal and then with oil.

Instead, the Energy Research and Development Administration said in a new blueprint for energy research, the nation should work toward reliance on a more balanced mixture of three potentially inexhaustible power sources — sunlight, the breeder and nuclear fusion — in the 21st century.

ERDA officials also said basic energy costs in the United States are likely to double by the year 2000 no matter what technology is developed for the future.

They said the nation will have to keep importing oil until at least 1995 if it relies solely on conservation and technological efforts to solve the energy shortage. But, they said, changes in governemtn policy and American lifestyles coupled with technology can make energy independence a reality by 1985.

ERDA chief Dr. Robert C. Seamans Jr., presenting the new 25-year blueprint to Congress and President Ford, called for a $63 million increase in his agency's original $1.7 billion budget request for fiscal year 1976.

He said the additional money would allow stepped up research on coal utilization, conservation and improved oil production as short term solutions to energy problems and faster development of solar electrical production and advanced energy systems for the long run.

Ford agreed, saying the proposal represents "a substantial budget for an agency in its infancy" but the needs justified the spending.

Seamans said part of his plan includes a $71.2 million cut in spending next year for a program to demonstrate the commercial potential of the breeder, a reactor that creates more fuel than it burns.

N. Koreans Knock Out U.S. Major

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — A U.S. Army major was knocked unconscious by North Korean guards Monday in a fist fight in this truce village while their generals were trading charges of Korean armistice violations.

The clash, initially involving Maj. William D. Henderson and a Communist reporter, touched off a free-for-all between a dozen American and South Korean guards on one side and a larger number of North Korean soldiers on the other.

The Communist reporter, sitting next to the major on a bench, had apparently angered the major by motioning with his hand over the American's head and having a fellow photographer take a picture, witnesses said.

The major got up and said something to the reporter who then hit the major's stomach. The American officer counterpunched.

At this point, several North Korean guards knocked him down and some of them stomped on him, the witnesses said. His face was bleeding.

Henderson, acting commander of the U.S. Army support group in the joint security area, was taken aboard a helicopter to the 121st U.S. Army Evacuation Hospital in Seoul, 30 miles south of here.

He was later listed "not seriously injured" but remained in the hospital.

A military spokesman in Seoul said that his home town would not be released pending notification of next of kin.

Sgt. 1.C. Patricia Currans, a news writer assigned to the 8th U.S. Army, was also struck by a North Korean guard but not injured, an Army release said.

The United Nations Command and North Korea were meeting in the 364th session of the Joint Military Armistice Commission.

U.S. Army Maj. Gen. William Webb, speaking for the command, told his North Korean counterpart, Maj. Gen. Kim Poong-sup, that the incident outside the conference building where they were sitting resulted from tensions prevailing between the opposing sides.

Webb, however, did not make any immediate strong accusation against the Communist side over the fight in which at least another unidentified American soldier was seen bleeding in his hand and a couple of North Korean soldiers fell on the ground with their caps knocked off.

McGovern Polls Political Allies

Washington (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., is conducting a quiet poll of influential political allies to learn how they feel about suggestions he seek the Democratic presidential nomination again in 1976.

In a letter to about 50 key supporters, McGovern said, "As things stand now, I do not intend to become a candidate and I have made no efforts in behalf of any candidate."

He asked his allies whether they felt he should endorse some liberal candidate already in the field, identify any candidate "who is unacceptable" to him, or enter the presidential race on his own.

McGovern said he was seeking "thoughtful and frank advice" because of his growing concern that Democratic congressional leaders were "failing to exert strong and effective leadership."

McGovern, who won only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia in his 1972 presidential bid, said, "I am convinced it is not only essential, but also possible, to nominate and elect a progressive Democrat to the presidency next year."

He said he feared that "in too many cases, Democratic strategists are suggesting a bland, centrist, non-issue response" to President Ford's policies.

IGA PICNIC AMERICA

SAVINGS ON FOOD FOR THE 4th!

Prices effective July 1-8
We reserve the right limit.

ABC's OF PICNICKING

American style picnics celebrate almost any holiday—but the Fourth of July is the most American of them all. A picnic is a break in the routine, a time for adventure. Even familiar foods perk up with imagination and spices and seem to be more appealing at a picnic.

Take the time and effort to plan and prepare your picnic foods. The better the foods the happier the outing. Remember, cold foods must be kept cold (at 40° F. or lower) for safety's sake. This means an insulated cooler or chest and lots of ice or other refrigerants. Hot foods must be hot (above 140° F.)

Carry salad dressings and sauces separately and combine with other foods just before serving. Make and season hamburger patties before leaving home. These can be frozen and transported frozen. Usually they will thaw by cooking time and help serve as coolants for other foods packed around them. Here's one way to fix the traditional burger in untraditional way.

She's Starting A New, More Meaningful Job

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

After working in city government for a year and a half, Margaret Pearson had had enough of the bureaucratic jungle.

So she packed up her bachelor's degree in political science and abandoned her governmental career for one that is, in her words, "much more meaningful and practical."

Ms. Pearson, 26, has spent the past 10 months as an administrative intern at Bryan Memorial Hospital. In September she'll leave for the University of Minnesota where she plans to study for a master's degree in hospital administration.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Ms. Pearson said she has had an interest in hospital administration for some time. But when she entered college, she was caught up in the burgeoning student interest in political science.

After graduation, she worked as an assistant project evaluator with the city of Lincoln's Alcohol Safety Action Program — an experience she found "frustrating" and "disillusioning."

Few Women

So, Ms. Pearson decided to backtrack a few years and pick up on the career she really wanted — even though she knew that she would be entering a field populated by few women.

"Bryan was willing to hire me" as an intern despite the fact that she had had no experience in hospital administration, she said. "They've been fantastic."

"People don't think about it (a career in hospital administration) — especially women," Ms. Pearson said.

But the job opportunities are many.

In addition to serving as a hospital administrator per se, a person trained in the field can work in mental health, nursing homes, health planning and the insurance industry, to name just a few, she said.

"It's a fairly well-paying career" as well.

She said that a position as an administrative assistant — a job that is a stepping stone to hospital administration — can pay anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000 per year. And, in larger hospitals, administrators earn from $60,000 to $75,000 per year.

More Needed

Ms. Pearson expressed strong feelings about the need to get more women into the field of hospital administration.

Women make up such a large percentage of hospital personnel, she said. However, for the most part, they restrict themselves to nursing.

In the past, most women hospital administrators have been nuns employed by Catholic hospitals.

That situation is gradually changing, Ms. Pearson said. More women are going into hospital administration. But "we still have a long way to go."

Prejudice against women becoming hospital administrators is "a subtle thing," she said. Often, "men admit it; you can see it in the professional journals.

"Part of it stems from the fact that most of the physicians are men." And she added that there are potential "communications problems" between female administrators and doctors.

However, Ms. Pearson said that her experience at Bryan has been highly satisfying.

During the 10 months she has been at the hospital she has fulfilled her own personal committment to gain experience in all areas of the hospital.

"The medical aspects of the hospital intrigue me," she said, adding that many administrative officials avoid this area.

Familiarity Helps

She said she feels that "the more familiar an administrator is" with all aspects of the hospital, the better able he or she will be to understand and cope with problems that arise.

Thus far, Ms. Pearson has worked in Bryan's nursing service, management service and plant operations departments. Before she leaves for Minnesota, she plans to spend some time in the dietary, physical therapy and pharmacy areas.

She has also attended meetings of both the Bryan board and medical staff.

Part of the appeal of hospital administration is the challenge of dealing with a wide variety of people—patients, hospital personnel, physicians, the community, the hospital board, Ms. Pearson said.

And, at the risk of sounding "hokey," she said that her chosen career "is a real service and such a vital thing."

Level With Him On Past

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, I had a child out of wedlock. I never married the baby's father, but we lived together as husband and wife up until six months ago. When we decided to split up, there was no big scene and no hard feelings. He quietly moved out.

I told the people at work that my "husband" and I were splitting up. Naturally, they assumed we were getting divorced.

An attractive bachelor (one of the bosses) asked me for a date. I accepted, and we hit it off wonderfully well. One date led to another, and now we are together almost every evening and weekends.

I know he is serious about me. He asked me if I had filed for divorce yet, and I avoided giving him a straight answer. Here is where I need your help.

If I confess that I had a child out of wedlock and never married the baby's father, yet lived with him for over two years, I wonder what this other guy will think of me.

I don't want to make up any lies, but if I tell him the truth, he might think I'm a tramp. How much should I tell him?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Tell him everything. Your past doesn't necessarily make you a "tramp." Many learn and mature from past mistakes, and the fact that you don't want to lie now shows that you have both learned and matured. Level with him, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that most of the better apartment-house owners will accept a couple with dogs or cats but won't rent to a couple with a child? The most damage our 4-year-old son could do is to crayon up the walls, whereas a dog or cat could completely ruin the place.

We are sick to death of being turned away as though we were undesirables because we have a child. I am also insulted that my son is classed lower than a dumb animal. We would be willing to put up a deposit to cover any damages our little 30-pounder might do.

Print this, please. I am sure other parents of young children share my problem.

MRS. B.

DEAR MRS. B.: I sympathize, dear. But it's not only property damage that concerns apartment owners. Children sometimes make more noise than some adults can tolerate.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress with a pet peeve: women who come in with escorts and refuse to speak to me.

When I ask for their order, they ignore me, turn to their escorts and tell THEM what they want. Then the man gives the order to me. This is ridiculous.

Do women think they are too good to talk to a waitress, or what? This happens all the time, and it burns me up. Maybe if you print this, it will have some effect on women who are guilty of this humiliating practice. Thanks a lot.

BURNED

DEAR BURNED: Sorry, but according to the etiquette book, the gentleman should order for both the lady and himself. This is practiced in the more elegant and formal restaurants. But in the interest of common sense and expedience, I think it's time that moth-eaten rule was dropped.

Time To Go Pick A Mulberry Bush

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

It's the peak of the mulberry season and veteran pickers say that heavy spring rains are making the berries the juiciest in recent memory.

Farm kids and city kids alike have purple juice stains on their hands and faces, legs and feet.

Birds leave purple droppings on the top of your car and anything else left outdoors.

Mothers yell at their chidren, threatening to hang them up by their purple-stained toes if they ever again write their names with mulberry juice on their shirts.

Twyla Lidolph, Lancaster County extension agent, said she and her husband have been berry picking several times already this spring.

"They're beautiful," she testified.

Mrs. Lidolph said her family likes mulberries best fresh on ice cream, but she also suggested several recipes for jam or jelly and berry pie.

"They're always such a mess that everbody complains abut them instead of enjoying them like they should," she observed. "I guess people think that since they're so plentiful (and free) they mustn't be so good."

The wild fruit is abundant in nearly every corner of the state. Best places to find them are near fence rows where birds sit after their mulberry feasts.

If you're bringing along a whole troop, every one will want his own pail. Kids in our neighborhood used to make their own pails out of old coffee cans — washed and inspected for sharp edges and equipped with string or wire handles.

At the peak of the season — and it's just about here — take out an old blanket, quilt or sheet of plastic. Better yet, bring several and spread them under the limbs heaviest with plump, purple berries. Then shake the limbs till the berries quit raining down.

It takes only a few minutes to shake a bucket full. But it means extra time to sift out the spiders and sticks and leaves that hitch a ride.

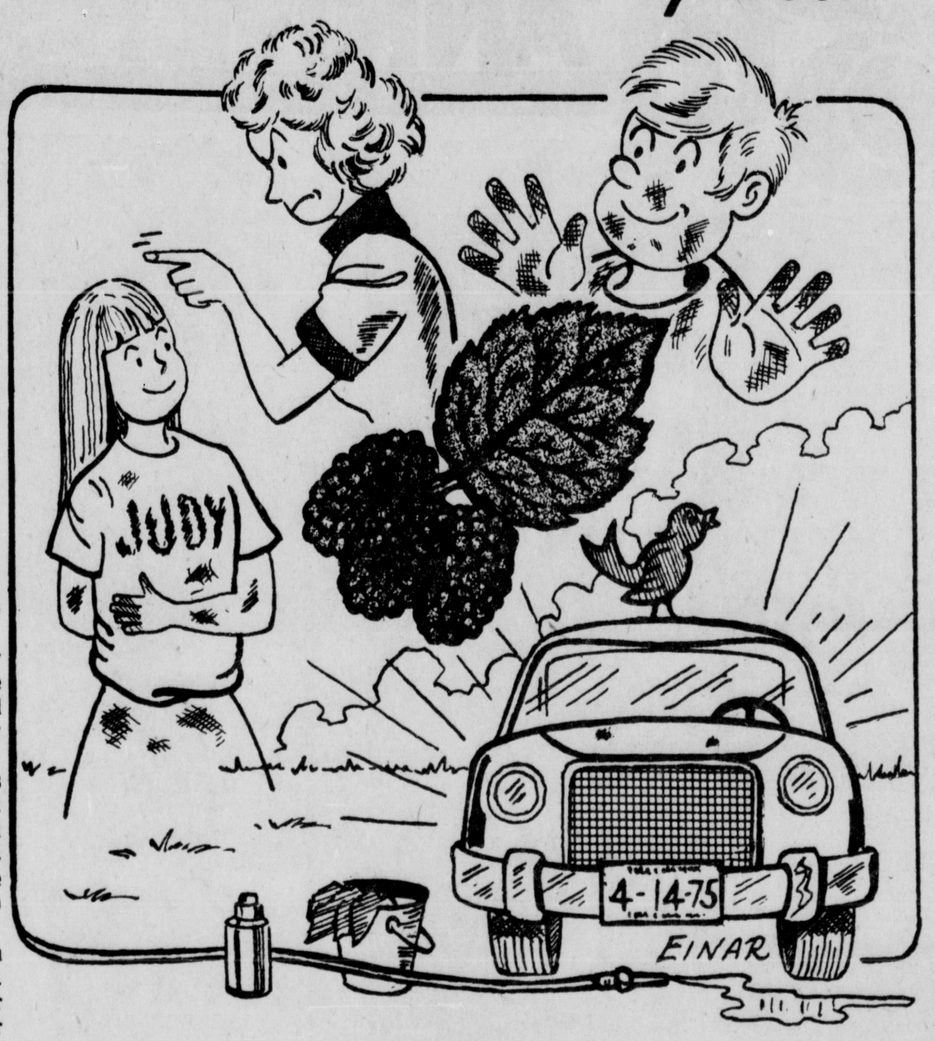
Besides offering suggestions on how to enjoy the berries you pick, Mrs. Lidolph has a few hints on how to get the juice stains out of your berry pickers.

Mulberry stains in clothing often are stubborn, but not unbeatable. The county agent recommends sponging the spot with cool water or letting the entire garment soak for half an hour, then work a detergent through and rinse.

Old or persistent stains can be rubbed with glycerine.

Mulberry picker-eaters will come clean if you rub their feet, hands and around their mouths with lemon juice, vinegar or glycerine.

Maybe now mothers won't hate so much to see the mulberry season begin. If only someone could think of a way to diaper the birds.



Mulberry Delights

Mulberry Jell

Wash and clean 2 qt. mulberries. Cover with water and cook. Strain juice.

5 cups mulberry juice
7 cups sugar
1 box Sure-Jell
3 pkgs. grape Kool-Aid (unsweetened)

Boil Sure-Jell and Juice. Add sugar and Kool-Aid. Boil 3 minutes, pour in jars and either seal or pour paraffin wax on the top.

(Mrs. Darold Hahn of Tecumseh, who submitted the recipe originally, said she uses strawberry Kool-Aid with white mulberries.)

Mulberry Pie

4 cups fresh berries
2/3 tsp. quick tapioca or 2 tbsp. cornstarch
2/3 to 1 cup sugar
1½ tbsp. lemon juice or ½ tsp. cinnamon.

Make crust for two-crust pie. Seal berries inside. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes then at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes.

Mrs. Lidolph says she also likes to use half mulberries and half cherries in pies or crisps.

Mixing Drugs With Alcohol Can Kill You

(c) Chicago Daily News

Two or three martinis a day probably won't kill you, but they can make you pretty sick, according to a University of Wisconsin physician.

The problems may be as minor as headaches and diarrhea or as severe as irregular heartbeats and high blood pressure, but they are all difficult to cure, said Dr. Richard W. Shropshire. The greatest handicap is the drinker doesn't realize his problems are caused by alcohol, he added.

"The problem is serious," explained Shropshire. "Probably no drug in common use in this country interacts with more other chemicals than alcohol."

The most common problems related to moderate drinking — from two to six drinks a day — are headaches, insomnia and irritability. Unfortunately, many drinkers don't know that their discomfort is caused by alcohol, and they often take another drink to "feel better."

Drinkers who are irritable and can't sleep often ask their doctors for tranquilizers, drugs which may interact with alcohol, Shropshire explained. If a physician prescribes these drugs without knowing the patient's regularly alcohol intake, the combination may make the person sicker.

Moderate drinking may also cause more serious illnesses which previously were thought to be caused only by chronic alcoholism, said Shropshire. High blood pressure and irregular heart beats were recently linked with regular consumption of as little as two to four drinks a day.

Other serious problems that may result from regular alcohol intake include pneumonia and disorders of the stomach, pancreas and liver, he said.

Shropshire said such complications make alcohol the third greatest killer in the United States.

Opening lead — eight of clubs.

Self-preservation is a basic law of life that also applies to various situations that occur at the bridge table.

Consider this deal where South is in six clubs and West leads a trump. Declarer sees there are no losers except perhaps in diamonds, and that all he has to do to make the slam is ruff one or two diamonds in dummy.

But if declarer gets careless, he goes down. Suppose he wins the club and attempts to cash the A-K of diamonds. West ruffs the second one, returns a trump, and down the drain goes the slam. Declarer can ruff one diamond in dummy, but not two. He must concede a diamond trick to East to hold himself to down one.

The proper way of playing the hand is to lead a diamond to the ace at trick two and next play the deuce of diamonds! The defenders are helpless against this method of play. East can win dummy's ten with the jack and return a trump, but declarer is now on Easy Street. He ruffs a diamond in dummy, thus establishing the suit, and that is the end of the affair.

It is true that declarer will often cost himself a trick by playing the hand in this fashion — if it turns out that the diamonds are divided 3-2. As a matter of fact, North may even poke fun at his partner for so blithely tossing a trick out of the window.

But the inescapable fact remains that South rings up 1,570 points on the register by deliberately giving away a 20-point trick, and at the same time nullifies the possibility of finishing with minus 100 points on the hand. The trick he gives away is simply a matter of self-preservation.

She's Starting A New, More Meaningful Job

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

After working in city government for a year and a half, Margaret Pearson had had enough of the bureaucratic jungle.

So she packed up her bachelor's degree in political science and abandoned her governmental career for one that is, in her words " much more meaningful and practical."

Ms Pearson, 26, has spent the past 10 months as an administrative intern at Bryan Memorial Hospital. In September she'll leave for the University of Minnesota where she plans to study for a master's degree in hospital administration.

A graduate of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Ms. Pearson said she has had an interest in hospital administration for some time But when she entered college, she was caught up in the burgeoning student interest in political science.

After graduation, she worked as an assistant project evaluator with the city of Lincoln's Alcohol Safety Action Program — an experience she found "frustrating" and " disillusioning "

Few Women

So, Ms Pearson decided to backtrack a few years and pick up on the career she really wanted — even though she knew that she would be entering a field populated by few women.

" Bryan was willing to hire me" as an intern despite the fact that she had had no experience in hospital administration, she said "They've been fantastic."

" People don't think about it (a career in hospital administration) -- especially women," Ms. Pearson said.

But the job opportunities are many.

In addition to serving as a hospital administrator per se, a person trained in the field can work in mental health, nursing homes health planning and the insurance industry, to name just a few, she said

" It's a fairly well-paying career" as well

She said that a position as an administrative assistant — a job that is a stepping stone to hospital administration — can pay anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000 per year. And, in larger hospitals, administrators earn from $60,000 to $75,000 per year.

More Needed

Ms Pearson expressed strong feelings about the need to get more women into the field of hospital administration.

Women make up such a large percentage of hospital personnel, she said However, for the most part, they restrict themselves to nursing

In the past, most women hospital administrators have been nuns employed by Catholic hospitals.

That situation is gradually changing, Ms. Pearson said. More women are going into hospital administration. But "we still have a long way to go "

Prejudice against women becoming hospital administrators is " a subtle thing," she said Often, "men admit it, you can see it in the professional journals.

"Part of it stems from the fact that most of the physicians are men " And she added that there are potential "communications problems" between female administrators and doctors

However, Ms Pearson said that her experience at Bryan has been highly satisfying.

During the 10 months she has been at the hospital she has fulfilled her own personal committment to gain experience in all areas of the hospital.

"The medical aspects of the hospital intrigue me," she said, adding that many administrative officials avoid this area.

Familiarity Helps

She said she feels that "the more familiar an administrator is" with all aspects of the hospital, the better able he or she will be to understand and cope with problems that arise.

Thus far, Ms. Pearson has worked in Bryan's nursing service, management service and plant operations departments. Before she leaves for Minnesota, she plans to spend some time in the dietary, physical therapy and pharmacy areas.

She has also attended meetings of both the Bryan board and medical staff.

Part of the appeal of hospital administration is the challenge of dealing with a wide variety of people—patients, hospital personnel, physicians, the community, the hospital board, Ms. Pearson said.

And, at the risk of sounding "hokey," she said that her chosen career "is a real service and such a vital thing."

Level With Him On Past

DEAR ABBY Three years ago, I had a child out of wedlock. I never married the baby's father but we lived together as husband and wife up until six months ago When we decided to split up, there was no big scene and no hard feelings. He quietly moved out

I told the people at work that my "husband" and I were splitting up Naturally, they assumed we were getting divorced

An attractive bachelor (one of the bosses) asked me for a date. I accepted, and we hit it off wonderfully well. One date led to another, and now we are together almost every evening and weekends

I know he is serious about me. He asked me if I had filed for divorce yet, and I avoided giving him a straight answer. Here is where I need your help.

If I confess that I had a child out of wedlock and never married the baby's father, yet lived with him for over two years I wonder what this other guy will think of me.

I don't want to make up any lies but if I tell him the truth, he might think I'm a tramp. How much should I tell him?

NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: Tell him everything. Your past doesn't necessarily make you a "tramp." Many learn and mature from past mistakes, and the fact that you don't want to lie now shows that you have both learned and matured. Level with him, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that most of the better apartment-house owners will accept a couple with dogs or cats but won't rent to a couple with a child? The most damage our 4-year-old son could do is to crayon up the walls, whereas a dog or cat could completely ruin the place.

We are sick to death of being turned away as though we were undesirables because we have a child I am also insulted that my son is classed lower than a dumb animal. We would be willing to put up a deposit to cover any damages our little 30-pounder might do.

Print this, please. I am sure other parents of young children share my problem.

MRS. B.

DEAR MRS. B.: I sympathize, dear. But it's not only property damage that concerns apartment owners. Children sometimes make more noise than some adults can tolerate.

DEAR ABBY: I am a waitress with a pet peeve: women who come in with escorts and refuse to speak to me.

When I ask for their order, they ignore me, turn to their escorts and tell THEM what they want. Then the man gives the order to me. This is ridiculous.

Do women think they are too good to talk to a waitress, or what? This happens all the time, and it burns me up. Maybe if you print this, it will have some effect on women who are guilty of this humiliating practice. Thanks a lot.

BURNED

DEAR BURNED: Sorry, but according to the etiquette book, the gentleman should order for both the lady and himself. This is practiced in the more elegant and formal restaurants. But in the interest of common sense and expedience, I think it's time that moth-eaten rule was dropped.

Time To Go Pick A Mulberry Bush

By LIANE GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

It's the peak of the mulberry season and veteran pickers say that heavy spring ra ns are making the berries the juiciest in recent memory.

Farm kids and city kids alike have purple juice stains on their hands and faces, legs and feet.

Birds leave purple droppings on the top of your car and anything else left outdoors.

Mothers yell at their chidren, threatening to hang them up by their purple-stained toes if they ever again write their names with mulberry juice on their shirts.

Twyla Lidolph, Lancaster County extension agent, said she and her husband have been berry picking several times already this spring.

"They're beautiful," she testified.

Mrs. Lidolph said her family likes mulberries best fresh on ice cream, but she also suggested several recipes for jam or jelly and berry pie.

"They're always such a mess that everbody complains abut them instead of enjoying them like they should," she observed. "I guess people think that since they're so plentiful (and free) they mustn't be so good."

The wild fruit is abundant in nearly every corner of the state. Best places to find them are near fence rows where birds sit after their mulberry feasts.

If you're bringing along a whole troop, every one will want his own pail. Kids in our neighborhood used to make their own pails out of old coffee cans — washed and inspected for sharp edges and equipped with string or wire handles.

At the peak of the season — and it's just about here — take out an old blanket, quilt or sheet of plastic. Better yet, bring several and spread them under the limbs heaviest with plump, purple berries. Then shake the limbs till the berries quit raining down

It takes only a few minutes to shake a bucket full. But it means extra time to sift out the spiders and sticks and leaves that hitch a ride

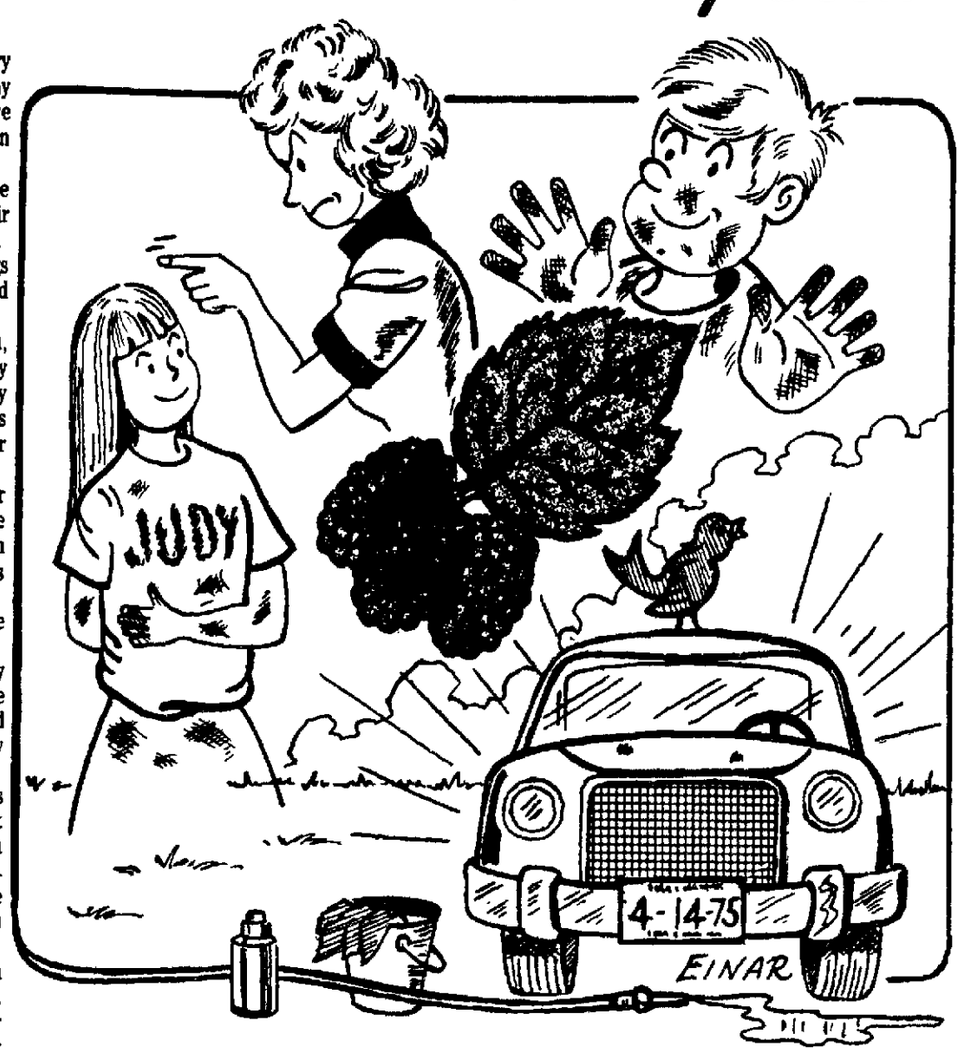
Besides offering suggestions on how to enjoy the berries you pick, Mrs Lidolph has a few hints on how to get the juice stains out of your berry pickers.

Mulberry stains in clothing often are stubborn, but not unbeatable. The county agent recommends sponging the spot with cool water or letting the entire garment soak for half an hour, then work a detergent through and rinse.

Old or persistent stains can be rubbed with glycerine.

Mulberry picker-eaters will come clean if you rub their feet, hands and around their mouths with lemon juice, vinegar or glycerine.

Maybe now mothers won't hate so much to see the mulberry season begin. If only someone could think of a way to diaper the birds.



Mulberry Delights

Mulberry Jell

Wash and clean 2 qt. mulberries. Cover with water and cook. Strain juice.

5 cups mulberry juice
7 cups sugar
1 box Sure-Jell
3 pkgs. grape Kool-Aid (unsweetened)

Boil Sure-Jell and Juice. Add sugar and Kool-Aid. Boil 3 minutes, pour in jars and either seal or pour paraffin wax on the top.

(Mrs. Darold Hahn of Tecumseh, who submitted the recipe originally, said she uses strawberry Kool-Aid with white mulberries.)

Mulberry Pie

4 cups fresh berries
2/3 tsp. quick tapioca or 2 tbsp. cornstarch
2/3 to 1 cup sugar
1½ tbsp. lemon juice or ½ tsp cinnamon.

Make crust for two-crust pie. Seal berries inside. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes then at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes.

Mrs. Lidolph says she also likes to use half mulberries and half cherries in pies or crisps.

Mixing Drugs With Alcohol Can Kill You

(c) Chicago Daily News

Two or three martinis a day probably won't kill you, but they can make you pretty sick, according to a University of Wisconsin physician.

The problems may be as minor as headaches and diarrhea or as severe as irregular heartbeats and high blood pressure, but they are all difficult to cure, said Dr. Richard W Shropshire. The greatest handicap is the drinker doesn't realize his problems are caused by alcohol, he added.

"The problem is serious," explained Shropshire. "Probably no drug in common use in this country interacts with more other chemicals than alcohol."

The most common problems related to moderate drinking — from two to six drinks a day — are headaches, insomnia and irritability. Unfortunately, many drinkers don't know that their discomfort is caused by alcohol, and they often take another drink to "feel better."

Drinkers who are irritable and can't sleep often ask their doctors for tranquilizers, drugs which may interact with alcohol, Shropshire explained. If a physician prescribes these drugs without knowing the patient's regularly alcohol intake, the combination may make the person sicker.

Moderate drinking may also cause more serious illnesses which previously were thought to be caused only by chronic alcoholism, said Shropshire. High blood pressure and irregular heart beats were recently linked with regular consumption of as little as two to four drinks a day.

Other serious problems that may result from regular alcohol intake include pneumonia and disorders of the stomach, pancreas and liver, he said.

Shropshire said such complications make alcohol the third greatest killer in the United States.

Closed Meeting Under Scrutiny

By The Associated Press

Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas said Monday that he was gathering information on a secret meeting held between the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and Athletic Director Bob Devaney.

Last week, Axtell Sen. Gary Anderson, author of the state's new open meetings law, said Douglas would have to decide whether to file charges.

Douglas said he has informed some agencies of the implications of the open meetings law and they have voluntarily agreed to comply. He said, "If a responsible body honestly thinks that they are not in violation, I think we have to give consideration before we file a complaint."

The maximum fine, if the regents were found guilty, would be $50.

Kermit Wagner, chairman of the regents, said the June 21 meeting was held to discuss a letter written by Regent Robert Prokop to Sen. George Syas of Omaha. The subject of the letter has not been disclosed.

Douglas did not say whether the regents' refusal to disclose the contents of the letter would be a factor in determining whether the alleged violation was willful.

Douglas said he hoped to have the information on the case gathered by early next week.

Red Ink Budget Forecast By Blair Telephone Co.

By The Associated Press

The Blair Telephone Co. told the Public Service Commission Monday that it would lose money if it was not given permission to raise rates.

The company, which serves 3,728 customers in Blair, Fort Calhoun and Kennard, is asking for a re-examination of a rate increase application denied several weeks ago by the commission.

John O'Hanlon, a telephone company attorney, said the company would have an operating loss under accounting practices approved by the Internal Revenue Service.

However, the commission staff has disallowed expenses that would be okayed by the IRS.

The commission took no action on the request. Commissioner Duane Gay asked the company to meet with the commission staff to discuss the validity of the company's claim of an operating deficit.

Commission Chairman Eric Rasmussen said he learned nothing Monday that was not known when the commission denied the original rate increase request.

Commission Not Planning Grain 'Skimming' Probe

By The Associated Press

Eric Rasmussen, chairman of the Public Service Commission, said Monday that the commission would not investigate "skimming" from grain shipments.

He said federal officials were working on the problem and there would be no need for a state investigation.

Last month, Rasmussen said the commission would investigate the skimming in connection with a railroad request for increased shrinkage allowances.

Nebraska elevators have suffered substantial losses on grain shipments to elevators in other states, Rasmussen said. He said he had circumstantial evidence that the weight discrepancies were caused by skimming, but he said federal investigators could come up with hard evidence.

He said federal officials should "just go in and clean house."

Lightnin' Johnson Dies; Longtime 'Club' Operator

Omaha (AP) — Nathanial (Lightnin') Johnson, operator of after-hours clubs in South Omaha, died Sunday. Acting Coroner James Keenan said he died apparently of a stroke at the age of 58.

Police said Johnson was arrested at least 50 times over the course of some 18 years of operating clubs in South Omaha. At one point, vice squad officers said they had visited Johnson's clubs at least 600 times in 18 months.

Johnson once told reporters he had paid at least $5,000 in fines, plus bonds and attorney fees running into the thousands of dollars.

Johnson finished his last jail term, a 100-day sentence in March, 1975, for providing gambling facilities, and Municipal Judge Walter Cropper ordered that a 20-day sentence for pandering be served at the same time.

The 100-day sentence followed a refusal by the U.S. Supreme Court, with Justice William O. Douglas dissenting, to review Johnson's case.

Johnson was survived by his widow, Elaine, a son and his mother, Georgia Johnson of Okmulgee, Okla.

Grand Island Windows Smashed By Vandals

Grand Island (UPI) — Vandals went on a window smashing spree in Grand Island during the past weekend, with 73 separate incidents reported, Police Chief Tom Smaha said Monday.

"This is the worst act of this type that we've had in a number of years," Smaha said. He estimated the damage in the thousands of dollars and said most of the windows were in cars, but several businesses were also hit.

He said the unfortunate part of the incidents was "that we had a number of reports of people hearing something going on, but they did not go to their window and look and phone the police."

The window smashing occurred Friday night and Saturday morning and again Saturday night and Sunday morning, Smaha said. He said police have several leads, but requested public cooperation in supplying any information about the incidents.

City-County Plan Information Center

Local officials think it's time the people had a better opportunity to find out what's going on around town. Therefore, the City Council, County Board and mayor decided Monday to open a downtown public information center.

The information center is just part of a $411,000 City-County Planning Department budget approved by the officials.

About $32,000 will pay staff and rent office space where citizens can get information on the Comprehensive Plan, now being rewritten, the proposed Centrum project, health department projects, community development projects and information about numerous other county and city services.

The Lincoln Center Development Association (LCDA) will share the costs and the office space, Planning Director Doug Brogden reported. LCDA plans to move its offices to the information center. LCDA staff can provide information on the Lincoln Center redevelopment plan.

The location for what one official called local government's public relations office has not been determined. The officials agreed the office should be accessible to the public, on the first floor, preferably along O St.

The city pays 80% of the planning department's budget, while the county pays 20%.

The city and county also approved the City-County Human Services Administrator's $49,677 budget.

Administrator Bob Clark's proposed budget was approved without a single change. He included $8,000 in the budget for cnnsulting or professional fees. The budget is split 50-50.

The City Council, County Board and mayor also approved the City-County Commission on Aging's proposed 1975-76 budget, totaling $1 million.

City and county revenue sharing dollars will help pay for the various aging programs, plus money from federal and state grands and income received from the programs.

The programs supervised by the Commission on Aging include information and Referral, nutrition, Handyman, senior handy bus, the Heritage Craft Shop, Madonna Day Care, and the homemaker program.

Director Jim Zetilow said he had cut $19,000 from the budget at the request of Mayor Helen Boosalis.

Zoning Okayed For Arnold Heights Store

Residents of Arnold Heights probably won't have to drive four miles anymore to pick up a loaf of bread and jug of milk.

Residents will be able to purchase groceries practically on their doorstep as a result of City Council approval Monday night of a zoning change to allow such an operation.

The council approved Michael McCurdy's application for a change of zone from agriculture use to local business on the west side of N.W. 48th, south of the south entrance to Lincoln Air Park West.

Members of the Arnold Heights Betterment Association and the Lincoln Housing Authority which owns houses in the old Air Base community strongly favor the construction of the store and other shopping facilitites in the northwest Lincoln area. Homeowners said they now have to drive up to four miles or more to buy groceries.

In other business the council granted State Farm Insurance Co. a change of zone from single family to local business. The action was mainly a housekeeping matter since the insurance company already built on the single family zoned land without permission several years ago.

Residents of the area voiced concern that the company would build additions closer to residential homes and said they opposed that move.

The council also:

City Council Selects Members For Boards

The City Council's appointment book picked up some new names and retained some old ones Monday night as the lawmakers approved numerous appointments to city boards and committees.

Most of the names were submitted by Mayor Helen Boosalis for council confirmation. Some were appointed by the mayor alone, and others by the council alone.

One such group is the new Woods Park Tennis Advisory Committee, created by the council to study the construction of an indoor tennis complex at the city-owned park at 33rd and J St. A number of citizens are backing the plans, headed by the Lincoln Tennis Association.

The six-member committee is charged with coming up with more facts, figures and recommendations on how to procede with the venture.

The Lincoln Tennis Association appointed Joy Rodenburg and Jack Eidswick, Mayor Boosalis appointed Parks and Recreation Board members Clancy Woolman and Phyllis Pauley, while the council named Natalie Clark and Eames Irvin.

The council also named nine members to serve on the Cable Television Advisory Board, a group created this winter to monitor and help advise the owners of the cable television station. The city approves the company's franchise.

Appointed by Mayor Boosalis were Charles Levy, who will represent the county, and Betty Dyer. The council appointed Jim Nissen, Paul Jensen, Allen Yates, Ron Kurtenbach, Owen Beach, Neal Westphal and Richard Nesmith.

In other appointments, the council named Richard Clarence to the Water Advisory Board, replacing Dave Gowans.

The council appointed Maurice Baker to the Library Board, replacing Sam Marchese who resigned.

The council reappointed Chlore Hardy, Jerome Judt, Bob Robbins, Marge Schlitt and Allen McDowell to the Street Planning Committee, and named Ronald Griess and Ralph Giebelhaus to serve on that committee.

Toaster Ignites Damaging Fire

A fire which started in a toaster did considerable damage to a house at 2900 O'Reilly Dr. Monday morning, fire officials said.

Firemen said a short in a toaster ignited some nearby nylon drapes, and flames spread throughout the kitchen. Smoke damaged the rest of the house, which is owned by Richard Chapin.

No one was injured in the fire.

Hispanic Action Coalition Formed

©The New York Times

Chicago — A national organization for political and economic advancement of Hispanic Americans has been announced by Mayor Maurice A. Ferre of Miami.

The new organization, called the American Coalition for Hispanic Action, "will give us common identity and diminish divisions that have for decades hampered our advancement," Ferre said.

"We have been on the bottom of the totem pole for too long," said the 40-year-old mayor. "The only weapon that 15 million Spanish-speaking Americans have is political pressure and militancy. The time is now."

Ferre, the only Hispanic mayor of a major American city, made his comments in a speech to 500 Latin businessmen and politicians at a banquet of the Cuban American Chamber of Commerce of Chicago.

Ferre, who had been making plans for the new national organization for 18 months, chose Chicago for his announcement because he believes it has the best conditions to be a major nucleus of the new group.

With a Spanish-speaking population estimated at more than 600,000, Chicago has the nation's second largest Mexican population after Los Angeles, the second largest Puerto Rican population after New York and the third largest Cuban population after Miami and New York, as well as a sizable group of Ecuadorians, Colombians, Nicaraguans and others.

Even though the Democratic political machine of Mayor Richard J. Daley can count on most of the Hispanic vote here, there are few elected Spanish-speaking officials and policemen in Chicago.

Despite its numerical strength, Ferre said, the nation's Hispanic community has been able to elect only two governors, one U.S. senator, fewer than a dozen representatives and one mayor, all Democrats except for one representative.

According to government statistics, persons of Spanish origin are also economically and socially behind whites and, in many areas, blacks.

Hispanic schoolchildren, statistics show, have the highest dropout rate in the nation. Many of them speak little or no English.

Bilingual education, made mandatory by a Supreme Court decision, has reportedly made limited progress in major cities.

"There is no organization to demand the rights of a New York Puerto Rican boy who drops out of school because he doesn't understand English," Ferre said. "There is no Hispanic Urban League, no NAACP or B'nai B'rith. This is where we have to come in."

Solzhenitsyn Says Detente 2-Way Street

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nobel Prize-winning author Alexander Solzhenitsyn warned Americans Monday night not to be misled by detente with the Soviet Union, saying there has been no change in the "inhumane ideology" of Russian leaders since the Stalin era.

Detente is needed, Solzhenitsyn said, but not in its present form where the Western governments eventually give in to Soviet demands without gaining any major concessions.

The bearded author, who was exiled from the Soviet Union in early 1974, spoke for an hour and a half at a dinner in his honor given by the AFL-CIO. It was his first formal address in this country.

He painted a grim picture of life in Russia — of mass murder, imprisonment in forced labor camps and constant surveillance with no enjoyment of any personal freedom. "The Soviet system is so closed that it is almost impossible to understand it here," he said.

Speaking in his native tongue with simultaneous translation into English, Solzhenitsyn urged the United States to "help the process of liberation" by slowing down the process of concession to the Soviet government.

In negotiating detente, the policy of the Western powers has evolved into a process of "short-sighted concession" whereby the West has constantly given in little by little in the hope that the "wolf will have eaten enough."

For meaningful detente, he said, the Soviets must agree to abandon both the use of war and violence; that it not be based on verbal concessions but on "firm foundations" and that ideological warfare be abandoned.

Solzhenitsyn urged his audience, composed mostly of trade union officials and a sprinkling of present and former Cabinet officers, including Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, not to be afraid of speaking out against Soviet repression of intellectuals and other dissidents.

"Interfere more and more," he said. "Interfere as much as you can."

Solzhenitsyn, who emerged as Russia's greatest living novelist and a symbolic champion for dissident Soviet intellectuals, is completing a visit to this country. He most recently visited Russian settlements in Canada and Alaska and had done some research at Stanford University.

In inviting Solzhenitsyn, AFL-CIO President George Meany told the author that "with all free men everywhere, the American trade union movement has followed with deep concern and admiration your courageous struggle for intellectual and human freedom against frightful odds."

The author spent eight years in a forced labor camp during the era of Joseph Stalin. His book, "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," told of the vast Soviet prison camp system.

Far-Out Galaxy Is 8 Billion Years Old

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Confirmation of a new galaxy five to 10 times larger than the Milky Way and containing trillions of stars was reported Monday by a University of California astronomer.

Known only as "3C123," its radio-wave identification number, the light cast by the huge galaxy and photographed by Prof. Hyron Spinrad is estimated to have been generated eight billion years ago.

"That means the light we are seeing from the galaxy has been traveling through space at six trillion miles a year for eight billion years," said Ray Colvig, spokesman for the university.

Radio waves from the suspected galaxy were first detected 20 years ago by British scientists at Cambridge University. The first photographs of its faint image were recorded within the last two years by scientists at Mt. Palomar, Calif., using a 200-inch telescope — the largest in the world.

However, vital information on the galaxy's exact distance, size and speed were lacking until Spinrad's findings with his sensitive instruments.

Spinrad photographed the galaxy, located in the northern autumn sky near the constellation "Pleidaes," last fall using the powerful 120-inch telescope at Lick Observatory atop Mt. Hamilton.

In addition to the telescope, Spinrad made spectroscopic studies and used an electronic image magnification system developed by three Lick Observatory scientists. The astronomer said he was able to see further than any scientists before by using a device which filtered out back lighting.

The most distant known galaxy before Spinrad's discovery was one sighted in 1960 some five billion light years from earth — little more than half the distance of the newly discovered galaxy.

Spinrad said the massive galaxy is moving away from earth at about 2.7 trillion miles per year and is one million times fainter than any object visible to the naked eye.

Colvig said its discovery is seen as further support for the "big bang" theory of the galaxy's creation, which astronomers estimate to have taken place roughly 16 billion years ago. According to the theory, all galaxies have been moving apart since a huge explosion 16 billion years ago.

Texas Tickets Many

Austin (UPI) — The Texas Department of Public Safety says its officers issued more than 675,000 speeding tickets in 1974, the first year of the federally mandated 55 mile per hour speed limit law. DPS officials said in 1973, only 307,000 speeding tickets were issued on Texas streets and highways. Highway deaths decreased from 3,692 killed in 1973 to 3,042 in 1974.

City-County Plan Information Center

Local officials think it's time the people had a better opportunity to find out what's going on around town Therefore the City Council County Board and mayor decided Monday to open a downtown public information center

The information center is just part of a $411,000 City-County Planning Department budget approved by the officials

About $32 000 will pay staff and rent office space where citizens can get information on the Comprehensive Plan, now being rewritten, the proposed Centrum project, health department projects, community development projects and information about numerous other county and city services

The Lincoln Center Development Association (LCDA) will share the costs and the office space Planning Director Doug Brogden reported LCDA plans to move its offices to the information center LCDA staff can provide information on the Lincoln Center redevelopment plan

The location for what one official called local government's public relations office has not been determined The officials agreed the office should be accessible to the public on the first floor preferably along O St

The city pays 80% of the planning department's budget, while the county pays 20%

The city and county also approved the City-County Human Services Administrator's $49,677 budget

Administrator Bob Clark's proposed budget was approved without a single change He included $8,000 in the budget for consulting or professional fees The budget is split 50-50

The City Council, County Board and mayor also approved the City-County Commission on Aging's proposed 1975-76 budget, totaling $1 million

City and county revenue sharing dollars will help pay for the various aging programs, plus money from federal and state grands and income received from the programs

The programs supervised by the Commission on Aging include information and Referral, nutrition, Handyman, senior handy bus the Heritage Craft Shop, Madonna Day Care, and the homemaker program

Director Jim Zetilow said he had cut $19,000 from the budget at the request of Mayor Helen Boosalis

Zoning Okayed For Arnold Heights Store

Residents of Arnold Heights probably won't have to drive four miles anymore to pick up a loaf of bread and jug of milk

Residents will be able to purchase groceries practically on their doorstep as a result of City Council approval Monday night of a zoning change to allow such an operation

The council approved Michael McCurdy s application for a change of zone from agriculture use to local business on the west side of N W 48th south of the south entrance to Lincoln Air Park West

Members of the Arnold Heights Betterment Association and the Lincoln Housing Authority which owns houses in the old Air Base community strongly favor the construction of the store and other shopping facilities in the northwest Lincoln area Homeowners said they now have to drive up to four miles or more to buy groceries

In other business the council granted State Farm Insurance Co a change of zone from single family to local business The action was mainly a housekeeping matter since the insurance company already built on the single family zoned land without permission several years ago

Residents of the area voiced concern that the company would build additions closer to residential homes and said they opposed that move

Life Begins At Forty:

Course Promotes Active Retirement

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION:—"My wife and I belong to a bridge-dinner club. All of the men in the group are nearing retirement age, and we talk a lot about preparing for retirement. The other day I got the idea that we should do something, and I wonder if you know of any course that we could get into — a correspondence course of one of these newfangled tape-recorder courses which would provide tapes we could all listen to and discuss, or something of that nature."

ANSWER: — Recreation, not retirement, could be just the ticket for you and your group. This course meets once a week for two hours. The course coordinator, Mary Gena Knopf of the School of Continuing Studies of the University of Miami, has invited guest experts to talk to the class each Thursday night; discussion follows.

The subjects for the various sessions of the course are: psychological advantages of growing older; health guidelines; finance and tax answers; Social Security benefits and health insurance; sexuality; the joy of sex; new faces, new places.

The kernel of truth from which this course has grown into a flowering plant is this: Retire means to withdraw from active life, to go away. Re-create is restore, refresh, give new life.

The course taps a variety of community resources in a way that your group could easily do for yourselves. You already have a meeting place and a set time of meeting.

You could surely find a lawyer, a doctor, an insurance agent, a banker or tax consultant, a psychologist or other expert on the psychology of aging, and another creative thinker who could deal with some of the problems of moving into new areas of activity, experiencing new places to visit exploring changes in life-style, an so on.

Ms. Knopf says any group can do a course like this, gearing it to their own particular concerns and using the unique resources of their own community.

If you wanted to invite more than just your club, it should be easy to get a neighborhood church to let you use the parish hall one night a week for six weeks.

One word of caution, though. If you do decide to appeal to a larger constituency than your bridge club, Ms. Knopf warns that you must get media cooperation in publicizing the course; no matter how good the course looks on paper, the word has to get out to potential participants.

The first go-round of this course at the university drew 19 students.

The Institute of Gerontology of theUniversity of Michigan at Ann Arbor has a collection of pre-retirement education publications and films. An inquiry to that institute will bring you a list of their offerings and the costs.

CARMICHAEL

POSTCARD

by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — A sunny day and we're packing for Canada. ("Have you seen my new white shirt? You sent it to the laundry?")

Travel sets in motion a whole bunch of money. It's not the original ticket, it's the upkeep. It will take five tips to get me from home to a hotel room in Montreal.

Like a new car, it's the extras that kill you: The white sidewalls, the radio and the racing streaks.

My neighborhood movies catches me with popcorn (75 cents) at the intermission. The supermarket gets me with the impulse basket of smoked oysters at the checkout counter. (Who needs smoked oysters?)

I tip the bellboy for carrying my bags and order ice. Another bellman brings it up. Half a buck.

☆ ☆ ☆

Airlines now charge a dollar for the before-dinner martini. Two dollars and a half for the movie earphones.

An airline man said: "Our international agreements make us charge for earphones. On the basis that we must not compete with foreign airlines with free phones.

"Nothing said about their competition with us. Their governments pick up the tab if they lose money."

☆ ☆ ☆

We pack with much trauma. ("I can't find my pajamas!") I haul a pair of moppets with me. I rent the earphones and plug them in. Flying movies are the greatest thing since Mr. Patterson invented the stewardess.

Sad to say, only one child still flies at half fare. And that ends this year.

☆ ☆ ☆

There are compensations. The youngest boy used to get car sick. How he could get sick on a stable jet airplane was beyond me.

He didn't get sick on the airplane. He got sick when he got off. Usually at a critical time when we were in the Customs line.

He gave warning — if you knew how to read the signs and I soon learned.

He grew silent. He turned a pastel green. He sighed. Then — whoops!

I solved this by having him wear a big cowboy hat. When he reached the right shade of green, I snatched off his hat and held it under his mouth. Then I went in the bathroom and threw the hat away.

It had an advantage. The process was horrid. What with the hat and all. Most people moved away into another line. We were first through Customs.

☆ ☆ ☆

These children grew up on jets. Once on a feeder line, I put them on a DC-3 piston job. They couldn't believe it.

"It's so small," they said. (I can remember when a DC-3 went down, we headlined it: "Crash of Giant Airliner.")

They grew up on airborne movies and occasionally first-class dinners with caviar. When we had a dog, they brought home airline doggy bags. There's a sturdy bag in the back of the seat for airsickness. You stuff the leftovers in that.

Hispanic Action Coalition Formed

©The New York Times

Chicago — A national organization for political and economic advancement of Hispanic Americans has been announced by Mayor Maurice A. Ferre of Miami

The new organization, called the American Coalition for Hispanic Action, "will give us common identity and diminish divisions that have for decades hampered our advancement," Ferre said

"We have been on the bottom of the totem pole for too long," said the 40-year-old mayor. "The only weapon that 15 million Spanish-speaking Americans have is political pressure and militancy The time is now"

Ferre, the only Hispanic mayor of a major American city, made his comments in a speech to 500 Latin businessmen and politicians at a banquet of the Cuban American Chamber of Commerce of Chicago

Ferre, who had been making plans for the new national organization for 18 months, chose Chicago for his announcement because he believes it has the best conditions to be a major nucleus of the new group

With a Spanish-speaking population estimated at more than 600,000, Chicago has the nation's second largest Mexican population after Los Angeles, the second largest Puerto Rican population after New York and the third largest Cuban population after Miami and New York, as well as a sizable group of Ecuadorians, Colombians, Nicaraguans and others.

Even though the Democratic political machine of Mayor Richard J. Daley can count on most of the Hispanic vote here, there are few elected Spanish-speaking officials and policemen in Chicago.

Despite its numerical strength, Ferre said, the nation's Hispanic community has been able to elect only two governors, one U S. senator, fewer than a dozen representatives and one mayor, all Democrats except for one representative.

According to government statistics, persons of Spanish origin are also economically and socially behind whites and, in many areas, blacks

Hispanic schoolchildren, statistics show, have the highest dropout rate in the nation Many of them speak little or no English

Bilingual education, made mandatory by a Supreme Court decision, has reportedly made limited progress in major cities.

"There is no organization to demand the rights of a New York Puerto Rican boy who drops out of school because he doesn't understand English," Ferre said "There is no Hispanic Urban League, no NAACP or B'nai B rith This is where we have to come in"

Solzhenitsyn Says Detente 2-Way Street

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nobel Prize-winning author Alexander Solzhenitsyn warned Americans Monday night not to be misled by detente with the Soviet Union, saying there has been no change in the "inhumane ideology" of Russian leaders since the Stalin era

Detente is needed, Solzhenitsyn said, but not in its present form where the Western governments eventually give in to Soviet demands without gaining any major concessions

The bearded author, who was exiled from the Soviet Union in early 1974, spoke for an hour and a half at a dinner in his honor given by the AFL-CIO It was his first formal address in this country

He painted a grim picture of life in Russia — of mass murder, imprisonment in forced labor camps and constant surveillance with no enjoyment of any personal freedom "The Soviet system is so closed that it is almost impossible to understand it here," he said

Speaking in his native tongue with simultaneous translation into English, Solzhenitsyn urged the United States to "help the process of liberation" by slowing down the process of concession to the Soviet government

In negotiating detente, the policy of the Western powers has evolved into a process of "short-sighted concession" whereby the West has constantly given in little by little in the hope that the wolf will have eaten enough"

For meaningful detente, he said, the Soviets must agree to abandon both the use of war and violence, that it not be based on verbal concessions but on "firm foundations" and that ideological warfare be abandoned

Solzhenitsyn urged his audience, composed mostly of trade union officials and a sprinkling of present and former Cabinet officers, including Defense Secretary James R Schlesinger, not to be afraid of speaking out against Soviet repression of intellectuals and other dissidents

"Interfere more and more," he said "Interfere as much as you can"

Solzhenitsyn, who emerged as Russia's greatest living novelist and a symbolic champion for dissident Soviet intellectuals, is completing a visit to this country He most recently visited Russian settlements in Canada and Alaska and had done some research at Stanford University

In inviting Solzhenitsyn, AFL-CIO President George Meany told the author that "with all free men everywhere, the American trade union movement has followed with deep concern and admiration your courageous struggle for intellectual and human freedom against frightful odds"

The author spent eight years in a forced labor camp during the era of Joseph Stalin. His book, "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," told of the vast Soviet prison camp system

Far-Out Galaxy Is 8 Billion Years Old

BERKELEY, Calif (AP) — Confirmation of a new galaxy five to 10 times larger than the Milky Way and containing trillions of stars was reported Monday by a University of California astronomer

Known only as "3C123," its radio-wave identification number, the light cast by the huge galaxy and photographed by Prof Hyron Spinrad is estimated to have been generated eight billion years ago

"That means the light we are seeing from the galaxy has been traveling through space at six trillion miles a year for eight billion years," said Ray Colvig, spokesman for the university

Radio waves from the suspected galaxy were first detected 20 years ago by British scientists at Cambridge University. The first photographs of its faint image were recorded within the last two years by scientists at Mt. Palomar, Calif., using a 200-inch telescope — the largest in the world.

However, vital information on the galaxy's exact distance, size and speed were lacking until Spinrad's findings with his sensitive instruments.

Spinrad photographed the galaxy, located in the northern autumn sky near the constellation "Pleidaes," last fall using the powerful 120-inch telescope at Lick Observatory atop Mt Hamilton

In addition to the telescope, Spinrad made spectroscopic studies and used an electronic image magnification system developed by three Lick Observatory scientists. The astronomer said he was able to see further than any scientists before by using a device which filtered out back lighting

The most distant known galaxy before Spinrad's discovery was one sighted in 1960 some five billion light years from earth — little more than half the distance of the newly discovered galaxy.

Spinrad said the massive galaxy is moving away from earth at about 2.7 trillion miles per year and is one million times fainter than any object visible to the naked eye.

Colvig said its discovery is seen as further support for the "big bang" theory of the galaxy's creation, which astronomers estimate to have taken place roughly 16 billion years ago. According to the theory, all galaxies have been moving apart since a huge explosion 16 billion years ago.

Texas Tickets Many

Austin (UPI) — The Texas Department of Public Safety says its officers issued more than 675,000 speeding tickets in 1974, the first year of the federally mandated 55 mile per hour speed limit law. DPS officials said in 1973, only 307,000 speeding tickets were issued on Texas streets and highways. Highway deaths decreased from 3,692 killed in 1973 to 3,042 in 1974.

Life Begins At Forty:

Course Promotes Active Retirement

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION — "My wife and I belong to a bridge-dinner club All of the men in the group are nearing retirement age, and we talk a lot about preparing for retirement The other day I got the idea that we should do something, and I wonder if you know of any course that we could get into — a correspondence course of one of these newfangled tape-recorder courses which would provide tapes we could all listen to and discuss, or something of that nature"

ANSWER: — Recreation, not retirement, could be just the ticket for you and your group This course meets once a week for two hours The course coordinator, Mary Gena Knopf of the School of Continuing Studies of the University of Miami, has invited guest experts to talk to the class each Thursday night, discussion follows

The subjects for the various sessions of the course are psychological advantages of growing older, health guidelines; finance and tax answers, Social Security benefits and health insurance, sexuality, the joy of sex, new faces, new places

The kernel of truth from which this course has grown into a flowering plant is this Retire means to withdraw from active life, to go away Re-create is restore refresh give new life

The course taps a variety of community resources in a way that your group could easily do for yourselves You already have a meeting place and a set time of meeting

You could surely find a lawyer, a doctor, an insurance agent, a banker or tax consultant, a psychologist or other expert on the psychology of aging, and another creative thinker who could deal with some of the problems of moving into new areas of activity, experiencing new places to visit exploring changes in life-style, an so on

Ms Knopf says any group can do a course like this, gearing it to their own particular concerns and using the unique resources of their own community

If you wanted to invite more than just your club, it should be easy to get a neighborhood church to let you use the parish hall one night a week for six weeks

One word of caution, though If you do decide to appeal to a larger constituency than your bridge club, Ms. Knopf warns that you must get media cooperation in publicizing the course, no matter how good the course looks on paper, the word has to get out to potential participants

The first go-round of this course at the university drew 19 students

The Institute of Gerontology of theUniversity of Michigan at Ann Arbor has a collection of pre-retirement education publications and films An inquiry to that institute will bring you a list of their offerings and the costs

San Francisco — A sunny day and we're packing for Canada ("Have you seen my new white shirt? You sent it to the laundry")

Travel sets in motion a whole bunch of money It's not the original ticket, it's the upkeep It will take five tips to get me from home to a hotel room in Montreal

Like a new car, it's the extras that kill you The white sidewalls, the radio and the racing streaks

My neighborhood movies catches me with popcorn (75 cents) at the intermission The supermarket gets me with the impulse basket of smoked oysters at the checkout counter (Who needs smoked oysters?)

I tip the bellboy for carrying my bags and order ice Another bellman brings it up Half a buck

☆ ☆ ☆

Airlines now charge a dollar for the before-dinner martini Two dollars and a half for the movie earphones

An airline man said Our international agreements make us charge for earphones On the basis that we must not compete with foreign airlines with free phones

"Nothing said about their competition with us Their governments pick up the tab if they lose money"

☆ ☆ ☆

We pack with much trauma ("I can't find my pajamas") I haul a pair of moppets with me I rent the earphones and plug them in Flying movies are the greatest thing since Mr Patterson invented the stewardess

Sad to say, only one child still flies at half fare And that ends this year

☆ ☆ ☆

There are compensations The youngest boy used to get car sick How he could get sick on a stable jet airplane was beyond me

He didn't get sick on the airplane He got sick when he got off Usually at a critical time when we were in the Customs line

He gave warning — if you knew how to read the signs and I soon learned

He grew silent He turned a pastel green He sighed Then — whoops'

I solved this by having him wear a big cowboy hat When he reached the right shade of green, I snatched off his hat and held it under his mouth Then I went in the bathroom and threw the hat away

It had an advantage The process was horrid What with the hat and all Most people moved away into another line We were first through Customs

☆ ☆ ☆

These children grew up on jets Once on a feeder line, I put them on a DC-3 piston job. They couldn't believe it

"It's so small," they said (I can remember when a DC-3 went down, we headlined it "Crash of Giant Airliner")

They grew up on airborne movies and occasionally first-class dinners with caviar When we had a dog, they brought home airline doggy bags. There's a sturdy bag in the back of the seat for airsickness You stuff the leftovers in that.

Ann Landers To Be Divorced

Chicago (AP) — Syndicated columnist Ann Landers, who offers advice on personal problems to millions of newspaper readers across the nation, says that she and her husband of 36 years will be divorced.

Ann Landers, 57, the pen name for Mrs. Jules Lederer, acknowledged in the column, which appeared in Tuesday's Chicago Sun-Times, that "the lady with all the answers does not know the answer to this one."

She wrote: "The sad, incredible fact is that after 36 years of marriage Jules and I are being divorced. As I write these words, it is as if I am referring to a letter from a reader. It seems unreal that I am writing about my own marriage."

The columnist for Field Newspapers Syndicate of Chicago, married Lederer on July 2, 1939. They have one daughter.

She did not say why they were divorcing and asked readers not to write or call for details.

Nobel Laureate Has New Cancer Theory

New York (UPI) — Dr. Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, one of the world's most distinguished biochemists, has come up with a new "electromagnetic theory of cancer."

He hopes it will lead to a better understanding of cancer and its cure.

He formally reported on the theory Thursday in Lindau, Germany, at the triennial meeting of Nobel laureates. Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi received the Nobel Prize for physiology and medicine in 1937, based on his discovery of Vitamin C.

In the research sponsored by the National Foundation for Cancer Research in Bethesda, Md., Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi, 82, established that the cell is a complex computer and that cancer appears to stem from disturbances in the flow of a transfer electron.

An electron transfer unit is missing. This particular one is the one that gives the cell messages to stop growing. When the unit isn't missing cell growth is controlled within normal limits.

When it is missing the cell continues to grow — as in cancer, often described as uncontrolled or wild growth.

Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi works at the National Foundation's laboratory in space rented from the Maritime Biological Laboratorids in Woods Hole, Mass.

His theory is that the missing transfer units — proteins — can be replaced, perhaps by a pill or injection. In which case, according to the theory, uncontrolled growth would cease.

Franklin C. Salisbury, executive director of the National Foundation for Cancer Research, said the foundation to support Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi's work was established three years ago when he ran into difficulty getting funds to continue his research into the electromagnetic theory of cancer.

Salisbury said the budget is $300,000 a year and the money comes from more than 25,000 member-donors.

Should Public Service Unit Be Elective Or Appointive?

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The time has come to consider transforming the Public Service Commission from an elective to an appointive body, Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said Monday.

"I've given some thought to it, and I think we ought to give it some serious consideration," he declared.

"I plan to do some looking into it on my own before the Legislature convenes next year."

Vote Of People

It would take a constitutional amendment and a favorable vote of the people to make the controversial state agency an appointive commission.

Such a change was recommended by the Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission in 1970, and placed before the 1971 Legislature in the form of a bill.

In view of recent events, including the firing and subsequent rehiring of Gerald Sasek, a rate engineer, "it is time to look again" at the appointive commission proposal, Anderson said.

What makes the issue "somewhat of an open question" is the performance of "one member of the commission who, in my opinion, has made a serious effort to make it work like it is supposed to," the senator said.

"His performance makes it seem like maybe the thing could work this way."

Anderson identified the one member as Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont.

Victory For Utilities

It was Rasmussen who publicly suggested that the majority vote originally firing Sasek represented a victory for telephone utilities regulated by the commission.

Sasek had been instrumental in critical rate and service investigation of telephone companies.

The 1971 bill never made it to the floor, dying on a 6-0 vote of the Constitutional Revision Committee after a flood of opposition testimony from businesses regulated by the commission.

Opponents included the Nebraska Motor Carriers, the Nebraska Telephone Assn., the Nebraska Railroads Assn., the Nebraska Sand, Gravel and Ready Mix Assn., the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation and the Democratic Party.

The bill would have provided for appointment by the governor with confirmation by the Legislature.

The size of the commission, from three to five members, and terms of office would have been determined by the Legislature.

Regulation of rates and service by common carriers is "a highly complicated and technical field," the Constitutional Revision Commission wrote in its 1970 report.

"The persons in control of such fields should be trained and skilled in the matters they are dealing with.

"Only by appointment can the citizens of this state be assured of the best possibility of obtaining the kinds of skills that are needed."

Among businesses regulated by the Public Service Commission are railroads, telephone companies, motor carriers, warehouses and grain storage facilities.

U.S., Portugal Agree To Housing Aid Pact

Lisbon (AP) — Portugal and the United States have signed an agreement for $13.25 million in U.S. economic aid for Portuguese housing.

The loan, repayable in 25 years at 5% interest, is mainly from private sources backed by the U.S. government. It is part of a $45 million foreign aid bill for Portugal approved by the U.S. Congress.

Holdrege Widening Project Opposed

The proposed widening of Holdrege between 46th and 28th is no more popular with residents there than the proposed widening of 3.6 miles of 48th south of M is with the residents in that area. Orange crosses were nailed to the trees along Holdrege that would be uprooted in the project. The action was taken Monday by members of the Clinton Neighborhood Association. Among those involved were, from left, Chris Potmesil, Eric Youngberg and John Foote. The City Council is holding public hearings on six proposed street projects Tuesday and Wednesday under a new procedure in which residents are invited to share their views before money is actually appropriated for the project. Also Monday, residents along 48th, south of M, put up small signs protesting the threatened removal of trees in that area. (Star Photo).

Tremors Shake Area In Greece

PATRAS, Greece (AP) — A series of strong earth tremors shook the northwestern Peloponnesus on Monday, causing widespread damage to a number of villages but no deaths, police said.

Only a few persons were injured despite the impact of the quake, authorities reported. The tremors sent thousands of residents in towns and villages fleeing into the countryside.

Authorities had feared a major disaster when the long, rolling tremors hit the country, which has often suffered serious quakes.

Police said that most of the buildings in about 15 villages near this city in western Greece crumbled to the ground after the first quake struck. It lasted for 18 seconds, followed by two more undulating quakes.

Police in Mesolongion, in western Greece, said communications to several villages in the earthquake-stricken area were down.

They said one woman was seriously injured in the village of Kastrakis when a ceiling fell on her. She was pulled out of the debris by villagers searching damaged houses.

Hospitals in the areas were put on alert and food and blankets were distributed to residents of several villages by police.

The quake jolted the area as most farmers were preparing to return to their fields.

Police said the quake cracked walls of buildings and that ceilings in many homes collapsed, making them uninhabitable.

Hundreds of persons fearful of another tremor planned to spend the night outdoors.

Ann Landers To Be Divorced

Chicago (AP) — Syndicated columnist Ann Landers, who offers advice on personal problems to millions of newspaper readers across the nation, says that she and her husband of 36 years will be divorced.

Ann Landers, 57, the pen name for Mrs. Jules Lederer, acknowledged in the column, which appeared in Tuesday's Chicago Sun-Times, that "the lady with all the answers does not know the answer to this one."

She wrote: "The sad, incredible fact is that after 36 years of marriage Jules and I are being divorced. As I write these words, it is as if I am referring to a letter from a reader. It seems unreal that I am writing about my own marriage."

The columnist for Field Newspapers Syndicate of Chicago, married Lederer on July 2, 1939. They have one daughter.

She did not say why they were divorcing and asked readers not to write or call for details.

Nobel Laureate Has New Cancer Theory

New York (UPI) — Dr. Albert Szent-Gyorgyi, one of the world's most distinguished biochemists, has come up with a new "electromagnetic theory of cancer."

He hopes it will lead to a better understanding of cancer and its cure.

He formally reported on the theory Thursday in Lindau, Germany, at the triennial meeting of Nobel laureates. Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi received the Nobel Prize for physiology and medicine in 1937, based on his discovery of Vitamin C.

In the research sponsored by the National Foundation for Cancer Research in Bethesda, Md., Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi, 82, established that the cell is a complex computer and that cancer appears to stem from disturbances in the flow of a transfer electron.

An electron transfer unit is missing. This particular one is the one that gives the cell messages to stop growing. When the unit isn't missing cell growth is controlled within normal limits.

When it is missing the cell continues to grow — as in cancer, often described as uncontrolled or wild growth.

Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi works at the National Foundation's laboratory in space rented from the Maritime Biological Laboratorids in Woods Hole, Mass.

His theory is that the missing transfer units — proteins — can be replaced, perhaps by a pill or injection. In which case, according to the theory, uncontrolled growth would cease.

Franklin C. Salisbury, executive director of the National Foundation for Cancer Research, said the foundation to support Dr. Szent-Gyorgyi's work was established three years ago when he ran into difficulty getting funds to continue his research into the electromagnetic theory of cancer.

Salisbury said the budget is $300,000 a year and the money comes from more than 25,000 member-donors.

Large Sums Standing Idle

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

Jane Bryant Quinn

New York — The average balance people keep in checking accounts today is around $1,000. I couldn't believe that figure when I first read it in a report from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Many of us, of course, keep less — but others much more. Why is all that money wasting away in bank accounts that don't pay interest?

The American Bankers Assocation has tried to answer that question. "But none of our surveys have been very scientific," says public relations director Bill Sullivan. "The most common answer we get is, I don't know, or I never thought about it."

It's not only the financially unsophisticated who let their money stand idle. People with quite substantial salaries routinely deposit their entire paycheck into a checking account at the start of the month, although they may not write checks on it for two or three weeks. Even then they often don't deplete it. Instead they let substantial balances carry over from month to month.

If part of each paycheck went into savings, they might pick up $100 or more in interest every year.

Banks don't demand such large balances from individuals. In fact, the minimum required in a checking account has been gradually moving down while, until two years ago, the broad trend of personal balances was up. (In '73 and '74, however, checking account balances dropped sharply.)

Laziness more than anything else accounts for the enormous amount of idle money in the country (idle, incidentally, at all income levels). People develop habitual ways of handling funds and stick with the program, even though circumstances change.

For example, when the maximum savings rate for commercial banks went from 4½ to 5% last year, First National City Bank in New York kept the lower rate for passbook accounts. They hardly lost a customer, even though their competitors went to 5% and savings institutions were offering 5¼%.

"We figured that anyone who saved with us when they could get more money at a savings bank wasn't particularly interest-rate sensitive," one bank employe said, "so we held the rate and saved ourselves some money."

The nuisance of switching money from savings to checking is another reason people keep more than they need in checking accounts. They'd rather have enough cash on hand to cover the largest imaginable expense than go to the trouble of transferring money from savings as needed. (As more banks let you transfer money by telephone, it will become easier to keep part of your paycheck in interest-bearing savings.)

Depositors are equally unimaginative about getting the most mileage from their savings accounts. Older people, especially, let too much money sit in 5% passbooks, when it could be earning much more in term accounts.

THERE ARE SIX CUBES, RIGHT?

It depends. Stare at them for a few seconds and the 6 cubes suddenly become 7. It's just a visual illusion. MUZAK is like that. It's what you might call an aural illusion. It sounds like music but it's actually a scientifically conditioned musical environment. One that people don't really listen to, but react to psychologically and physiologically.

Companies all over the world — large and small — use MUZAK as a programmed musical climate to motovate people and increase their efficiency. It is easily one of the most effective, low-cost management tools you can use to stimulate your employees to greater production.

We can show you precisely how MUZAK can work for you most profitably. No obligation at all. Incidentally, the cube illusion above is from MUZAK'S booklet "Game Your Senses Play," which has many more puzzles and illusions to challenge you. If you would like a free copy and more information on our scientifically planned musical environments, just phone or write.

Six-Month Gain Best In 42 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market capped off its best half-year showing in 42 years Monday with a steady advance that seemed to be prompted mostly by technical factors within the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.87 to 878.99, a new closing peak since March 26 of 1974.

That brought the Dow's gain for the first half of 1975 to 262.75 points.

According to figures supplied by the Hirsch Organization, an investment advisory concern, that was the closely followed average's biggest point gain ever in a calendar half-year.

And the 42.6 per cent jump it represented was surpassed in this century only by a 63.8 per cent gain in the first half of 1933, when the market rebounded after having been devastated by the Great Crash of 1929 and the depression.

Trading was relatively quiet Monday, with New York Stock Exchange volume totaling only 1943 million shares, compared with 18.82 million on Friday.

But turnover for the six months reached a record 2.66 billion shares.

The day's NYSE scorecard showed 960 advances against 512 declines among the 1,840 issues traded.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up .38 at 95.19, and the Big Board's composite index added .23 to 50.85.

The market gained in every month of the first half while the economy was probing for the bottom of its worst recession since the 1930s.

Analysts have credited stocks' strength since early last December to falling interest rates and investors' looking ahead to a hoped-for recovery in economic activity.

Cudahy Sets Temporary Shutdown

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Cudahy Foods Co. Monday announced the temporary shutdown of its Wichita pork processing plant beginning July 14.

The company said production operations at the plant would be halted for an unspecified period "due to current over capacity conditions within the company."

About 550 persons normally work at the Cudahy plant but about 90 workers were laid off in May with reduced hog supplies cited as the cause of the layoff.

The plant can process up to 4,200 head of hogs a day. Hogs purchased for slaughter at the facility have been coming from farmers in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri.

Cudahy officials said primary markets served by the Wichita plant would continue to receive supplies from other Cudahy plants.

Hog Price Rise Ends At Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—After several great weeks when demand was much better than limited supply could handle, it appears that consumer resistance has caught up with pork prices, just like it did with beef less than two weeks ago.

In other words, the "hog bubble" on the Omaha livestock market appears to have burst.

Monday's hog run totaled about 5,500 head, and barrows and gilts traded moderately active. But the trend was 50-to-75 cents lower on weights from 200-to-270 pounds. On offerings over 270-pounds, the trend was 25-cents to mostly 50-cents lower.

Sows turned 25-to-75 cents lower, instances $1.00 off, bulking generally from $47.00-$48.00.

There were about 6,000 cattle and calves on offer.

Steers and heifers saw only moderately active trade, with a few loads of choice and prime steers getting a steady call with the trade during the middle of last weak. Other steers trended weak to 50-cents lower.

Heifers were weak to 50-cents lower, while utility and commercial cows traded mostly steady, and the canners and cutters turned weak to 50-cents lower.

There were 400 sheep in the pens Monday. Spring slaughter lambs traded mostly 50-cents higher, and slaughter ewes were steady.

Farm Futures Prices Slump

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures declined over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

Soybeans closed with a loss of 5 cents a bushel. Corn futures had been down 5 cents but recovered before the close after the new crop had set contract lows. Wheat, oats, soybean oil and meal also were mostly lower.

Gold futures were about steady except for the nearby July option which gave up $1 an ounce.

Should Public Service Unit Be Elective Or Appointive?

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The time has come to consider transforming the Public Service Commission from an elective to an appointive body, Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said Monday.

"I've given some thought to it, and I think we ought to give it some serious consideration," he declared.

"I plan to do some looking into it on my own before the Legislature convenes next year."

Vote Of People

It would take a constitutional amendment and a favorable vote of the people to make the controversial state agency an appointive commission.

Such a change was recommended by the Nebraska Constitutional Revision Commission in 1970, and placed before the 1971 Legislature in the form of a bill.

In view of recent events, including the firing and subsequent rehiring of Gerald Sasek, a rate engineer, "it is time to look again" at the appointive commission proposal, Anderson said.

What makes the issue "somewhat of an open question" is the performance of "one member of the commission who, in my opinion, has made a serious effort to make it work like it is supposed to," the senator said

"His performance makes it seem like maybe the thing could work this way."

Anderson identified the one member as Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont.

Victory For Utilities

It was Rasmussen who publicly suggested that the majority vote originally firing Sasek represented a victory for telephone utilities regulated by the commission.

Sasek had been instrumental in critical rate and service investigation of telephone companies.

The 1971 bill never made it to the floor, dying on a 6-0 vote of the Constitutional Revision Committee after a flood of opposition testimony from businesses regulated by the commission.

Opponents included the Nebraska Motor Carriers, the Nebraska Telephone Assn., the Nebraska Railroads Assn., the Nebraska Sand, Gravel and Ready Mix Assn., the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation and the Democratic Party.

The bill would have provided for appointment by the governor with confirmation by the Legislature.

The size of the commission, from three to five members, and terms of office would have been determined by the Legislature.

Regulation of rates and service by common carriers is "a highly complicated and technical field," the Constitutional Revision Commission wrote in its 1970 report.

"The persons in control of such fields should be trained and skilled in the matters they are dealing with.

"Only by appointment can the citizens of this state be assured of the best possibility of obtaining the kinds of skills that are needed."

Among businesses regulated by the Public Service Commission are railroads, telephone companies, motor carriers, warehouses and grain storage facilities.

U.S., Portugal Agree To Housing Aid Pact

Lisbon (AP) -- Portugal and the United States have signed an agreement for $13.25 million in U.S. economic aid for Portuguese housing.

The loan, repayable in 25 years at 5% interest, is mainly from private sources backed by the U.S. government. It is part of a $45 million foreign aid bill for Portugal approved by the U.S. Congress.

Holdrege Widening Project Opposed

The proposed widening of Holdrege between 46th and 28th is no more popular with residents there than the proposed widening of 3.6 miles of 48th south of M is with the residents in that area. Orange crosses were nailed to the trees along Holdrege that would be uprooted in the project. The action was taken Monday by members of the Clinton Neighborhood Association. Among those involved were, from left, Chris Potmesil, Eric Youngberg and John Foote. The City Council is holding public hearings on six proposed street projects Tuesday and Wednesday under a new procedure in which residents are invited to share their views before money is actually appropriated for the project. Also Monday, residents along 48th, south of M, put up small signs protesting the threatened removal of trees in that area. (Star Photo).

Tremors Shake Area In Greece

PATRAS, Greece (AP) — A series of strong earth tremors shook the northwestern Peloponnesus on Monday, causing widespread damage to a number of villages but no deaths, police said.

Only a few persons were injured despite the impact of the quake, authorities reported. The tremors sent thousands of residents in towns and villages fleeing into the countryside.

Authorities had feared a major disaster when the long, rolling tremors hit the country, which has often suffered serious quakes.

Police said that most of the buildings in about 15 villages near this city in western Greece crumbled to the ground after the first quake struck. It lasted for 18 seconds, followed by two more undulating quakes.

Police in Mesolongion, in western Greece, said communications to several villages in the earthquake-stricken area were down.

They said one woman was seriously injured in the village of Kastrakis when a ceiling fell on her. She was pulled out of the debris by villagers searching damaged houses.

Hospitals in the areas were put on alert and food and blankets were distributed to residents of several villages by police.

The quake jolted the area as most farmers were preparing to return to their fields.

Police said the quake cracked walls of buildings and that ceilings in many homes collapsed, making them uninhabitable.

Hundreds of persons fearful of another tremor planned to spend the night outdoors.

Large Sums Standing Idle

Jane Bryant Quinn

By JANE BRYANT QUINN

New York — The average balance people keep in checking accounts today is around $1,000. I couldn't believe that figure when I first read it in a report from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Many of us, of course, keep less — but others much more. Why is all that money wasting away in bank accounts that don't pay interest?

The American Bankers Assocation has tried to answer that question. "But none of our surveys have been very scientific," says public relations director Bill Sullivan. "The most common answer we get is, I don't know, or I never thought about it."

It's not only the financially unsophisticated who let their money stand idle. People with quite substantial salaries routinely deposit their entire paycheck into a checking account at the start of the month, although they may not write checks on it for two or three weeks. Even then they often don't deplete it. Instead they let substantial balances carry over from month to month.

If part of each paycheck went into savings, they might pick up $100 or more in interest every year.

Banks don't demand such large balances from individuals. In fact, the minimum required in a checking account has been gradually moving down while, until two years ago, the broad trend of personal balances was up. (In '73 and '74, however, checking account balances dropped sharply.)

Laziness more than anything else accounts for the enormous amount of idle money in the country (idle, incidentally, at all income levels). People develop habitual ways of handling funds and stick with the program, even though circumstances change.

For example, when the maximum savings rate for commercial banks went from 4½ to 5% last year, First National City Bank in New York kept the lower rate for passbook accounts. They hardly lost a customer, even though their competitors went to 5% and savings institutions were offering 5¼%.

"We figured that anyone who saved with us when they could get more money at a savings bank wasn't particularly interest-rate sensitive," one bank employe said, "so we held the rate and saved ourselves some money."

The nuisance of switching money from savings to checking is another reason people keep more than they need in checking accounts. They'd rather have enough cash on hand to cover the largest imaginable expense than go to the trouble of transferring money from savings as needed. (As more banks let you transfer money by telephone, it will become easier to keep part of your paycheck in interest-bearing savings.)

Depositors are equally unimaginative about getting the most mileage from their savings accounts. Older people, especially, let too much money sit in 5% passbooks, when it could be earning much more in term accounts.

THERE ARE SIX CUBES, RIGHT?

It depends. Stare at them for a few seconds and the 6 cubes suddenly become 7. It's just a visual illusion. MUZAK is like that. It's what you might call an aural illusion. It sounds like music but it's actually a scientifically conditioned musical environment. One that people don't really listen to, but react to psychologically and physiologically.

Companies all over the world — large and small — use MUZAK as a programmed musical climate to motovate people and increase their efficiency. It is easily one of the most effective, low-cost management tools you can use to stimulate your employees to greater production.

We can show you precisely how MUZAK can work for you most profitably. No obligation at all. Incidentally, the cube illusion above is from MUZAK'S booklet "Game Your Senses Play," which has many more puzzles and illusions to challenge you. If you would like a free copy and more information on our scientifically planned musical environments, just phone or write.

Six-Month Gain Best In 42 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market capped off its best half-year showing in 42 years Monday with a steady advance that seemed to be prompted mostly by technical factors within the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 5.87 to 878.99, a new closing peak since March 26 of 1974.

That brought the Dow's gain for the first half of 1975 to 262.75 points.

According to figures supplied by the Hirsch Organization, an investment advisory concern, that was the closely followed average's biggest point gain ever in a calendar half-year.

And the 42.6 per cent jump it represented was surpassed in this century only by a 63.8 per cent gain in the first half of 1933, when the market rebounded after having been devastated by the Great Crash of 1929 and the depression.

Trading was relatively quiet Monday, with New York Stock Exchange volume totaling only 1943 million shares, compared with 18.82 million on Friday.

But turnover for the six months reached a record 2.66 billion shares.

The day's NYSE scorecard showed 960 advances against 512 declines among the 1,840 issues traded.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up .38 at 95.19, and the Big Board's composite index added .23 to 50.85.

The market gained in every month of the first half while the economy was probing for the bottom of its worst recession since the 1930s.

Analysts have credited stocks' strength since early last December to falling interest rates and investors' looking ahead to a hoped-for recovery in economic activity.

Cudahy Sets Temporary Shutdown

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Cudahy Foods Co. Monday announced the temporary shutdown of its Wichita pork processing plant beginning July 14.

The company said production operations at the plant would be halted for an unspecified period "due to current over capacity conditions within the company."

About 550 persons normally work at the Cudahy plant but about 90 workers were laid off in May with reduced hog supplies cited as the cause of the layoff.

The plant can process up to 4,200 head of hogs a day. Hogs purchased for slaughter at the facility have been coming from farmers in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri.

Cudahy officials said primary markets served by the Wichita plant would continue to receive supplies from other Cudahy plants.

Hog Price Rise Ends At Omaha

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—After several great weeks when demand was much better than limited supply could handle, it appears that consumer resistance has caught up with pork prices, just like it did with beef less than two weeks ago.

In other words, the "hog bubble" on the Omaha livestock market appears to have burst.

Monday's hog run totaled about 5,500 head, and barrows and gilts traded moderately active. But the trend was 50-to-75 cents lower on weights from 200-to-270 pounds. On offerings over 270-pounds, the trend was 25-cents to mostly 50-cents lower.

Sows turned 25-to-75 cents lower, instances $1.00 off, bulking generally from $47.00-$48.00.

There were about 6,000 cattle and calves on offer.

Steers and heifers saw only moderately active trade, with a few loads of choice and prime steers getting a steady call with the trade during the middle of last weak. Other steers trended weak to 50-cents lower.

Heifers were weak to 50-cents lower, while utility and commercial cows traded mostly steady, and the canners and cutters turned weak to 50-cents lower.

There were 400 sheep in the pens Monday. Spring slaughter lambs traded mostly 50-cents higher, and slaughter ewes were steady.

Chicago (AP) — Farm commodity futures declined over a broad area on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday.

Soybeans closed with a loss of 5 cents a bushel. Corn futures had been down 5 cents but recovered before the close after the new crop had set contract lows. Wheat, oats, soybean oil and meal also were mostly lower.

Gold futures were about steady except for the nearby July option which gave up $1 an ounce.

Retired Persons Get Raise In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's retired persons get a raise this month with Social Security benefits taking an 8 per cent cost-of-living jump.

It will mean checks $7.60 to $37 fatter, with an average increase of $16 per month.

The increase for the nation's 31.3 million Social Security and four million Supplemental Security Income recipients was announced in May by Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The increase will be included in July checks.

Weinberger noted that Congress had failed to act on President Ford's request that the increase be limited to 5 per cent as an inflation-fighting measure. The 8 per cent hike is expected to cost $5.7 billion.

Officials said the average mother with two children will receive $474 under the new rates, rather than $439 as at present. The average aged widow will receive $193 compared to the present $178 and the average disabled worker with wife and child will have an increase from $407 to $440.

The increase will provide an extra $16 per month to the average retired male worker over 65 and now receiving $184 monthly and $27 to the average monthly check, now $314, for a couple over 65.

Another $7.60 will be added to the current minimum check of $93.80 received by male workers over 65 and $25.40 will be added to the maximum retired male's current check of $316.30. The average disabled worker's monthly benefits will be $224, a $17 increase.

Supplemental Security Income includes adult welfare programs for the blind and disabled, which were federalized in 1974. Weinberger noted that SSI recipients in about half of the states, where a state supplement is added to the federal check, will not receive the increase unless the state acts to pass it along.

The increase is the first automatic boost tied to the cost of living since the Social Security Act was amended in 1972.

Under the law, Social Security and SSI benefits are increased automatically when the consumer price index rises by 3 per cent or more over a given period of time. The 8 per cent increase represents the rise in the consumer price index between the second quarter of 1974 and the first quarter of 1975.

Highlights Surround Ak's Omaha Gold Cup

Another Invader Fails

Omaha — Short hoofbeats after Preakness victor Master Derby's third-place finish in the $106,375 Omaha Gold Cup Stakes Saturday at Ak-Sar-Ben:

State steward Jack Fickler has some interesting explanations for the poor record of imports making their first start at Ak-Sar-Ben.

"Part of the reason is that it takes time for horses to get accustomed to their new surroundings," he said. "Around Ak-Sar-Ben are trees. Perhaps at the tracks where they ran before, there weren't any trees. It looks different to them and it takes them a while to get adjusted.

"Another reason is that every track has a different sand base. Tracks back east such as those in New York and out West in California have more sand than Ak-Sar-Ben," he said. "That makes a different footing for each track and it's hard for horses to adjust to that."

Fickler also said that morning workouts are different from races with the shouting spectators and the hotter temperatures in the afternoon.

Another reason is that Ak-Sar-Ben is one of the few tracks in the country with cars parked in the infield. That creates sudden sunbeams glancing off cars which may 'spook' certain horses not accustomed to seeing cars where there are usually lakes or grass.

Different Circumstances

All those reasons are valid for Master Derby's failure as the 3-5 favorite of the record crowd of 30,303. However, perhaps Master Derby's connections didn't train the Dust Commander colt as hard as they should have.

Perhaps the Triple Crown races are too strenuous on 3-year-olds and those runners that ran in all three races need a rest.

Whatever the reasons, Master Derby did not live up to his expectations. Yet it was still the most successful day in the history of Nebraska thoroughbred racing.

Daily Racing Form columnist John McEvoy noted an interesting statistic: In 18 of Ak's stakes this season only five favorites have won and the average win price on a stakes winner has been $25. Make that only five of 19 and the average $25 win price has increased slightly since Jack Van Berg's Gray Bar paid $30.60 to win the Omaha Gold Cup.

From the Who-Has-Class-Department: After guiding the favored J.R.'s Pet to a fourth-place finish in last year's Gold Cup, surly jockey Bill Hartack scowled at reporters and walked away with disdain. On Saturday, Master Derby's rider Darrel McHargue answered questions easly and without excuses. He's a fine credit to racing and proves that not all "big-name" jockeys are too good to talk with local reporters.

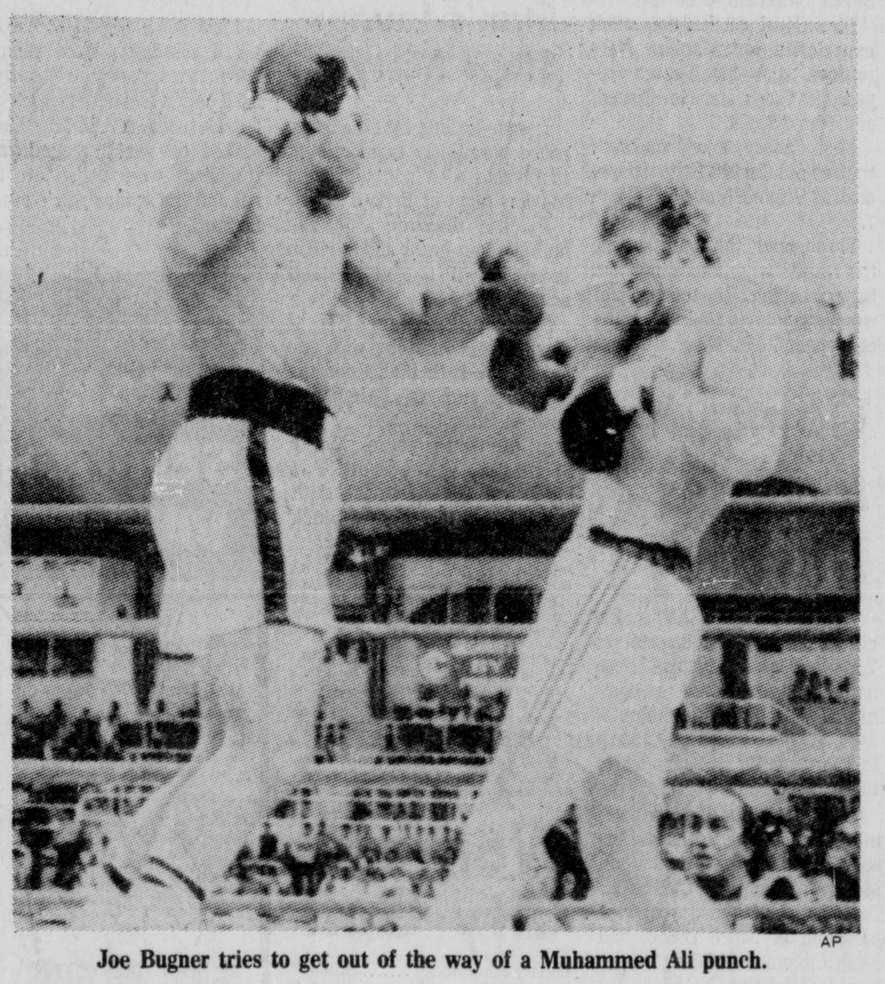
KOLN-KGIN TV had the complete color film and call on Saturday's Omaha Gold Cup on the 10 p.m. newscast. The film, taken by Steve Meyers, was the best we've seen this year and the winner circle film of Master Derby and Gray Bar was excellent.

As usual, track announcer Bill Murphy's call of the Gold Cup was superb. His efforts on all Ak's major races have been magnificent.

Saturday's Cornhusker Handicap will give another import a chance to topple the invader theory here. The Timberland Stable's Stonewalk will probably be the horse to catch in the $100,000-added chase for 3-year-olds & up.

The jockey will be Ron Turcotte, who gained famed riding Secretariat and Riva Ridge.

Starting with Thursday's $20,000-added Speed Handicap, Ak-Sar-Ben will present a stakes race each of the last eight days of this meet. The total value of the eight stakes will exceed $285,000.



Joe Bugner tries to get out of the way of a Muhammed Ali punch.

Ali Decisions Bugner

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia (AP) — Muhammad Ali, the 33-year-old world heavyweight champion beat Joe Bugner in impressive fashion and in burning heat here Tuesday morning.

Now it's on to Manila and Joe Frazier and the richest fight ever conceived.

Ali said just before he fought Bugner that he had changed his mind about retiring. Then, utilizing a strong attack to Bugner's head, he went out and scored a unanimous 15-round decision over the 25-year-old challenger, who was outfought all the way.

"If I quit, people will say that Joe Frazier would have whipped me," Ali said after the fight. "They would say that George Foreman and Ken Norton would, too. So when I retire, I don't want anybody around who people might think would beat me."

Promoter Don King said the third Ali-Frazier fight, set for Oct. 1 for an estaimted $12 million, had already been signed and the only stumbling blocks were Ali's announced retirement and Bugner.

The champion removed both in swift fashion as Frazier watched from ringside under a burning sun and in high humidity at the outdoor Malaysian soccer stadium.

"The heat was bad, but it was bad for both of us," said Ali. "I still predict that Joe Bugner will be champion. He's strong; he's young."

"I should have won the world title," said Bugner, who was almost out on his feet from an Ali onslaught which was unleashed in the final two minutes of the fight.

"I think the climate beat me this time. I just couldn't find a burst of energy to maintain the pressure by the 10th and 11th round," said Bugner.

But Ali, eight years Bugner's senior, found it and left no doubt about the outcome in the fight in which there were no knockdowns. But there almost was at least one knockdown in the 15th.

Then, Ali landed about a dozen clean shots to the head, raising a swelling about Bugner's right eye and sending the challenger reeling around the ring as Ali's corner cheered for a knockout.

Referee Takeo Ugo of Japan scored it 73-67 for Ali. Judge Lt. Col Suphsee Phrom Jara of Thailand had it 73-65 for Ali while Australian judge Ken Brady had it 72-65 for the champion.

The Associated Press scored it 70 for Ali and 65 for Bugner.

Ali set the pattern for the fight in the very first round when he came out flat-footed and shooting for Bugner's head. It was a pattern he was to effectively continue throughout although after six rounds the fight was about even.

Then, in the seventh round, Ali began taking charge. He landed with a good hook, some other punches to the head, a few shots to the body and ended the round with a looping left to the head.

In the eighth and nine rounds, it was more of the same as Ali got some head shots past Bugner's peek-a-boo defense. Ali waded in with both hands to his side during these rounds, daring the challenger to jab him.

One of Bugner's most glaring weaknesses was an almost complete lack of a right hand attack.

Ali did suffer a slight cut above the left eye in the 13th round, but he had Bugner holding on at the bell when he landed a hard left hook to the head. Ali did not even seem bothered by the slight cut.

Ali also shook Bugner with a good right hand midway through the 14th round and then dominated the final round, leaving no doubt whatsoever about the outcome. The champion landed a right-left, rightleft combination to the head at the two-minute mark that had Bugner backing up.

Then Ali came back with two left-rights to the head that hurt Bugner. He sent Bugner reeling with seven consecutive head punches in the last seconds of the fight.

And so now it is on to Manila for Ali, who said Tuesday he wanted to be known as the greatest fighter the world has ever seen. An hour later he made the third successful defense of the title he regained by knocking out George Foreman in eight rounds on an African morning last Oct. 30 in Zaire.

Promoter Don King had said before this fight that an Ali-Frazier bout had been signed if the champion would only renege on his retirement announcement. And there was never much doubt that Ali would change his mind.

The date for the Ali-Frazier fight is Oct. 1. The purse is reportedly $12 million.

"People want to see me fight Joe Frazier," Ali said just before he fought Bugner. "I don't want anybody to say that I'm afraid of Joe Frazier or George Foreman."

Frazier, who has split two fights with Ali, was at ringside. He said before the fight, "I'm ready. I'm happy he decided not to go out. Otherwise, I would have thought he was ducking me like he has been doing for the last year."

Frazier then sat back and, along with the king of Malaysia and an estimated crowd of 22,000 in the outdoor Merdeka Stadium, watched Ali, who weighed 225 pounds, record his 48th victory against just two losses in a pro career that began in 1960 and almost ended in disagrace when he was convicted of refusing to enter the U.S. Army in 1967.

The conviction, which was later overturned, cost Ali the heavyweight title and banished him from the ring for 3½ years.

Bugner, who was losing to Ali for the second time in two years, again put up a game effort but it was just as it was in 1973 in Las Vegas when Ali won a 12-round decision. Bugner simply did not have the tools to cope with the man who calls himself "the saviour of boxing; the greatest fighter of all time."

Bugner, who weighed 230, lost for the seventh time against 51 victories and a draw. The loss does not affect his status as the European champion.

The fight, for which Ali got $2 million to $500,000 for Bugner, was the final third of a closed circuit television tripleheader.

The two fights from New York were not seen in Kuala Lumpur, but the Ali-Bugner fight was televised live in Malaysia.

Don King Productions Inc. was in charge of the ancillary rights and also figured in the promotion both here and in New York.

Tinju Dunia probably will lose money but Harun said before the fight the main purpose for obtaining the bout was to "project Malaysia and Kuala Lumpur."

Monzon, Galindez Retain World Titles

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlos Monzon, dominating the fight almost from the start, successfully defended his World Boxing Association middleweight championship Monday, stopping American challenger Tony Licata in the 10th round of their scheduled 15-round bout.

The fight was the second half of a championship doubleheader in Madison Square Garden. In the opening bout, light heavyweight champ Victor Galindez retained his WBA crown with an impressive 15-round unanimous decision over Jorge Ahumada.

Cable TV Sets Fights

The world championship triple-header, with title bouts for the middleweight and light-heavyweight crowns preceeding the fetures Muhammad Ali-Joe Bugner heavyweight fight, will be re-broadcast locally on cable television the next three nights.

The fights can be seen on Ch. 9 starting at 10 p.m. Tuesday, midnight on Wednesday and 7 p.m. on Thursday.

Schwartzkopf Leads Lincoln Golf Tourney

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

After a five-year absence from the Lincoln women's city golf championships, Dorothy Schwartzkopf served notice Monday at Hillcrest Country Club that she's back.

Schwartzkopf fired a one-over-par 77 during the opening round of the 54-hole event to take a four shot lead over defending champion Jean Hyland.

Hyland, winner of the last five tournaments and 13 overall, renews a long-standing rivalry with Schwartzkopf that was interrupted when Dorothy's husband Sam, then mayor of Lincoln, took her to the national mayor conference each year on the same dates as the city tourney.

With Sam no longer in the mayor's seat, Dorothy's back in the leader's seat among 65 entrants.

In fact she says she's now in a position to play the best golf of her career with the added practice time she's gained from being out of public-office life.

By most golfers' standards, practice is something that isn't well liked, but at the same time must be done to achieve excellence.

Schwartzkopf feels just the opposite, and credits her scores to having fun on the practice range.

"I've had so much more time this year to practice," she said. "I enjoy my practice time and that's something not a lot of people care for.

"But I enjoy practicing because it makes me play better," she said.

Playing too much and not practicing is detremental to Schwartzkopf's game she says.

"If I just play all the time, by the time the summer is over, I have a tendency to get overgolfed. But that doesn't happen when I'm hitting range balls, chipping or putting."

Her putting certainly didn't hurt her during Monday's round.

"I didn't make any real long putts," she said, "but I didn't miss any that I thought I could make."

Schwartzkopf remembers the last city tournament she played in five years ago, the one that started Hyland's string.

"I was going to the 18th hole at Lincoln Country Club leading the tournament by three shots and took an eight (four over par)," she said. "Jean ended up beating me by one shot. But that was a long time ago."

Schwartzkopf had four birdies enroute to her present 77.

She birdied Nos. 4, 6, 10 and 12 for her 39-38.

Hyland had nine hole splits of 41-40—81 as the two stood a head above the rest of the field.

Debbie Reed and Betty Abel both had 87s for a third place tie while Jane Deeter, Karen Epp and Nancy Teague each carded 89s.

In the junior city segment of the tournament, nine hole rounds for those under 16 years of age, Peggy Schneiber holds the first round lead with a 50.

Both segments of the tournament move to Lincoln Country Club Tuesday with the final 18-holes at Pioneers Park on Wednesday.

Russians Pass Party

Officials, coaches and trainers of the Soviet Union's junior track and field team arrived in Lincoln Monday afternoon, but they were too tired for a party.

Anyone who has taken an international trip could very well understand why they passed up a reception Monday night at the Stephen W. Carveth home. The two-day trip simply had taken too much out of them.

The young athletes' first concern was getting a meal and then retiring to catch up on lost sleep and to adjust to the Lincoln time zone so they can be fresh for the dual meet with the United States Friday and Saturday at Nebraska's Ed Weir Track.

The language barrier made things tough for the Lincoln committeemen who have worked many long hours putting the meet together. Interpreters rounded up by Dr. Richard Hammer, meet coordinator, helped ease some of the problems.

The interpreter for the Russian team was kept busy — too busy, in fact, to prepare a list of the athletes and their best performances. That probably will be available Tuesday.

About the only thing anyone learned about the Russian team is that it is composed of some super, super track and field athletes.

American Team Works Out

By late afternoon most of the team that will represent the United States had arrived and checked in at Harper Hall. The remainder are expected Tuesday.

One who did some jogging was Mark Belger, freshman from Villanova, who is a "veteran" of this competition. He placed second to Russian Sergei Abramov in the 80 meters in last year's meet in Austin, Tex.

Belger's time was 1:50.71 to Abramov's 1:49.37. He qualified for this year's meet with a clocking of 1:47.5 in the meet two weeks ago at Knoxville, Tenn. That's the nation's best time by a junior for 1975.

Perhaps a highlight of his freshman season at the Philadelphia school came in the Penn Relays. He had a 1:51.4 anchor leg in the two-mile relay, and led off the four-mile relay with a 4:08.6 mile. Both Villanova relay teams won.

Running with Belger for the U.S. in the 800 meters will be an equally competent middle distance ace Charles White, who was timed in 1:47.9 at Knoxville. He's a freshman at the University of Illinois.

Meet Odds 'n Ends

In Sunday's Journal and Star, Randy York's story about the "walk" to be walked Friday, the distance should have read 10 kilometers, rather than 10,000, which would be quite a walk. A kilometer is .62 miles.

Since the meet distances all are in meters, here's a table showing the equivalents in yards:

Meters	Yards	Meters	Yards
100	109.36	3,000	1 mile, 1,520 yds., 2 ft., 8 in.
200	218.72
400	437.44	5,000	3 mi., 188.06 yds.
800	874.89	10,000	6 mi, 376.12 yds.
1,500	1,640.42	110	120.30

A big part of the work for the coaches of the American team prior to the meet will be putting together relay teams.

Both the men and women will compete in the 4 x 110 relay and the 4 x 440 relay. Putting it the way American track buffs talk, that's the 440 meter and 1,760 meter relays.

Retired Persons Get Raise In July

WASHINGTON (AP) — America s retired persons get a raise this month with Social Security benefits taking an 8 per cent cost-of-living jump

It will mean checks $7 60 to $37 fatter with an average increase of $16 per month

The increase for the nation's 31 3 million Social Security and four million Supplemental Security Income recipients was announced in May by Secretary Caspar W Weinberger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare The increase will be included in July checks

Weinberger noted that Congress had failed to act on President Ford s request that the increase be limited to 5 per cent as an inflation-fighting measure The 8 per cent hike is expected to cost $5 7 billion

Officials said the average mother with two children will receive $474 under the new rates rather than $439 as at present The average aged widow will receive $193 compared to the present $178 and the average disabled worker with wife and child will have an increase from $407 to $440

The increase will provide an extra $16 per month to the average retired male worker over 65 and now receiving $184 monthly and $27 to the average monthly check, now $314, for a couple over 65

Another $7 60 will be added to the current minimum check of $93 80 received by male workers over 65 and $25 40 will be added to the maximum retired male's current check of $316 30 The average disabled worker's monthly benefits will be $224, a $17 increase

Supplemental Security Income includes adult welfare programs for the blind and disabled, which were federalized in 1974 Weinberger noted that SSI recipients in about half of the states, where a state supplement is added to the federal check, will not receive the increase unless the state acts to pass it along

The increase is the first automatic boost tied to the cost of living since the Social Security Act was amended in 1972

Under the law, Social Security and SSI benefits are increased automatically when the consumer price index rises by 3 per cent or more over a given period of time The 8 per cent increase represents the rise in the consumer price index between the second quarter of 1974 and the first quarter of 1975

Irwin Wins Western Open

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Hale Irwin proved himself a prophet Monday.

Midway through the $200,000 Western Open, he said, "Anyone within six shots of the leader should be super. Anything can happen on this golf course. Shoot two par rounds and you might pass everybody."

Irwin didn't lead at the halfway point. George Johnson did, by a stroke. And Irwin didn't shoot two rounds of par. He shot a par 71 and a two-over par 73.

But he stayed ahead of everybody, helped when Johnson collapsed on the final three holes and went bogey, triple bogey, double bogey, or a total of six over par. Johnson, leading almost all the way until his blowup, finished in a tie for seventh. Bobby Cole from South Africa finished one stroke behind Irwin.

Irwin wound up with a one under par 283 for 72 holes on the 7,002-yard, par 71 Butler National golf club, and the $40,000 top prize money boosted his 1975 tour earnings to $175,627, still about $5,000 behind Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller in the standings.

"It was the most nerve racking experience I've ever been through," Irwin said. "I felt like I had to eliminate some of the mistakes I'd been making. I had to get rid of some of the bogeys. I did, and I got rid of the birdies, too.

"But I had 16 pars and two bogeys in the afternoon, and that's hard to beat playing under the conditions we had. The greens were extremely bumpy and the course had dried up considerably. It was an entirely different course than we had in the morning.

"George picked up two shots on me right off the bat in the afternoon, and you better believe I was watching the scoreboard."

Irwin, playing for pars, might never have caught Johnson. But the 36-year-old Johnson, trying to become the second black golfer to qualify for the Masters tournament with a victory on the main pro tour, blew up on the 17th.

"It was a crummy shot," Johnson said. "I don't know what I did. It was a bad shot."

What he did, after a drive into the left rough, was to try to hit a nine iron back into the fairway. Instead the ball tailed over a fence and out of bounds. Johnson took a triple bogey seven, fell four shots behind Irwin, and that was it.

Cole, sitting in the clubhouse at even par 284 after back-to-back scores of 70 and 69 in the 36-hole finale Monday, took second place and pocketed $22,800. The final 36 holes were required because the tournament had been rained out two previous days.

Irwin believed he won the tournament on the 14th hole, where he put his tee shot in the bunker. In the morning, he did the same thing, but came out of the trap into the water and got a double bogey. In the afternoon, he said, "I took out a six iron and when I hit it I knew it was a hell of a shot. It went 155 yards out of the bunker, over the water, into the wind and on to the middle of the green."

Irwin two-putted for a par and "as far as I was concerned, that was the tournament.

"I won it because I made less errors. I made the putts and I hit the shots coming down the stretch that I had to make. I honestly don't recall being as shaky as I was today. The greens were so bumpy it was unnerving. I didn't play very well, but no one else did either."

It was Irwin's second tournament victory this year, coming on the heels of a win in Atlanta June 1.

KSU Set To Sell Dormitory?

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State University is studying the possibility of selling its athletic dormitory.

The plush domicile for all Wildcats athletes is eight years old, dating back to the optimistic early days of former head football Coach Vince Gibson.

Ellis Rainsberger, Gibson's successor, indicated he likes the exclusive living arrangement because "it provides the athletes a feeling of togetherness and a better atmosphere to study by."

The annual operating budget for the dormitory has increased to $330,000.

Brad Rothermel, athletic department business manager, said room and board expenses amount to $1,000 for each of 180 athletes, plus general maintenance, salaries and other items.

Robert Snell, chairman of the K-State Intercollegiate Athletic Council, which called for the study, said, "The relative cost to the university of operating an athletic dorm versus individual student housing will probably be a major determining factor in the final decision by the council of whether or not to sell the dorm."

Women Vets Advance In Wimbledon Semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The favorites of women's tennis had it their way Monday as four Wimbledon champions—Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong Cawley—won their way into the semifinals.

Miss Evert, the defending champion, played far below her best form but still was good enough to beat Betty Stove of The Netherlands 5-7, 7-5, 6-0.

Ms. King, who has said this will be her last major championship as a singles player, eliminated Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 6-3, 6-3.

Mrs. Court, 32, had too much experience for Martina Navratilova, the highly-rated 18-year-old Czech and No. 2 seed, and won 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. Cawley, newly married, snuffed out the last British hope, ousting Virginia Wade 5-7, 6-3, 9-7.

Throughout the tournament, the results have underlined the big gap between the top group of women stars and their emerging challengers. Ms. King and Mrs. Court have reached the semifinals without dropping a set.

In Wednesday's semifinals, Miss Evert will play Ms. King and Mrs. Cawley will face Mrs. Court. So an American-Australian final is certain.

It was another day of sunshine, and 30,000 people poured into the All-England Club. Attendances now totals more than 225,000 with five days still to go, and last year's all-time record of 306,161 appears certain to be beaten.

Miss Evert, rated by many experts as unbeatable when the tournament began last week, was the least convincing of the quarter-final winners. Her victory over Miss Stove was laboriously put together and at one stage she looked in danger of defeat.

The Dutch woman, tall and with a long reach, played much more aggressive tennis and went far more confidently to the net in the opening set. The so-called ice maiden from Florida, who usually shoots so accurately from the baseline, passed her opponent only four times in the whole match.

Miss Stove played above her usual standard. After winning the first set, she came back from a 5-2 deficit and tied the match 5-5 in the second. And Miss Evert looked on shaky ground. Her forehands were going into the net and she seemed scared to go forward.

Highlights Surround Ak's Omaha Gold Cup

Another Invader Fails

Omaha — Short hoofbeats after Preakness victor Master Derby's third-place finish in the $106,375 Omaha Gold Cup Stakes Saturday at Ak-Sar-Ben:

State steward Jack Fickler has some interesting explanations for the poor record of imports making their first start at Ak-Sar-Ben.

"Part of the reason is that it takes time for horses to get accustomed to their new surroundings," he said. "Around Ak-Sar-Ben are trees. Perhaps at the tracks where they ran before, there weren't any trees. It looks different to them and it takes them a while to get adjusted.

"Another reason is that every track has a different sand base. Tracks back east such as those in New York and out West in California have more sand than Ak-Sar-Ben," he said. "That makes a different footing for each track and it's hard for horses to adjust to that."

Fickler also said that morning workouts are different from races with the shouting spectators and the hotter temperatures in the afternoon.

Another reason is that Ak-Sar-Ben is one of the few tracks in the country with cars parked in the infield. That creates sudden sunbeams glancing off cars which may 'spook' certain horses not accustomed to seeing cars where there are usually lakes or grass.

Different Circumstances

All those reasons are valid for Master Derby's failure as the 3-5 favorite of the record crowd of 30,303. However, perhaps Master Derby's connections didn't train the Dust Commander colt as hard as they should have.

Perhaps the Triple Crown races are too strenuous on 3-year-olds and those runners that ran in all three races need a rest.

Whatever the reasons, Master Derby did not live up to his expectations. Yet it was still the most successful day in the history of Nebraska thoroughbred racing.

Daily Racing Form columnist John McEvoy noted an interesting statistic: In 18 of Ak's stakes this season only five favorites have won and the average win price on a stakes winner has been $25. Make that only five of 19 and the average $25 win price has increased slightly since Jack Van Berg's Gray Bar paid $30.60 to win the Omaha Gold Cup.

From the Who-Has-Class-Department: After guiding the favored J.R.'s Pet to a fourth-place finish in last year's Gold Cup, surly jockey Bill Hartack scowled at reporters and walked away with disdain. On Saturday, Master Derby's rider Darrel McHargue answered questions easly and without excuses. He's a fine credit to racing and proves that not all "big-name" jockeys are too good to talk with local reporters.

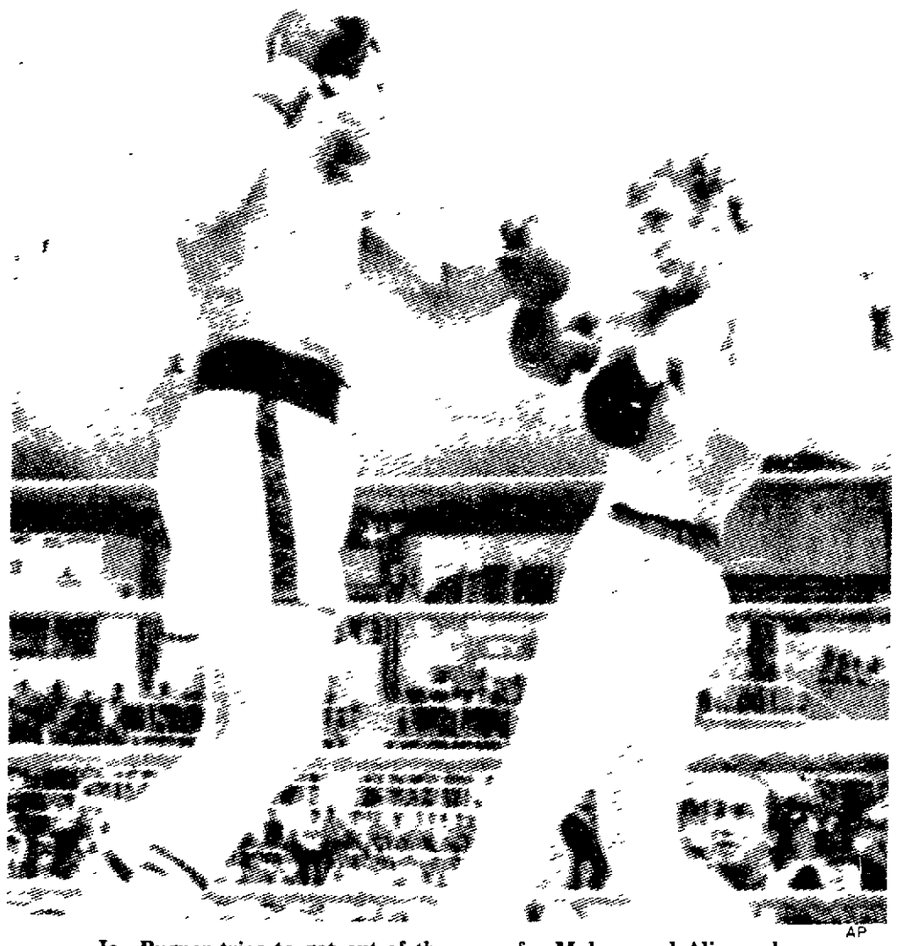
KOLN-KGIN TV had the complete color film and call on Saturday's Omaha Gold Cup on the 10 p.m. newscast. The film, taken by Steve Meyers, was the best we've seen this year and the winner circle film of Master Derby and Gray Bar was excellent.

As usual, track announcer Bill Murphy's call of the Gold Cup was superb. His efforts on all Ak's major races have been magnificent.

Saturday's Cornhusker Handicap will give another import a chance to topple the invader theory here. The Timberland Stable's Stonewalk will probably be the horse to catch in the $100,000-added chase for 3-year-olds & up.

The jockey will be Ron Turcotte, who gained famed riding Secretariat and Riva Ridge.

Starting with Thursday's $20,000-added Speed Handicap, Ak-Sar-Ben will present a stakes race each of the last eight days of this meet. The total value of the eight stakes will exceed $285,000.



Joe Bugner tries to get out of the way of a Muhammed Ali punch.

Ali Decisions Bugner

Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia (AP) — Muhammad Ali, the 33-year-old world heavyweight champion beat Joe Bugner in impressive fashion and in burning heat here Tuesday morning.

Now it's on to Manila and Joe Frazier and the richest fight ever conceived.

Ali said just before he fought Bugner that he had changed his mind about retiring. Then, utilizing a strong attack to Bugner's head, he went out and scored a unanimous 15-round decision over the 25-year-old challenger, who was outfought all the way.

"If I quit, people will say that Joe Frazier would have whipped me," Ali said after the fight. "They would say that George Foreman and Ken Norton would, too. So when I retire, I don't want anybody around who people might think would beat me."

Promoter Don King said the third Ali-Frazier fight, set for Oct. 1 for an estaimted $12 million, had already been signed and the only stumbling blocks were Ali's announced retirement and Bugner.

The champion removed both in swift fashion as Frazier watched from ringside under a burning sun and in high humidity at the outdoor Malaysian soccer stadium.

"The heat was bad, but it was bad for both of us," said Ali. "I still predict that Joe Bugner will be champion. He's strong; he's young."

"I should have won the world title," said Bugner, who was almost out on his feet from an Ali onslaught which was unleashed in the final two minutes of the fight.

"I think the climate beat me this time. I just couldn't find a burst of energy to maintain the pressure by the 10th and 11th round," said Bugner.

But Ali, eight years Bugner's senior, found it and left no doubt about the outcome in the fight in which there were no knockdowns But there almost was at least one knockdown in the 15th.

Then, Ali landed about a dozen clean shots to the head, raising a swelling about Bugner's right eye and sending the challenger reeling around the ring as Ali's corner cheered for a knockout

THE LINCOLN STAR
Sports
Tuesday, July 1, 1975 31

Referee Takeo Ugo of Japan scored it 73-67 for Ali. Judge Lt. Col Suphsee Phrom Jara of Thailand had it 73-65 for Ali while Australian judge Ken Brady had it 72-65 for the champion.

The Associated Press scored it 70 for Ali and 65 for Bugner.

Ali set the pattern for the fight in the very first round when he came out flat-footed and shooting for Bugner's head. It was a pattern he was to effectively continue throughout although after six rounds the fight was about even.

Then, in the seventh round, Ali began taking charge. He landed with a good hook, some other punches to the head, a few shots to the body and ended the round with a looping left to the head.

In the eighth and nine rounds, it was more of the same as Ali got some head shots past Bugner's peek-a-boo defense. Ali waded in with both hands to his side during these rounds, daring the challenger to jab him.

One of Bugner's most glaring weaknesses was an almost complete lack of a right hand attack.

Both men held up well in the typical muggy heat of a Malaysian morning, but in the last three rounds Ali seemed to have much more left than did his younger challenger.

Ali did suffer a slight cut above the left eye in the 13th round, but he had Bugner holding on at the bell when he landed a hard left hook to the head. Ali did not even seem bothered by the slight cut.

Ali also shook Bugner with a good right hand midway through the 14th round and then dominated the final round, leaving no doubt whatsoever about the outcome. The champion landed a right-left, rightleft combination to the head at the two-minute mark that had Bugner backing up.

Then Ali came back with two left-rights to the head that hurt Bugner. He sent Bugner reeling with seven consecutive head punches in the last seconds of the fight.

And so now it is on to Manila for Ali, who said Tuesday he wanted to be known as the greatest fighter the world has ever seen. An hour later he made the third successful defense of the title he regained by knocking out George Foreman in eight rounds on an African morning last Oct. 30 in Zaire.

Promoter Don King had said before this fight that an Ali-Frazier bout had been signed if the champion would only renege on his retirement announcement. And there was never much doubt that Ali would change his mind.

The date for the Ali-Frazier fight is Oct. 1. The purse is reportedly $12 million.

"People want to see me fight Joe Frazier," Ali said just before he fought Bugner. "I don't want anybody to say that I'm afraid of Joe Frazier or George Foreman."

Frazier, who has split two fights with Ali, was at ringside. He said before the fight, "I'm ready. I'm happy he decided not to go out. Otherwise, I would have thought he was ducking me like he has been doing for the last year."

Frazier then sat back and, along with the king of Malaysia and an estimated crowd of 22,000 in the outdoor Merdeka Stadium, watched Ali, who weighed 225 pounds, record his 48th victory against just two losses in a pro career that began in 1960 and almost ended in disagrace when he was convicted of refusing to enter the U.S. Army in 1967.

The conviction, which was later overturned, cost Ali the heavyweight title and banished him from the ring for 3½ years.

Bugner, who was losing to Ali for the second time in two years, again put up a game effort but it was just as it was in 1973 in Las Vegas when Ali won a 12-round decision. Bugner simply did not have the tools to cope with the man who calls himself "the saviour of boxing; the greatest fighter of all time."

Bugner, who weighed 230, lost for the seventh time against 51 victories and a draw. The loss does not affect his status as the European champion.

The fight, for which Ali got $2 million to $500,000 for Bugner, was the final third of a closed circuit television tripleheader.

The two fights from New York were not seen in Kuala Lumpur, but the Ali-Bugner fight was televised live in Malaysia.

Don King Productions Inc. was in charge of the ancillary rights and also figured in the promotion both here and in New York.

Tinju Dunia probably will lose money but Harun said before the fight the main purpose for obtaining the bout was to "project Malaysia and Kuala Lumpur."

Monzon, Galindez Retain World Titles

NEW YORK (AP) — Carlos Monzon, dominating the fight almost from the start, successfully defended his World Boxing Association middleweight championship Monday, stopping American challenger Tony Licata in the 10th round of their scheduled 15-round bout

The fight was the second half of a championship doubleheader in Madison Square Garden. In the opening bout, light heavyweight champ Victor Galindez retained his WBA crown with an impressive 15-round unanimous decision over Jorge Ahumada.

Cable TV Sets Fights

The world championship triple-header, with title bouts for the middleweight and light-heavyweight crowns preceeding the fetures Muhammad Ali-Joe Bugner heavyweight fight, will be re-broadcast locally on cable television the next three nights.

The fights can be seen on Ch. 9 starting at 10 p.m. Tuesday, midnight on Wednesday and 7 p.m. on Thursday.

Schwartzkopf Leads Lincoln Golf Tourney

By CHUCK SINCLAIR

After a five-year absence from the Lincoln women's city golf championships, Dorothy Schwartzkopf served notice Monday at Hillcrest Country Club that she's back.

Schwartzkopf fired a one-over-par 77 during the opening round of the 54-hole event to take a four shot lead over defending champion Jean Hyland.

Hyland, winner of the last five tournaments and 13 overall, renews a long-standing rivalry with Schwartzkopf that was interrupted when Dorothy's husband Sam, then mayor of Lincoln, took her to the national mayor conference each year on the same dates as the city tourney.

With Sam no longer in the mayor's seat, Dorothy's back in the leader's seat among 65 entrants.

In fact she says she's now in a position to play the best golf of her career with the added practice time she's gained from being out of public-office life.

By most golfers' standards, practice is something that isn't well liked, but at the same time must be done to achieve excellence.

Schwartzkopf feels just the opposite, and credits her scores to having fun on the practice range.

"I've had so much more time this year to practice," she said. "I enjoy my practice time and that's something not a lot of people care for.

"But I enjoy practicing because it makes me play better," she said.

Playing too much and not practicing is detremental to Schwartzkopf's game she says.

"If I just play all the time, by the time the summer is over, I have a tendency to get overgolfed. But that doesn't happen when I'm hitting range balls, chipping or putting."

Her putting certainly didn't hurt her during Monday's round.

"I didn't make any real long putts," she said, "but I didn't miss any that I thought I could make."

Schwartzkopf remembers the last city tournament she played in five years ago, the one that started Hyland's string.

"I was going to the 18th hole at Lincoln Country Club leading the tournament by three shots and took an eight (four over par)," she said. "Jean ended up beating me by one shot. But that was a long time ago."

Schwartzkopf had four birdies enroute to her present 77.

She birdied Nos. 4, 6, 10 and 12 for her 39-38.

Hyland had nine hole splits of 41-40—81 as the two stood a head above the rest of the field.

Debbie Reed and Betty Abel both had 87s for a third place tie while Jane Deeter, Karen Epp and Nancy Teague each carded 89s.

In the junior city segment of the tournament, nine hole rounds for those under 16 years of age, Peggy Schneiber holds the first round lead with a 50.

Both segments of the tournament move to Lincoln Country Club Tuesday with the final 18-holes at Pioneers Park on Wednesday.

Russians Pass Party

Officials, coaches and trainers of the Soviet Union's junior track and field team arrived in Lincoln Monday afternoon, but they were too tired for a party.

Anyone who has taken an international trip could very well understand why they passed up a reception Monday night at the Stephen W. Carveth home. The two-day trip simply had taken too much out of them.

The young athletes' first concern was getting a meal and then retiring to catch up on lost sleep and to adjust to the Lincoln time zone so they can be fresh for the dual meet with the United States Friday and Saturday at Nebraska's Ed Weir Track.

The language barrier made things tough for the Lincoln committeemen who have worked many long hours putting the meet together. Interpreters rounded up by Dr. Richard Hammer, meet coordinator, helped ease some of the problems.

The interpreter for the Russian team was kept busy — too busy, in fact, to prepare a list of the athletes and their best performances. That probably will be available Tuesday.

About the only thing anyone learned about the Russian team is that it is composed of some super, super track and field athletes.

American Team Works Out

By late afternoon most of the team that will represent the United States had arrived and checked in at Harper Hall. The remainder are expected Tuesday.

One who did some jogging was Mark Belger, freshman from Villanova, who is a "veteran" of this competition. He placed second to Russian Sergei Abramov in the 80 meters in last year's meet in Austin, Tex.

Belger's time was 1:50.71 to Abramov's 1:49.37. He qualified for this year's meet with a clocking of 1:47.5 in the meet two weeks ago at Knoxville, Tenn. That's the nation's best time by a junior for 1975.

Perhaps a highlight of his freshman season at the Philadelphia school came in the Penn Relays. He had a 1:51.4 anchor leg in the two-mile relay, and led off the four-mile relay with a 4:08.6 mile. Both Villanova relay teams won.

Running with Belger for the U.S. in the 800 meters will be an equally competent middle distance ace Charles White, who was timed in 1:47.9 at Knoxville. He's a freshman at the University of Illinois.

Meet Odds 'n Ends

In Sunday's Journal and Star, Randy York's story about the "walk" to be walked Friday, the distance should have read 10 kilometers, rather than 10,000, which would be quite a walk. A kilometer is .62 miles.

Since the meet distances all are in meters, here's a table showing the equivalents in yards:

Meters	Yards	Meters	Yards
100	109.36	3,000	1 mile, 1,520 yds., 2 ft., 8 in.
200	218.72
400	437.44	5,000	3 mi., 188.06 yds.
800	874.89	10,000	6 mi, 376.12 yds.
1,500	1,640.42	110	120.30

A big part of the work for the coaches of the American team prior to the meet will be putting together relay teams.

Both the men and women will compete in the 4 x 110 relay and the 4 x 440 relay. Putting it the way American track buffs talk, that's the 440 meter and 1,760 meter relays.

Former Baltimore pitcher Dave McNally has apparently won his battle against a siege of hiccups — at least for the time being.

Pitcher Bob Apodaca, who suffered a broken nose when he was hit by a batted ball Sunday, was placed on the 21-day disabled list Monday by the New York Mets.

The Cleveland Indians signed utility infielder Bill Sudakis as a free agent, deactivating first baseman Tommy McCraw to make room on their roster.

The St. Louis Cardinals have acquired outfielder Buddy Bradford from the Chicago White Sox for cash and a player to be named later.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Reggie Cleveland was slightly injured Sunday night in an automobile crash.

The Kansas City Royals announced four roster changes Monday, including sending Bruce Del Canton through waivers to the Atlanta Braves for a player to be named later. Other changes had outfielder Amos Otis placed on the 15-day inactive list retroactive to June 25 so he can undergo a tonsilectomy. The Royals also recalled utility infielder Rod Scott from their Jacksonville farm club and purchased the contract of outfielder Gary Martz from their Omaha farm club.

BASKETBALL

The NBA board of governors will hold a special meeting Tuesday, but one of the major issues was resolved on Monday when the New York Knicks and Buffalo Braves settled their dispute over Eddie Donovan. NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said the pending law suit between the Braves and Donovan would be discontinued and that the claims made by both parties in that litigation were withdrawn.

Jesse Owens, who gained international fame by winning four gold medals in the 1936 Olympics, was in good condition in Akron, O. following surgery for appendicitis.

A crowd of 35,620 — the largest ever to view a professional soccer match in the United States, turned out Sunday to see Pele and the New York Cosmos meet the Washington Diplomats in Washington. Pele scored two goals.

Jockey Lafitt Pincay, injured in a racing spill Sunday at Hollywood Park, will remain hospitalized until Tuesday. He suffered a concussion, sprained right ankle and bruises in a spill.

Women's Team Chosen

A 26-member team was selected Saturday night in White Plains, N.Y,. to represent the United States against the Soviet Union in the junior meet at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir track Friday and Saturday.

Sprint sensation Brenda Morehead of Toledo, Ohio and teammate Chandra Cheeseborough of Jacksonville, Fla. both students enrolled at Tennessee State, head the field in the 100 and 200 meter dashes and the 400 meter relay.

Two members of the Nebraska Track Club, Nancy Kindig of Hastings and Debbie Esser of Woodbine, Iowa, were selected for participation against the Russians in Lincoln.

Kindig qualified first in the pentathlon at Los Alamos, N.M., while Esser earned a position on the mile relay with an American record-breaking performance in the 400 meter hurdles in White Plains.

Since the hurdle event isn't included on the meet program, Esser was included on the relay team.

Irwin Wins Western Open

OAK BROOK, Ill. (UPI) — Hale Irwin proved himself a prophet Monday.

Midway through the $200,000 Western Open, he said, "Anyone within six shots of the leader should be super. Anything can happen on this golf course. Shoot two par rounds and you might pass everybody."

Irwin didn't lead at the halfway point. George Johnson did, by a stroke. And Irwin didn't shoot two rounds of par. He shot a par 71 and a two-over par 73.

But he stayed ahead of everybody, helped when Johnson collapsed on the final three holes and went bogey, triple bogey, double bogey, or a total of six over par. Johnson, leading almost all the way until his blowup, finished in a tie for seventh. Bobby Cole from South Africa finished one stroke behind Irwin.

Irwin wound up with a one under par 283 for 72 holes on the 7,002-yard, par 71 Butler National golf club, and the $40,000 top prize money boosted his 1975 tour earnings to $175,627, still about $5,000 behind Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller in the standings.

"It was the most nerve racking experience I've ever been through," Irwin said. "I felt like I had to eliminate some of the mistakes I'd been making. I had to get rid of some of the bogeys. I did, and I got rid of the birdies, too.

"But I had 16 pars and two bogeys in the afternoon, and that's hard to beat playing under the conditions we had. The greens were extremely bumpy and the course had dried up considerably. It was an entirely different course than we had in the morning.

"George picked up two shots on me right off the bat in the afternoon, and you better believe I was watching the scoreboard."

Irwin, playing for pars, might never have caught Johnson. But the 36-year-old Johnson, trying to become the second black golfer to qualify for the Masters tournament with a victory on the main pro tour, blew up on the 17th.

"It was a crummy shot," Johnson said. "I don't know what I did. It was a bad shot."

What he did, after a drive into the left rough, was to try to hit a nine iron back into the fairway. Instead the ball tailed over a fence and out of bounds. Johnson took a triple bogey seven, fell four shots behind Irwin, and that was it.

Cole, sitting in the clubhouse at even par 284 after back-to-back scores of 70 and 69 in the 36-hole finale Monday, took second place and pocketed $22,800. The final 36 holes were required because the tournament had been rained out two previous days.

Irwin believed he won the tournament on the 14th hole, where he put his tee shot in the bunker. In the morning, he did the same thing, but came out of the trap into the water and got a double bogey. In the afternoon, he said, "I took out a six iron and when I hit it I knew it was a hell of a shot. It went 155 yards out of the bunker, over the water, into the wind and on to the middle of the green."

Irwin two-putted for a par and "as far as I was concerned, that was the tournament.

"I won it because I made less errors. I made the putts and I hit the shots coming down the stretch that I had to make. I honestly don't recall being as shaky as I was today. The greens were so bumpy it was unnerving. I didn't play very well, but no one else did either."

It was Irwin's second tournament victory this year, coming on the heels of a win in Atlanta June 1.

KSU Set To Sell Dormitory?

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — Kansas State University is studying the possibility of selling its athletic dormitory.

The plush domicile for all Wildcats athletes is eight years old, dating back to the optimistic early days of former head football Coach Vince Gibson.

Ellis Rainsberger, Gibson's successor, indicated he likes the exclusive living arrangement because "it provides the athletes a feeling of togetherness and a better atmosphere to study by."

The annual operating budget for the dormitory has increased to $330,000.

Brad Rothermel, athletic department business manager, said room and board expenses amount to $1,000 for each of 180 athletes, plus general maintenance, salaries and other items.

Robert Snell, chairman of the K-State Intercollegiate Athletic Council, which called for the study, said, "The relative cost to the university of operating an athletic dorm versus individual student housing will probably be a major determining factor in the final decision by the council of whether or not to sell the dorm."

Women Vets Advance In Wimbledon Semis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The favorites of women's tennis had it their way Monday as four Wimbledon champions—Chris Evert, Billie Jean King, Margaret Court and Evonne Goolagong Cawley—won their way into the semifinals.

Miss Evert, the defending champion, played far below her best form but still was good enough to beat Betty Stove of The Netherlands 5-7, 7-5, 6-0.

Ms. King, who has said this will be her last major championship as a singles player, eliminated Olga Morozova of the Soviet Union 6-3, 6-3.

Mrs. Court, 32, had too much experience for Martina Navratilova, the highly-rated 18-year-old Czech and No. 2 seed, and won 6-3, 6-4.

Mrs. Cawley, newly married, snuffed out the last British hope, ousting Virginia Wade 5-7, 6-3, 9-7.

Throughout the tournament, the results have underlined the big gap between the top group of women stars and their emerging challengers. Ms. King and Mrs. Court have reached the semifinals without dropping a set.

In Wednesday's semifinals, Miss Evert will play Ms. King and Mrs. Cawley will face Mrs. Court. So an American-Australian final is certain.

It was another day of sunshine, and 30,000 people poured into the All-England Club. Attendances now totals more than 225,000 with five days still to go, and last year's all-time record of 306,161 appears certain to be beaten.

Miss Evert, rated by many experts as unbeatable when the tournament began last week, was the least convincing of the quarter-final winners. Her victory over Miss Stove was laboriously put together and at one stage she looked in danger of defeat.

The Dutch woman, tall and with a long reach, played much more aggressive tennis and went far more confidently to the net in the opening set. The so-called ice maiden from Florida, who usually shoots so accurately from the baseline, passed her opponent only four times in the whole match.

Miss Stove played above her usual standard. After winning the first set, she came back from a 5-2 deficit and tied the match 5-5 in the second. And Miss Evert looked on shaky ground. Her forehands were going into the net and she seemed scared to go forward.

The Cleveland Indians signed utility infielder Bill Sudakis as a free agent, deactivating first baseman Tommy McCraw to make room on their roster.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Reggie Cleveland was slightly injured Sunday night in an automobile crash.

The Kansas City Royals announced four roster changes Monday, including sending Bruce Del Canton through waivers to the Atlanta Braves for a player to be named later. The Royals also recalled utility infielder Rod Scott from their Jacksonville farm club and purchased the contract of outfielder Gary Martz from their Omaha farm club.

BASKETBALL

The NBA board of governors will hold a special meeting Tuesday, but one of the major issues was resolved on Monday when the New York Knicks and Buffalo Braves settled their dispute over Eddie Donovan. NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said the pending law suit between the Braves and Donovan would be discontinued and that the claims made by both parties in that litigation were withdrawn.

Jockey Lafitt Pincay, injured in a racing spill Sunday at Hollywood Park, will remain hospitalized until Tuesday. He suffered a concussion, sprained right ankle and bruises in a spill.

A 26-member team was selected Saturday night in White Plains, N.Y,. to represent the United States against the Soviet Union in the junior meet at the University of Nebraska's Ed Weir track Friday and Saturday.

Sprint sensation Brenda Morehead of Toledo, Ohio and teammate Chandra Cheeseborough of Jacksonville, Fla. both students enrolled at Tennessee State, head the field in the 100 and 200 meter dashes and the 400 meter relay.

Two members of the Nebraska Track Club, Nancy Kindig of Hastings and Debbie Esser of Woodbine, Iowa, were selected for participation against the Russians in Lincoln.

Kindig qualified first in the pentathlon at Los Alamos, N.M., while Esser earned a position on the mile relay with an American record-breaking performance in the 400 meter hurdles in White Plains.

Unemployment Extension Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signed legislation Monday extending until the end of the year the program that guarantees jobless workers 65 weeks of unemployment compensation.

In a signing ceremony in the Oval Office, Ford said: "The unemployment compensation system is our most important means of assistance for those Americans whose jobs have been lost as a result of economic recession."

"Fortunately, we are now seeing signs in the economy that the worst of the downturn is over and that recovery has already begun," the President said.

But he added that from past experience it will take time before the effects of the over-all improvement in the economy are reflected in substantial reductions in the unemployment rate.

Without the extension, the program would have expired Tuesday and workers would have been eligible to collect benefits for only 52 weeks. About 250,000 persons would have had their unemployment checks cut off.

Administration officials said the average payment for most workers is about one-half normal wages, ranging between $65 and $100 a week.

The bill also provides 39 weeks of benefits to about 12 million workers not covered by state unemployment compensation insurance — mostly state and local government employes, farm workers and household domestics.

Under the bill, the length of time unemployment compensation will be paid after Dec. 31 will depend on the rate of unemployment in each state.

Jobless workers would be eligible for up to 65 weeks of unemployment benefits if the percentage of workers in their state covered by the federal-state unemployment insurance program exceeded 6 per cent.

States with unemployment at 5 per cent to 6 per cent of insured workers were authorized up to 52 weeks of benefits, and states with unemployment below 5 per cent could have up to 39 weeks of benefits.

Officials said a 4 per cent unemployment rate among insured workers is the equivalent of a 6 per cent unemployment rate of the entire work force. The most recent unemployment rate among the total work force was 9.2 per cent.

Only three out of four unemployed Americans are covered by unemployment insurance. The others are chiefly new entrants into the labor force with no previous work experience.

The bill signed Monday provides that states would require workers to take free state training for a new job as condition of receiving compensation beyond 39 weeks.

Ford's Pool Finished

Washington (UPI) — President Ford's White House swimming pool was finished Monday. The pool was filled during the weekend and workers rushed to complete the cleanup and the landscaping should Ford decide to resume his daily dips Tuesday morning.

The pool, one-third the size of an Olympic pool, is located about 60 feet south of the west wing of the White House. The President will be able to reach it by going through the basement and a tunnel with steps leading to within a few feet of the edge of the pool.

Unemployment Extension Signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford signed legislation Monday extending until the end of the year the program that guarantees jobless workers 65 weeks of unemployment compensation.

In a signing ceremony in the Oval Office, Ford said: "The unemployment compensation system is our most important means of assistance for those Americans whose jobs have been lost as a result of economic recession."

"Fortunately, we are now seeing signs in the economy that the worst of the downturn is over and that recovery has already begun," the President said.

But he added that from past experience it will take time before the effects of the over-all improvement in the economy are reflected in substantial reductions in the unemployment rate.

Without the extension, the program would have expired Tuesday and workers would have been eligible to collect benefits for only 52 weeks. About 250,000 persons would have had their unemployment checks cut off.

Administration officials said the average payment for most workers is about one-half normal wages, ranging between $65 and $100 a week.

The bill also provides 39 weeks of benefits to about 12 million workers not covered by state unemployment compensation insurance — mostly state and local government employes, farm workers and household domestics.

Under the bill, the length of time unemployment compensation will be paid after Dec. 31 will depend on the rate of unemployment in each state.

Jobless workers would be eligible for up to 65 weeks of unemployment benefits if the percentage of workers in their state covered by the federal-state unemployment insurance program exceeded 6 per cent.

States with unemployment at 5 per cent to 6 per cent of insured workers were authorized up to 52 weeks of benefits, and states with unemployment below 5 per cent could have up to 39 weeks of benefits.

Officials said a 4 per cent unemployment rate among insured workers is the equivalent of a 6 per cent unemployment rate of the entire work force. The most recent unemployment rate among the total work force was 9.2 per cent.

Only three out of four unemployed Americans are covered by unemployment insurance. The others are chiefly new entrants into the labor force with no previous work experience.

The bill signed Monday provides that states would require workers to take free state training for a new job as condition of receiving compensation beyond 39 weeks.

Ford's Pool Finished

Washington (UPI) — President Ford's White House swimming pool was finished Monday. The pool was filled during the weekend and workers rushed to complete the cleanup and the landscaping should Ford decide to resume his daily dips Tuesday morning.

The pool, one-third the size of an Olympic pool, is located about 60 feet south of the west wing of the White House. The President will be able to reach it by going through the basement and a tunnel with steps leading to within a few feet of the edge of the pool.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Tuesday

Capricorn can surprise — quiet on the surface but explosive where emotions are concerned. The objective appearance is deceiving. Here is the individual who is artistic, creative and understands how to ride with the tide. Capricorn uses time. The native marks time and sets time and creates a personal kind of rhythm which is "catching." I do not fully understand these natives, but I revere many of them, from Marlene Dietrich to Henry Miller. Yes, Capricorn can surprise — and startle and inform and transform and make many of us think twice before asserting that we have all the answers.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): If you expect smooth sailing, your expectations could fall short. Cycle is high but there are changes, chinks; the armor is not smooth. Much that you took for granted could be overturned. This ultimately works in your favor. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio figure prominently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You get inside information. You ascertain facts, figures which verify or break down story. Your intellectual curiosity is active. Gemini, Virgo persons are in picture. Take notes. Make outline. Prepare format, presentation. Member of opposite sex pays meaningful compliment.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friends may fight among themselves. You could be drawn into center of controversy. Key is to remain diplomatic, objective. Those who battle today could be allies tomorrow. Know it and conduct yourself accordingly.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Rug may appear to have been pulled out from under you. Actually, this could be a blessing in disguise. It gets you on new track. You are rid of preconceptions. You obtain fresh start. You see as is, not as you thought conditions must be. You are refreshed, stimulated — not defeated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What is said, written becomes more meaningful. Whether destructive or constructive will depend on you. Older individual helps you set mark, outline goal and fulfill potential.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Finish what you start — be a good listener, sympathetic to needs of individual who aided you in past. Aries, Libra persons may be in picture. Money questions do arise — there is no need for panic. You're on right path!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You feel better if you look to future instead of brooding about the past. What was apparently "lost" will be replaced, including financial opportunity. Study Virgo message for valid hint. Don't rush. Original concept is "forming" and you'll recognize it as a part of you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Hunch pays off — heed "inner voice." Aquarian is likely to be in picture. Accent is on work, routine, some restrictions and your ability to extricate yourself from delicate situation. Visit one confined to home, hospital.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Creative urge is accented. Unusual situation could bounce in your favor. Key is ability to adjust, to be flexible, to utilize available materials. Some details are elusive. Avoid brooding. Answers are forthcoming, very likely through one you meet at social affair.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Emphasis is on self-esteem, how you view yourself. Aim high — you are capable now of dealing from position of strength. Know it and act like you are aware of it. Emphasis is on goal, ambition, relations with those who can make room for you at top.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Hold off on journey if possible. You have become evident as you receive calls, messages. Restlessness now is part of creative urge. You'll find constructive outlet. Gemini, Virgo figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent is on money, budget, purchases which make home life more comfortable — and beautiful. Taurus, Libra persons are involved. Special occasion gift is on agenda. ou can come closer to one who loves you.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY forces are scattered this year. This month you make new, exciting contacts. Charge into project; get to heart of matters. Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. You are dynamic, dramatic, creative and members of opposite sex are drawn to you. You understand money and food and you have favorite dishes which others talk about. You have streak of extravagance and you're "good" to people.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast for Tuesday

Capricorn can surprise — quiet on the surface but explosive where emotions are concerned The objective appearance is deceiving Here is the individual who is artistic creative and understands how to ride with the tide Capricorn uses time The native marks time and sets time and creates a personal kind of rhythm which is catching I do not fully understand these natives but I revere many of them from Marlene Dietrich to Henry Miller Yes Capricorn can surprise — and startle and inform and transform and make many of us think twice before asserting that we have all the answers
